The 1st Battalion, 5th Infantry (Mech) searching for enemy forces had moved in the Southern BOI LOI WOODS north of TRANG BANG, received an attack on its night defensive position at XT 533290 at approximately 0005 hours. The enemy assault was repulsed and broken by 0345 when the enemy withdrew leaving 29 dead around the perimeter wire and two POW's. The enemy also left behind two machine guns, six RPG rocket launchers, six AK-47 rifles, 34 hand grenades and 57 RPG rounds.

Later in the morning (0840), Troops A and B of the 3rd Squadron, 4th Cavalry searching in an area a short distance to the northeast of the 1st of the 5th's contact (XT 574278) came into contact with an unknown size enemy force. In a running battle which lasted all day, the cavalymen supported by helicopter gunships, artillery and air strikes accounted for another 29 VC dead. Far to the north of these actions, at the TAY NINH Base Camp, an enemy sapper unit at 0500 attacked and overran four gun positions of the 2nd Battalion, 32nd Artillery on the base camp perimeter. Seven VC KIA were accounted for by the defending artillerymen, but the enemy succeeded in destroying one 175mm gun and one 8" Howitzer.

Meanwhile the Vietcong had mounted a long awaited 2nd offensive against Saigon. Meeting much less success than had come their way during Tet. In what was probably their do or die final push on the capital city a VC ^{battalion} locked horns with the 4th of the 23d on May 27th. The infantrymen night defensive position a little over a mile west of the city ~~limits~~ came under attack before midnight. Supporting by division artillery men and gunships and an airforce spookhealy managed to keep the VC pinned down over night. In the morning the 3th of the 4th calvary joined the 23rd infantry in an advance which carried thru the enemy position.

By late afternoon all resistance had ceased - 218 vietcong lay dead on the battlefield their second offensive having died with them. American casualties were 6 dead. 4 days later Tointanwan came to a close.
