	along the border of Ha Tinh and Quang Binh Prov. In 7 days, ten enemy soldiers were captured recently. So far, every Infiltration Group that moved on the bloody route from Ha Tinh to Quang Binh was subject to enemy attacks. To prevent enemy ground hostile actions, Doan 929 had to take the new route that was cut through the jungle.
	Entry dated 29 Feb 68, relates that recently, previous contingents of Doan 926 suffered 300 desertions while in route to Khe Sanh. Fear of enemy B52 raids was the main cause of these desertions.
	Entry dated 7 Mar 68, discloses that personnel of Doan 926 were in shortage of salt. They perspired profusely during exhausting troop movements and the one kilo of salt allotted to 162 individuals daily was insufficient. In the same entry, Subject relates that he encountered a group of enemy prisoners including the US prisoners on his way. These prisoners were evacuated from Khe Sanh. They were haggard and some of them were lame.
	Subsequent entry reveals that on 10 Mar 68, a balloon was dropped on the location of the rice depot by an enemy aircraft and NVA soldiers rushed to look at it. They were discovered and the whole area was turned into a mass of fire by enemy aircraft.
	Entry dated 13 Feb 68, relates that Subject learned that the remainder of his Group merged into Unit 8-3 which was possibly the 308th NVA Div /sic/.
	The last entry dated 20 Mar 68, reveals that Subject would be moved to Ta Con to participate in the battle of Route #9. He was transferred to S1 (U1) / poss 9th Regt, 304th NVA Div/ T2 / poss 2d Bn/. He discloses that T2 was the main attacking force and its mission would not be very different from that of K12 Task force, H3, U1 / poss 12th Task force Co 3d Bn, 9th Regt, 304th NVA Div/ in which he had formerly served.

The distance covered today is comparatively long. I feel pain in my legs. This place is Triệu Sơn [District, Thanh Hóa Province]. I (Quyen) take a rest in Dan Quyen Village which is only 2 Kms District from Dầu Lỵ Village.

21 Jan 68

The distance covered today is 28 kms. It is raining. The road is winding and so slippery that one has the impression of walking on grease. I stayed with a [strange] family for one day to wash myself and my laundry.

22 Jan 68

Hardly have I finished my lunch when the members of this family ask me to pay for the firewood I have used to cook rice. While leaving, I have the feeling that this family does not have any children or relatives who have to "go away" for such a mission as mine. It is monday today. The trip is made during the daytime. It is not very hard. Now the sun shines, now it rains. At night, I arrive at a station in the jungle and I sleep soundly on a hammock in a tent amidst the jungle coldness.

"The trip I am going on is to fight the Americans. It is hard and perilous. During this trip, the green jungle is my friend, the hammock and the tent are my home."

23 Jan 68

At 0800 hrs, I resume my trip. I think I may encounter danger today because I have to reach the Bô Lán slope which I have long feared. I reach it now and find myself on the territory of Nghê [An], the country of the heroes. [T.N: Nghê An is the place of birth of Hồ Chí Minh and other revolutionaries]. Thirty years ago, the drums of the "Soviet" [poss movement] resounded in this place and urged the people to overthrow the Japanese and French.

Today I stop at a jungle in Nghia Dan District, Nghê An Province. The walk of today is made during the daytime.

Night of 27 January 1968

The distance covered today was 18 kms, and the march was comparatively easy.

I feel that one becomes experienced when one lives in collectivity, especially in three-man cells.

Actually I am in a four-man cell which consists of Dũng, Field Grade Political Officer, native of H. Trung [sic], CĐ, Staff Assistant for Rear Services, native of Quang Xưởng [not very legible], Cán, Staff Assistant for Tác quái [poss combat operation], native of Thủ Xuyên, and Quyền, Staff Assistant for operations and training, native of Thủ Xa [poss town of Nghe An].

Here, the "five together policy" is carried out; that means everybody lives together and belongs to a single family. The members of this family love each other, and mutually support each other in every task and study.

30 January 1968

Today I covered 20 kms of the route, crossed a slope, and reached Nam Dân District, the native place of Uncle Hồ. At 0930 hours, I arrived at Đồng Nam Hamlet, Nam Văn Village, Nam Dân District where I was warmly welcomed by a family.

