INTELLIGENCE

SECTION III.

- A. General. (Period covered: 1 July to 31 July 1967)
During the reporting period the battalion CP was located along Route 547, in Nam Hoa District, Thua Thien Province, while participating in OPERATION CUMBERLAND. This unit remained at this location except for a ten day period from 7 July to 16 July, when the battalion was deployed to the DONG HA - CON THIEN area to participate in OPERATIONS BUFFALO and HICKORY II.

B. Intelligence Information in the Battalion Operating Areas.

1. CUMBERLAND AREA. (vic Rt. 547 - Southern Thua Thien Province)

a. Enemy. The enemy avoided large scale engagement with friendly forces; contact generally being made with groups of 4 to 10 VC who broke away quickly. One mortar attack (approx 50 mm 82mm) was made on 11 July against the battalion rear CP location (at this time the command group and three rifle companies were participating in Operation HICKORY II and the battalion rear CP location was occupied by A/1/4 near Nam Hoa). On 19 July and 23 July 1967, the enemy ambushed friendly truck convoys heading west on Route 547 from the battalion operation base. The enemy employed MFG-2 (8-40) rockets on each occasion.

b. Terrain.

(1) Critical Terrain Features. These are the hill masses running North and South parallel to Route 547, hills 424 (YD750087), 433 (YD712135), 342 (YD633084), 218 (YD638065), 316 (YD604100).

(2) Avenues of approach. These include valleys, rivers, streams and trails throughout area. The valley running North and South from YD701131 to YD705143; the valley running North and South from YD668110 to YD640170; and the valley that is traversed by Route 547. The Huu Trach River running west to east from YD636090 to YD755134; the Huu Trach River running south to north from YD630050 to YD636090; the Mao Sinh River running north to south from YD670108 to YD666090 are main water avenues of approach. Secondary water approaches are the stream running north to south at YD668110 to YD640170; the stream running northwest to southeast at YD620127 to YD668105; the stream flowing south to north at YD721070 to YD732103. There are several trails which are considered to be secondary avenues of approach. The trail running east to west from YD634112 to YD714106 and numerous trails generally running North and South from the main supply route (Route 547) are included.

(3) Cover and Concealment. The terrain runs from sea level to high mountains and provides a variety of cover and concealment. In the eastern portion of the CUMBERLAND area there is medium cover and concealment from relatively low, sparsely vegetated foothills. To the west, excellent cover and concealment is provided by the thick jungle canopy in the high mountains, and deep valleys. The heavy canopy is from 40 to 100 feet high. Observation and fields of fire are very limited in the jungle canopy. At the eastern end of Route 547, fields of fire and observation are considered excellent.

c. Weather. High temperatures and humidity were experienced throughout the reporting period. Highs of 120° with an average of 80% humidity contributed to heat casualties. Rain was usually slight, with heavy rainfall on one day. Visibility was excellent.

d. Counter-Intelligence. A sound counter-intelligence effort was started in the Nam Hoa area (YD764128) in conjunction with the government of the Republic of Vietnam and the Sub-Sector U. S. Army Advisors. Results, thus far, have been 1 Chieu Hoi, in addition to regular intelligence reports from local sources.

2. HICKORY II AREA (Dong Ha - Cam Lo - Con Thien Area)

a. Enemy. No direct enemy contact was made during the operation. Enemy in this area are known to be NVN. The major incident during this operation was caused by friendly troops encountering an enemy mine field.

b. Terrain.

(1) Key Terrain Features. The hill mass at CON THIEN (YD114701) is considered the dominant terrain feature in the area.

(2) Cover and Concealment. Thick shrubs and elephant grass provided excellent concealment. Underground cover was necessary due to lack of natural cover.

(3) Avenues of Approach. These included the improved 10 kilometer road from Con Thien to Cam Lo, the cleared strip from Gio Linh to Con Thien, National Route #9, and numerous trails throughout the area.

c. Weather. Temperatures were high (110°) with humidity averaging 80%. This contributed significantly to heat casualties. Rainfall was negligible. Visibility was excellent.

PERSONNEL / ADMINISTRATIONSECTION II.A. SUMMARY.

During the period 1 July through 31 July 1967 the battalion was engaged in OPERATION CUMBERLAND. From 7 July through 13 July 1967 elements of the battalion participated in OPERATION HICKORY II. On 21 July 1967 the Battalion administrative rear was transferred from Camp EVANS to PHU BAI. Lieutenant Colonel EDWIN A. DEPTULA assumed command of the battalion on 30 July 1967.

