LESSONS LEARNEDa. 11221. Sparrow Hawk Operation/Fire Control Coordination

(1) Discussion. 2nd Battalion, 1st Marines was alerted by 4th Marines to commit "Sparrow Hawk" by helicopter on a mission which required reinforcing a deployed recon element for the evacuation of a recon NIA; Upon Sparrow Hawk's landing in the LZ and jointing with the recon element, extraction of both units would be effected.

(2) The initial alert received from the 4th Marines informed this Battalion to alert Sparrow Hawk and assigned the above mission. Subsequent to this alert the 4th Marines had alerted the Sparrow Hawk standby helicopters which launched the helicopters to LZ 0000 Y (2/1) without knowledge of the 2/1 Command Center. In essence the Sparrow Hawk while being briefed by 2/1 Command Center on the situation had no control of briefing the pilots before the helicopters were launched from HHE-163. In addition to the preliminary helicopter launch, another problem or requirement of Command and Control arose as to who had operational control of the overall mission. The question of Op Con was referred to the 4th Marines for a decision. It was decided that the 4th Marines would have Op Con. It appeared from the radio control net that "B" Co, 3rd Recon Bn had Op Con which was later passed to C.O., 1/4.

(3) The helicopters and Sparrow Hawk were eventually both briefed by 2/1 with Op Con under 4th Marines and immediately launched. The problem/requirement of Op Con resolved presented still another problem/requirement of Fire Coordination which still had not been satisfied prior to launching and just how the Control of Fires and Aircraft would be conducted. Fortunately, no requirement existed for artillery until after the mission was completed, however, the question of Fire Coordination and overall Op Con of the forces employed had not been resolved.

(4) Upon completion of the Sparrow Hawk's mission, it might have well have ended in tragic circumstances if artillery had fired missions called in by the Sparrow Hawk FO Team. In essence with the rescue helicopters, HUI'E and AO's aircraft on station, coordination of fire and the control of the element was completely lacking. In other words the Sparrow Hawk FO Team while in contact with "B" Battery and under Op Con of Regiment/E Co. Recon, could have called for an artillery mission with no concern of the aircraft activity in the area. The Command and Control and Fire Coordination was extremely confusing. The Sparrow Hawk FO was in contact with the support battery, the AO on station was in contact with the Flight Leader and the Sparrow Hawk Commander but not in contact with the Sparrow Hawk Artillery FO. Fire Missions initiated by the Sparrow Hawk FO Team could have conceivably been fired with no reference of overall control or concern for the aircraft.

(5) Recommendation. That in the employment of forces such as Sparrow Hawk on missions to reinforce or such other missions where limited force is utilized, that a clear and concise Command and Control element be established prior to launching and that this command and control element brief both the Sparrow Hawk and Aircraft to include fire coordination.

In situations such as the one described in the discussion paragraph, it is essential that the command and control authority be in position to react quickly and decisively on the spot. In such circumstances if the Battalion or Regiment doesn't have the communications or the FCC capability (e.g. Their presence not in the area) then the Control and Command should be passed to the unit where this Command and Control capability is available. In this case the Command and Control could have initially been passed to 1st Battalion, 4th Marines or if unavailable at 1/4, passed to the Helicopter Flight Leader. Since the Flight Leader had control of the aircraft, communications with the ground forces, and communications with the AC, it would appear that this unique position would be suited for control of fires and aircraft safety.

NARRATIVE SUMMARY

At 160130H 3d Sqd, 1st Plat, Co I (ZD001021) made contact with 20 VC. Marines fired artillery in support. Search of area at first light disclosed 1 VC KIA (confirmed), 1 M-3 submachine gun, 2 Chicom hand grenades and 3 back packs. There were no friendly casualties.

At 161220H, while on a reconnaissance patrol, 1st Plat, Co I received 1 KIA and 1 WIA when a booby trap exploded at ZD004015. Investigation showed wire leading into the jungle and it is suspected that trap was detonated electrically. Both casualties were evacuated to A-Med.