Movement is made during the daytime, along a 30-km route which crosses Vinh Lộc, Cán Lộc, Hả Tinh. I walk from 8 [a.m.] to 4 [p.m.]. I halt at Trung Hòa, Trung Lộc, Cán Lộc.

I halt at <sup>A</sup>Thuong Lien for one day to take a bath and wash my clothes. It is very cold. Previously, robbers were active, but ten of them were recently arrested.

It rains continually for some days, making the roads very muddy.

Today, I leave the territory of Ha Tinh Province to arrive in Quang Binh Prov.. Here, enemy air activities are intensified. The enemy ground and air forces are prevalent. Generally speaking, none of the former infiltration groups could pass this area without being attacked and shedding blood. This is the reason why today, BoAn Group 926 must change the movement route. This route leads through the forests. Movement is extremely difficult due to the length of the route, the rain, the coldness and the mud. Certain points in this area, though not considered as objectives, are fiercely bombed.

Today, I halt in <sup>A</sup>Tuyen Hoa.

The station is located amidst people's houses but we have to sleep in the woods. It is so cold and the cold breeze penetrates to my bones. How can I sleep in this stormy and rainy night? We eat with the people and yet, we sleep in the woods.

We only marched 8 kilometers yesterday. How intense the anti-aircraft activities were on the first night we spent here!

Today, I get up early and cook rice. The march is 25 kilometers along the river of blue-ink colored water where I can, from time to time, watch the beautiful landscapes formed by the weather-beaten masses of rock standing out from the river. The route we take today is terribly steep. In some sections, the slope is at an 85 degree angle and it is too difficult to march because the route is cut through masses of stone. We stop here and sleep. Rains and chill weather have turned the jungle into a muddy, dirty place. Misery and distress!

I stay here until 3.00 o'clock [sic]. The distance I walk today is 17 kilometers long. I usually move along the hill sides. The route is composed totally of stone and slopes at a 30° angle. I get tired because the route is difficult; in addition, it is raining and cold.

18 Feb- The route to the station slopes at a 45° angle. I arrive at the station at 7.00 o'clock [sic]. However, it is not until 9 o'clock [sic] that I can finish hanging the mosquito-nets up. There are big leeches here. Also here, I must use water from a very dirty stream to cook. It is funny that I return to the old station today. On the 19th I come back to this old station. Thus, three times I have walked on this portion of the route.

21 February, the route I march today is rather easy. It passes along a stream. This station is rather clean and the enemy air raids are considered strong here.

23 February. Today, I set foot on Laotian territory. This station is very large, and it is very cold tonight.

I am going in the neighboring country Laos. It is not the rainy season now and the soil is dry. I must go up the hill and down the dale and I am feeling pain. The Army and the People of Khâm Nôl have just shot down one enemy aircraft, many aircraft hover in the sky. They are continuously flying overhead both day and night, including L.19 airplanes and helicopters. I have no cigarettes and I have also run out of tobacco. I long to smoke but the present circumstances do not allow me to smoke. Our group is Đoàn Group 926 which suffered 300 desertions while enroute to Khe-Sanh. Fear of the fierceness of enemy B52 raids was the main cause for these desertions

1 March 1968.

This morning, I got up at four o'clock. The 12th Company moved after all so our troop ranks were not confused. Early in the morning, some Laotians came near our station to look for items left behind. They exchanged manioc, mushrooms, papayas, pumpkins and chickens for salt, pencils, socks, towels, soap, clothing and blankets. This is their tradition.

At 9 o'clock this morning it started raining. The route is long and steep. I fell to the ground two times and my clothes were soiled with mud, but I have not washed them as yet. Moving near a station, I met my old classmate. We talked a moment and then separated.

2 to 4 March

The routes are very dangerous. We seem to get lost in a strange place and we don't know where we are. The only thing we can do is eat three meals a day and walk on and on with a pack on our shoulders like a camel that travels through the desert.

Following are some characteristics:

- Trees are not green.

- The enemy aircraft operated strongly both day and night.
- Slopes on the routes are not very steep but there are many small slopes, streams and bridges.
- I had to press cooked rice into a ball for two meals on the previous day.
- I have not met any girls.

We must walk for 8 hours or 9 hours each day.