B. PROBLEM AREAS / NEW DEVELOPMENTS.

Office machines are in need of repair and/or replacement. There is a problem in replacing office machines. The time required for repair creates a hardship on the administrative sections. At the close of the reporting period, rifle companies were averaging approximately 10 men above M/L which includes an average of 20 - 25 non-effectives. The average loss per rifle company of onlisted personnel rotating during the month of August will be 34. The battalion is presently 6 officers below M/L in MOS 0302. Additionally, 6 officers (MOS 0302) will rotate to CONUS during August 1967.

SECTION IV

A. MISSION.

During July the First Battalion, Fourth Marines continued OPERATION CUMBERLAND in accordance with 4th Marines FRAG ORDERS 28 - 67 and 30 - 67. The battalion's mission included providing the following security; Engineer upgrading of route 547 in the CUMBERLAND AO, the Forward Fire Support Base (FFSB) YD 620095, the bridge/ferry site YD 755134, and the MCB-3 rock crusher YD 735134. Also included in this mission was the requirement to employ aggressive small-unit patrolling throughout the CUMBERLAND AO to locate and destroy enemy forces therein. Operations and/or activities of note during this period were:

1 - 6 July - The battalion continued OPERATION CUMBERLAND.

7 - 13 July - At 070950H, the battalion received verbal orders from C.O, 4th Marines to move the battalion (a command group and three rifle companies) to PHU BAI for an air lift to DONG HA. The battalion reported OPCON to CG, 3d Marine Division as division reserve and a DONG HA base defense force.

13 July - Chopped OPCON to 9th Marines at 1200H for OPERATION BUFFALO.

14 - 16 July - Under direction of 9th Marines, participated in OPERATION HICKORY II.

17 - 31 July - Returned to the NAM HOA area and resumed OPERATION CUMBERLAND.

B. SUMMARY OF ACTIVITIES.

The first of July found the battalion continuing OPERATION CUMBERLAND and located as follows: Companies A and B at YD 777094 and YD 770080 respectively; participated in a combined ARVN/USMC search and destroy operation; Company C was being utilized for the security of the battalion operating base (YD 717106) where the battalion CP, Battery G, 3/12, and elements of Company C, 11th Engineers were located; and Company B was providing security for the engineer improvement of the FFSB. On 1 July the Engineers had opened a Class-30 road along the trace of route 547 between the ferry/bridge site and the FFSB to include bridges, bypasses, and culverts.

On 4 July Company A returned to the battalion operating base and on the following day moved to the FFSB. Company D relieved Company C of the security of the battalion operating base and the ferry site on 5 July. That evening Company C moved out on a search and destroy operation in the vicinity of Hill 433, YD 713135.

On 7 July the battalion received verbal orders from the Commanding Officer, 4th Marines to move a command group and three rifle companies to the PHU BAI air field for transportation to DONG HA combat base (via fixed wing aircraft). Due to the battalion's departure, all engineer equipment and personnel were consolidated at the battalion operating base thus suspending engineering work in the CUMBERLAND AO. The battalion executive officer assumed command of OPERATION CUMBERLAND and remaining forces consisting of Company A, engineers, artillery, and tanks.

Commencing at 1300H on 7 July, the battalion moved to DONG HA with all elements arriving by 1900H. From 7 to 13 July the battalion was under the operational control of the 3d Marine Division, and was the division reserve. Also during this period, the battalion relieved 3d Battalion, 9th Marines of responsibility of three CAC units in the DONG HA area.

At 1200H on 13 July the battalion chopped OPCON to the 9th Marines in accordance with 9th Marines OPERATION ORDER 11-67 to participate in OPERATION HICKORY II. HICKORY II involved six infantry battalions under control of the 9th Marines to search for and destroy enemy forces and installations in that area of QUANG TRI Province between the CAM LO river and CON THIEN.

At 1300H on 13 July the battalion commander gathered his staff and unit commanders to issue verbal orders. The specific mission of the battalion was to sweep South from CON THIEN to the 62 East - West grid line in the area bounded by North and South grid lines 08 and 12. Within this zone of action Company C was assigned the western sector between grid lines 08 to 10, while Co D was given the eastern sector from grid line 10 to 12. The Command Group was to move behind Company D with Company B following in trace as battalion reserve. 0900H on 14 July 1967 was designated as H-hour and D-day respectively.

