SPOT REPORT

A. Battery B, 1st Battalion, 11th Marines

B. 05010900H

C. 068657

D. While checking defensive wire, local security chief discovered one (1) 105mm H.E. projectile lying nose down in concertina wire.

E. Projectile inspected by Bravo 6 and observed to be heavily dented on one side apparently from being launched by an explosion. Projectile was observed to be freshly scraped due to passing through concertina wire. It is suspected that this projectile was launched at this position last night due to the fact that one guard personnel reported seeing an explosion and flash approximately 350 meters from the perimeter at 2040 hours. There was no usable crater to obtain a back azimuth. Visual check with compass revealed approximate BACK azimuth of 4200 mils. 2nd Battalion, 1st Marines (Detroit Tigers) S-3 "A" informed and E.O.D. assistance requested.
