Fifty Years of Duty

Frank Way

It is hard to imagine fifty plus years of devoted military service. From Aviation Electronics Technician to Rated Pilot. From the Pacific (San Francisco) to the Atlantic (Charleston), and back again. From flying the PBM to the PBY to the PB1G (B-17). From Petty Officer Seaman to Rear (two-star) Admiral.

Now that is a full career by any measure, and still counting.

Our guest speaker on February 18th will be RAdm. Bennett S. Sparks (USCG Ret). Some of you will recognize that name as the man who helped PCAM dedicate our HU-16 Albatross now painted in San Francisco USCG colors. Such a lengthy career is unusual enough but when you realize that rising to such a position from that of an enlisted man to Flag Rank (known in Navy parlance as a Mustang) is most remarkable, indeed.

Enlisting in the Coast Guard Reserve only one week after Pearl Harbor Bennett Sparks served as a Combat Aircrewman flying both anti-submarine and Air-Sea Rescue missions. In 1957 he received a field promotion to the rank of Ensign. From 1966 through 1989 he held nine consecutive command positions. Along this career path he was nominated by President Reagan and confirmed by the Senate in 1985 to the unusual rank of Commodore (one-star). Then in 1987 came his second star and later his first retirement in 1989.

Admiral Sparks became involved with many different advisory positions (NATO, Reserve Officers Association), and was recalled to active duty and later retiring once again in 1993. Recipient of numerous awards and decorations (Distinguished Public Service Medal twice) he also served as the Chairman of the California Veterans Board.

So our next meeting will be of interest to those who would like to know more of Coast Guard history during World War II up to and including the current War On Terrorism. Come along and meet a fine gentleman and exceptional military veteran.

Gone and Forgotten - Almost

Ray Anderson

It was 55 years ago, on February 5, 1949, that 5-star General of the Air Force Henry H. "Hap" Arnold came out of retirement from his ranch near Sonoma to participate in dedication ceremonies of a World War II P-61 Black Widow night fighter given to the local Air Scouts Squadron of the Santa Rosa District Boy Scouts. He had been instrumental in cutting through the red tape to have the obsolete aircraft declared military surplus and given to the newly formed (1947) "Hap Arnold Air Scouts" squadron. The twin engine $400,000 airplane (most WW II fighters cost about $50,000) was flown to the "new" Sonoma County Airport from storage at the Fourth Air Force headquarters at Hamilton Field.

The photo at right was provided by PCAMer Russ Etchell -who obtained it years ago from an anonymous source. (It was recently published in the Jan/Feb issue of Warbirds International magazine - submitted by aviation photographer/historian Bill Larkins - who had an e-mailed, pre-release from me.)

The donated airplane was presented to the Air Scouts squadron for use in their ground school training in aviation and was accepted by 18-year-old high school senior Larry Smothers - senior officer of the squadron. It was anchored on a hard surface pad on the airport, just off the left side of the entrance road (now Aviation Blvd). PCAMer Harrison Rued, a member of the formative Air Scouts Squadron, recalls them meeting in a nearby old Army Air Field building. I have been unable to contact any other squadron members, but from a newspaper listing (PD Feb 3, 1949) several Air Force Reserve Officers serving as aviation advisors/instructors to the squadron were: Capt. Russ Beal - flying and use of flight instruments; Capt. Charles Ackley - liaison with the Air Force and aerial photography; Major Sid Pout; Capt. Russell Johnson; Lt. Lee Briton and Verne Hassell (radio engineer at KSRO) former signal corps inspector.

However, the early enthusiasm and interest of the squadron waned and the airplane was not properly maintained. General Arnold passed away at his Sonoma ranch on Jan 15, 1950. The loss of their sponsor probably contributed to the demise of the program. The last documented evidence I turned up re the Air Scouts P-61 on the Sonoma County Airport was the PCAMer Doug Olson photo taken on Dec 9, 1951. Note the white inscription "Hap Arnold Boy Scouts" on the nose and the remaining, but unused, Army Air Field control tower in the background. The identifying inscription was significant when the photo was compared to one by Harisson Rued of Oct, 1951 with no inscription - indicating that the squadron was asserting responsibility for the craft at this late date.

A similar photo was published in the Nov/Dec issue of Warbirds International magazine with a request for identity of this special bird.