At H-hour on D-day, the battalion moved out as planned, having spent the previous night without incident in defensive positions. No enemy contact was made during the course of the three day operation. On the 14th, Company D discovered a recently used VC base camp containing one Chinese Communist Light Machine Gun, Type- 56, two Chinese Communist 7 62mm Carbines Type-56, several Chinese Communist grenades, personal equipment and documents. On 15 July, Company B replaced Company D in the sweep in the Eastern half. Company C encountered AP mines in the zone of action resulting in the following friendly casualties: 1 KIA and 17 WIA.

On 170800H July 1967 the operation terminated and the battalion having accomplished its mission, was returned to operational control of the 4th Marines at 161916H. The battalion moved to DONG HA on the 16th and returned to CAMP EVANS via truck convoy and CH-53A helicopters. On 17 July, Companies B, D and the Battalion Command Group rejoined Company A in the NAM HOA area to resume OPERATION CUMBERLAND. Company C was placed under OPCON of the 2d Battalion, 4th Marines to participate in OPERATION FREMONT - a combined MACV/USMC search and destroy operation in the vicinity of MY CHANH and the SONG THAC NA valley.

On 18 July 1967 Company B and Company A (-) were ordered to the FF35 to provide security for the engineering operations there. These two units were also given responsibility for the security of that portion of route 547 between the FFSB and the Fort (YD 645092), plus the responsibility of conducting patrols in the area of operations West from the trace of the RAO BINH DIEN and SONG HUU TRACH rivers. Captain R. A. MOSS was appointed to coordinate the activities of Companies A and B. Company D assumed responsibility for security of the battalion operating base, that portion of Route 547 between the Fort and the bridge/ferry site, and the CUMBERLAND area of operations East of the RAO BINH DIEN and SONG HUU TRACH rivers. Utilizing the Third Platoon, Company A, Company D also assumed responsibility for the security of the bridge/ferry site.

The first contact with the enemy was on the morning of 19 July 1967. A two truck, resupply convoy travelling West on Route 547 was ambushed at YD 641094 at 0930H. The lead vehicle carrying the 60mm Mortar Section from Company A, was hit by a Chinese Communist Anti-tank Rocket Type-56 causing 3 KIA's, 8 WIA, and destroyed the truck. The 2d Platoon, Company B (located Westward of the ambush site) along with the security squad that accompanied the convoy made a search of the ambush area with negative results. Artillery fires and air strikes were also directed into the suspected enemy positions.

Later during the afternoon of the 19th, a second convoy escorted by two tanks moving west on Route 547 was also ambushed by an undetermined enemy force at YD 645096. The lead M-48A3 tank was hit by a Chi Com Anti-tank Rocket Type 56 in the forward, upper-left, side of the tank turret. Following the firing of the AT rocket, the enemy withdrew under a cover of small arms fire. Immediate action was undertaken by the convoy security force with the tanks firing beehive and HE rounds, followed by air and artillery missions. Elements of Company B swept the area and found several fresh foxholes and a booby trapped Chi Com grenade on the south side of the road. The convoy continued on to the FFSB and returned that evening with no further encounters.

The battalion continued its mission of providing security and conducting aggressive patrolling in the CUMBERLAND AO. Occasional sightings of small groups of VC and encounters with mines, booby traps, and snipers were the only other contacts with the enemy during the period 19 - 22 July.

On 23 July another convoy was ambushed in the same pattern as previously experienced: the enemy firing an anti-tank rocket at one of the lead vehicles then rapidly withdrawing behind small arms fire. In this case the second tank was hit by an anti-tank round in 90mm gun tube and two crew members were wounded. Despite the hole in the gun tube and wounded crew members the tank valiantly returned fire along with its companion M-48, and an artillery mission was called in on the suspected enemy escape route.

Following these three ambush incidents the battalion commander assessed the situation to determine what action his forces had taken, what procedures could be implemented, and what was required in the way of added support from higher headquarters. It was requested that regiment return Company C to battalion control and that flame tanks be added to the attached tank platoon. Further it was planned to employ increased artillery prep fires and limited defoliation in order to prevent further ambush incidents. Each convoy traveling the MSR between the battalion operating base and the FFSB was provided a forward observer, additional radios, a larger security force, and its movement was closely controlled by the battalion Operations Center.

