

No bird soars too high.
if he soars with his own wings.

William Blake

Daniel,

Congratulations!

on Being the Rep.
for us Rangers.'

you've got the heart!

What we need is some kind of advertisement to induce our fellow Rangers to get involved. I'm trying to come up with an idea.

- Remember... "Life would be real boring
if things were perfect." FRED —

"Soaring the Peaks"

by Rick Kelley

Acrylic, 30" x 24"

Rick can trace his interest in art and the outdoors to his childhood, which was spent living in both Montana and Minnesota. "My interest in wildlife and the outdoors began in Minnesota," says Kelley. "but my love of western art and particularly the art of Charles M. Russell developed because of the time I spent in Montana. My first painting subjects combined both fields—I painted western wildlife...mule deer and antelope." After graduating from Kellogg High School in Roseville, Minnesota, Kelley studied art for two years at Eastern Montana University. In 1980 he moved to Hudson, Wisconsin, where he and his family opened a frame and art gallery to promote and sell Rick's paintings. Today, Kelley and his wife Gisele work together to promote and publish Rick's work. From their home and studio near Stillwater, Minnesota, Rick finds ample inspiration for his paintings in the form of ducks, geese, deer and pheasants. Rendered in acrylic, Rick's paintings have won numerous awards, including the Eagle Conservation Print of the Year and the People's Choice Award at the Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Show. His work has also been widely exhibited and was selected for the 1989 "Birds in Art" exhibition sponsored by the Leigh Yawkey Woodson Art Museum in Wausau, Wisconsin. In 1990, he was the first runner-up in the Federal Duck Stamp Competition after a fourth round tie-breaker. Rick has long been active in Ducks Unlimited and Pheasants Forever and often donates his original paintings and limited edition prints to be used to raise funds for the cause of wildlife conservation.

Original art by Rick Kelley ©1989
Rick Kelley's work is available in limited edition prints
through High Point Publishing
Hudson, Wisconsin

© Leanin' Tree Inc.
Made in Boulder, CO, USA

Printed on Recycled Paper

LEANIN' TREE

0 32687 99011 4

150 USA 200 Canada CG988