The public exposure of the unsecured craft resulted in increasing vandalism and theft. Access to the inside of the airplane was simple via the rear hatch and there was no restriction to "helping yourself", as reported by PCAM member Frank Scott who ventured inside with a friend. Then one day it was gone - all the memory of old timers revealed. Several people simply assumed it was scrapped! By who or when is still a mystery. Hopefully someone in the warbirds magazine or this newsletter's audience will shed some light on the disappearance of this treasure - restored today worth over a million dollars, but at that time just a piece of "war junk."

In the mid 50s the Air Scouts membership dwindled and by 1957 the squadron was also gone.

P.S. We do have the names of all the squadron members dating from from it's inception until dissolution.

If you have any leads on this story, pictures, contacts or where this P-61 ended up, please give me a call at [REDACTED]. Let's complete this story!

Membership - Renewal & Orientation

PCAM wishes to welcome its newest members:

Phil & Toni Hartlaub; Rick Ryal; Tim, Janice, Alex & Zach March of Santa Rosa. Tom, Lynne & Justin Young of Corte Madera. Donald, Joella & Tyler Olsen; and Nicole Vantine of Windsor. Nicole says she can weld and loves metal and getting dirty! Sounds good to me. Ashley Chown has joined as a junior member (12 to 18 year olds for only $5/yr!) so she can work on the T-28 restoration project. Mike Tunick, Pam Pepper and Evan & Blake Pepper-Tunick of Rohnert Park. Bud & Vicki DeCastro of Penngrove. Bud is an ex-USAF and United mechanic who can come in handy in the T-33 Shooting Star restoration.

Now we haven't made a big deal about our members who have regularly renewed their memberships, but be assured we count on their continued support and involvement in the museum. Re-up soon, if you haven't already, so you will continue getting the newsletter and know what we are up to. If the address label on your newsletter has a pink stripe on it, it means that this is your last one as PCAM has not yet received your dues for 2004. Annual dues are still only $24 for individuals, $36 for couples and families. Please make your check out to PCAM and send it to 2330 Airport Blvd, Santa Rosa, CA 95403

The new member orientation meeting held in January was a big success with about forty members in attendance - ten of whom were new members! Obviously this program is a big hit with returning members as well. The program, long overdue, was an idea brought to fruition by Tom Whitson, and was complete with a tour of the PCAM hangar which few normally have a chance to see. It inspired several members to sign up for the ongoing restoration work where there is always room for more. (See some restoration activity pics on the next two pages.)

The next Orientation Meeting will be on February 21st (and every 3rd Saturday until further notice.)

Volunteerism Opening Doors

Seth Dempsey

Some high schools in the area have a graduation requirement of their seniors - that they perform forty hours of public service with an organization of their choice. The intention is to expose their students to worthy community causes and develop good citizens in the process.

Windsor High School (unfortunately, below the northern approach to our airport) is one of these schools. And Elizabeth Ferreira is one of those seniors preparing for full participation in the real world.

Last October, Elizabeth decided to volunteer the required forty hours at the Pacific Coast Air Museum. She is the director of the student newsletter in the ROP program at Windsor High, but when she saw the work being done on the museum's A-26 Invader, she knew that is how she wanted to spend her volunteer time. Her dad is a diesel mechanic, so her choice to wrench on the hardware is perhaps not so surprising. The jobs on Invader project are varied, if not endless. Elizabeth enjoyed learning to rivet. The forty hours flew by - it's an air museum after all. When the T-28 restoration project got underway, Elizabeth joined that crew as well and she now puts in time two days each week. She has over eighty hours thus far and has no plans of calling it quits even though she has over twice the time required by her school. She loves the people at PCAM and obviously has developed a thing for round engine aircraft. When a museum member, Russ Etchel, heard of her continued dedication beyond the requirement, he knew she deserved a little something special. So he offered to take her up in one of his planes and give her a little stick-time.

Now that she has gotten inside the fence at the local airport, she entertains ideas of getting into the aviation program at SRJC and maybe even some time with the USAF. You can feel proud to support an organization that opens doors to possibilities like this for our young people.

As the wing tip fuel tanks of the T-33 are such a distinguishing feature of the aircraft, the crew thought they should look their best (the tip tanks took a terrible beating on their trip up from Tucson). Robert Ramirez put his professional skills to work smoothing them out.