7 March 1968.

Here, we reach Savannakhet Province. It is very close to Khe Sanh and some 3 to 4 kilometers from route #9. From here, I can hear the roar of guns from the battlefield and our men from Khe Sanh come here to rest. We can see the lights on enemy aircraft during the night.

It is possible that we have reached Quang Tri Province. We stay here for 3 days to rest and 1 day to do the laundry and wash. We spend 3 nights and tonight, lying in bed, the bed of the soldier which is made of some bamboo trees, I feel so easy. Food is very scarce, especially salt. Today, it is difficult for me to eat rice without any salt. It is becoming hard. Here is station 15 in Laos.

8 March. The route we passed yesterday was relatively steep but I was tired because of the heat. There were several men who fell along the route.

It has been two days since I started eating rice balls. During this period, I had to march day and night and live without salt. I perspired profusely and felt very weary due to lack of salt, chiefly after going up hills and down dales and steep slopes. Sometimes, I wanted to sit down for a rest because I felt too dizzy and too tired to walk further. However, when thinking of my personal honor and pride, I made every effort to continue the march. My commander told me: "You must walk with your head".

In addition to such hardships, I must suffer from the shortage of water. Water is relatively scarce in this area. All the streams are dry and the trees are also dry and seem unable to grow. I had only 1 can of water for my two day and 1 night trip and I had to climb steep slopes in the scorching sun. I was very thirsty. This is the first time in my life that I have felt so thirsty. It is true to say that going to fight the Americans is not the same as going to a festival or a musical show or a dance party. Conversely, it should be understood that going to fight the Americans is getting used to the rain and the sun and to the hardships and miseries in life. I would like to add that every one of us must suffer ten times as much as in everyday life. Only by using these terms can one exactly depict the miserable like of a soldier who has to cross the Truong Son chain.

Today, during the movement, I saw many men coming from Khe Sanh. They were accompanied by a number of prisoners. Many of them still looked very young. Three of them were Americans whose bushy whiskers and whose wounded legs were disgusting. These Americans were carried on litters.

9 March 1968.

Today marks the 3d day of a menacing shortage of salt. Salt is very scarce here. As many as 162 persons have to share only 1 kilo of salt a day among themselves. Yet, the trip is not only long but still exhausting. Every body feels even more tired because he has to dig trenches. I remain in this strange place for 1 complete day.

10 March, 1968

Today, on the way to Route #19, I am tired of moving in the sun and I met Mr Cù at Phù Tho. I was told that it would only take me 4 hours to go to the designated position, but in fact, it is quite a distance. Upon arrival at the station, I must prepare a meal by myself and go to get rice. During the outward and homeward trips between the station and the rice depot, I must cover a distance of 12 kilometers. At the rice depot, one L.19 dropped a balloon and our soldiers rushed to look at it. As a result, we were discovered and when reaching an empty place, I remained there while the others kept on marching. A moment later, when coming to a stream, they were strafed by one enemy jet plane and two AD6's. Enemy aircraft took turns storming that area. I strove to avoid being hit and I dared not go back until the sun had set, the way to my unit was utterly devastated.

and I had to cleave my way through roots and fire while enemy aircraft were flying overhead. The smell coming from the smoke of the bombs was acrid and bad.

Nobody has the heart to pick up burned canvas bags and bags of rice.

Carrying 2 bags of rice on my shoulders, I came back safe to my unit. Fortunately, my unit suffered nothing from enemy air strikes. Shortly after the meal, I had to move to another place. How tired I was! Carrying 10 kilos of rice, I had to walk all the night long. Not until 0330hrs did I have an hour to relax. Afterwards, I continued the march and arrived at the station at 0900hrs. I was very tired for 3 reasons:

- I had walked from 0600hrs to 1500hrs on the 10th without a pause.

- I had moved throughout the night while carrying a heavy, load and being threatened by enemy bombardment.

- I had hunt game to acquire food.

11 and 12 March 1968.

I stopped here for two days; and I was still very tired because of yesterday's bombing. Comrade Sinh lost his way; therefore, a cell of the squad must remain to look for him. The enemy aircraft operate strongly in this area. However in general, our soldiers are still very subjective.

