Dear Barry,

It was good to hear from ~~you~~ ^{you} Barry I haven't answered sooner but I haven't been checking my mailbox at school very often, and so I just got it.

I'm glad to hear that you got the unit you wanted. I suppose you'll stay in this unit during your tour of duty? Sam has a large, maybe 5' by 3', map of Viet Nam which I meant to look at today to locate An Xhe. Being there means that you'll miss the action in the DMZ I suppose.

I hope Dee + all the little kiddies are acclimated to Argentina now. They probably will speak Spanish (or Portuguese?) in no time.

Not much has happened here. I guess the biggest thing was Ralph's graduating, after fantastically involved problems. He was talking about going to the U. of ~~Tenn.~~ ^{Tenn.} next year where Loy said he could get an assistantship the second quarter. Dinah + Warren have been around the last week and said to say that they'd like to see you + Dee + the kids.

School starts in a couple weeks. Not very exciting, but then I couldn't say I'd want to change places with you. I can't say I'm proud of Viet Nam, but I'm proud of your being able to do your job. This is a little awkward, but I just realized it the other day while talking about you to an acquaintance and I thought that you should know.

Write when you get a chance.