13 Mar 68.

I awoke at 0400hrs and begin to march again at 0500 hours. I walked for 7 hours today. The route is very open. There are only bare hills and high-grass hills. Trees in jungles are bare. The enemy's aircraft seem to fly overhead all the time. The weight carried on my shoulders becomes heavier because of the hardships during the past few days. I get tired and, in addition, I have only "cooked rice pressed into a ball" with salt. Consequently my health has declined considerably. There is not a station here but there is a fresh-grass jungle. Each cell must dig an underground trench to sleep in. Also in this location, my 3d cell must build a 2 sic x 2 sic x 1 sic trench. It is very narrow. It is uncomfortable to sleep in the trench. Today, I take off my clothes and recognize that I am very thin now and my complexion has turned to a pale color.

I stop at this location and merge into Unit 8-3 which is possibly the 308th Division.

17 March 1968.

After arriving at this location, two companies are sent to another area for replacement purposes. I am destined to stay here barefooted, weapon in hand.

A few days have passed since I came to this place. Everyday I have to live in underground trenches which are hot and infested with mosquitoes.

Everyday I eat twice a day without salt. For food, I only have vegetable soup.

However, I am still lucky enough to have sufficient tobacco to smoke.

Everyday, when I go to gather vegetable in the gardens of the local inhabitants, I often bring back some tobacco leaves which I cut into pieces and dry over the fire. When I want to smoke, I roll the dried tobacco in a strip of paper or put it in a water pipe. This is very simple, yet it gives me the same taste as when I draw a puff of "Thu Bón" tobacco.

This place is Huong Hon District, Quang Tri. I see no charge here. I expect that I will have a chance to take part in the counter attack.

18 March 1968.

Today, some friends of mine and I went hunting.

After completing our normal activities, we went to the Lé Bon River to gather vegetables. However, instead of doing so, we caught in the river. We used explosive charges to catch fish and we did not return until the evening. We caught about 10 kilos of fish which provided us with abundant food for 3 days.

Document reveals that A8 moved with K1, T7, K11, K13, T9, K17 and 22d Transport [ Unit ] [ prob elements of 66th Regt ]. The trip started on the afternoon of 26 Jan 68. After moving through a hilly country, the author's unit arrived in the Khe Sanh area. Due to poor visibility at night, all [ VC/NVA ] combatants used phosphorus produced by dead leaves or rotten wood to stick on their hat or haversack to guide them at night. Document states that Ha, a friend of author, had never before experienced such hardships as malnutrition, the pain of fording a rocky stream, and innumerable leeches in the forest of Khe Sanh. Ha was so affected by this trip that he lost his weapon without being aware of it. While returning to search for it, Ha was asked to relay a verbal order from the artillery officer of an [ U/I ] regiment urging K.17 to speed up their movement. Ha learned that the load carried by K17 was heavier than those of other units. The author also expresses deep concern about repeated airstrikes delivered by B.52 [ bombers ]. The author states that the B5-T8 operational area on Highway # 9 becomes a matter of life and death with the enemy [ FMAF / RVNAF ]. The notebook reveals that the author left Thai Ninh [ Primary School ] on 23 Mar 65 and enlisted on 18 Sep 65. Subject arrived in the locality meaning enlisted in the NVA in Feb 66 and received the ID Card meaning assigned to present unit in Mar 67. a (C) Item 2: Diary, entries dated between 19 Sep 67 and 18 Feb 68, maintained by an U/I individual, covers the information on the activities of a Plat-size unit of Doan 8/3 /aka 304th NVA Div/. The entry dated 20 Jan / 68 / reveals that T7 / 7th Bn, 66th Regt, 304th NVA Div / participated in the attack on strongholds in Khe Sahn. The subsequent entry states that it was a valuable lesson to the unit which suffered heavy casualties because of having recruits who had no combat experience. On 25 Jan, the author guided his Plat into Khe Sahn Post to recover husked rice left by the defenders of the Post. The entry dated 27 Jan relates that according to the assessment on the situation by Doan 8/3, the entire US Air Cav Div can be airlifted into the area; therefore, combat would be harder. Entry dated 18 Feb 68 discloses that the NVA depots located on the river bank of Tchepone River / Laos / were uncovered by the IWM-F/RVNAR and bombed by B52 and jet fighters for three days consecutively. Stored at the depots was North VN government property. Document also contains poems, songs and rosters with individual achievements of members of various local units and agencies.