UNCLASSIFIED

Reconnaissance teams from 3d Recon Battalion were employed throughout the CUMBERLAND area with few results or contacts made. On 26 July at 0900H one reconnaissance team encountered a small enemy force at YD 678083 but contact was soon broken. Elements of Company D searched the area afterwards and found several bunkers which they demolished. Again artillery fires were directed on likely enemy avenues of exit with unknown results.

Company C was released from participation in OPERATION FREMONT on 27 July and the company returned to the CUMBERLAND AO. Company C relieved Company D at the operating base and Company D was assigned the control sector of the CUMBERLAND area grid lines 65 to 70.

Towards the end of July the number and size of convoys increased considerably as more artillery and engineer personnel, equipment, and supplies were moved forward to the FFSE. On 30 July Battery A, 2nd Battalion, 94th Artillery (USA) moved the first increment of 175mm guns into the FFSE in preparation of interdicting the ASHAU VALLEY on 1 August.

On 31 July an unknown enemy force command detonated a mine behind a truck which was part of a four vehicle convoy travelling West on route 547 in the vicinity of YD 655094. No casualties or damage to the vehicle was sustained and a subsequent search of the area revealed a recently occupied position South of the road.

C. Training.

Due to constant operational commitments, there was little formal training. Company level training for squad leaders was conducted by artillery and mortar forward observers in techniques of adjusting fires. Classes were conducted by the battalion armorer on care and cleaning of the M-16 rifle, followed by fam-firing of 250 rounds per individual. Indoctrination and weapons familiarization classes were also conducted for replacement personnel.

D. TRAINING PROBLEMS ENCOUNTERED.

Due to the battalion being constantly committed to various missions, there was little time allowed for formal training.

LOGISTICS

Section V

1. Logistical situation. During the period 1 July to 7 July the battalion was based at the CUMBERLAND area with the battalion and company rear areas located at Camp EVANS and the battalion supply located at PHU BAI. For the period 1 July to 4 July, Company A, while conducting a search and destroy mission was resupplied entirely by helicopters from the LSA at Camp EVANS. From 1 July to 5 July, Company D also conducting a search and destroy operation, was similarly supplied. Excluding these two operations, all units were resupplied by truck convoy from PHU BAI.

On 7 July, Company A remained as security for the Cr at CUMBERLAND while the remainder of the battalion participated in Operations BUFFALO and MICKORY II from 7 July to 16 July. During this period Company A was resupplied by truck convoy from PHU BAI while the rest of the battalion was resupplied from the LSA at CAMP EVANS. From 13 to 16 July the battalion was supplied by helicopter while on Operation MICKORY II.

On 17 July the battalion minus Company C went back to the CUMBERLAND area where it remained until 31 July. On 27 July Company C returned to 1st Battalion, 4th Marines and Operation CUMBERLAND. All units at the CUMBERLAND area were resupplied by truck convoy from PHU BAI.

2. Supply. Resupply for the CUMBERLAND area averaged 16 tons daily while the battalion was located there. Resupply for Operations BUFFALO and MICKORY II averaged 5 tons daily. Requests for resupply throughout the month were submitted to battalion supply and then forwarded to FLOG-A at PHU BAI with the exception of all Class II, Type II and most Class II, Type I which was ordered through normal supply channels.

Class I.

27,800 meals, combat individual, were issued during this period. Company C, 11th Engineers continued to maintain a water point in the vicinity of the battalion operating base. The battalion established a mess section with the leading elements in the CUMBERLAND area from 1 to 17 July at which time the balance of the mess was moved to CUMBERLAND. The mess was divided into two locations: One forward at the FFSB and one at the battalion operating base. Two hot meals were served daily forward and three hot meals at the battalion operating base. "A" rations were provided daily from PHU BAI.

COMMUNICATIONS ELECTRONICS

SECTION II

1. General. This report covers the period 1 July through 31 July. The period was devoted to support of battalion operations, the necessary maintenance of equipment, and training of new personnel.

2. Operations. Communications were generally continuous and satisfactory. The direct FM communications augmented by a relay unit at CHA LE provided good service to the rear at Camp EVANS for Operation CUMBERLAND. When in the DONG HA area as Division Reserve and during Operations BUFFALO and HICKORY II the battalion had problems with mutual interferences on VHF frequencies. As a result several frequency changes had to be effected in order to establish reliable voice-radio communications.

a. On 7 July, the battalion (minus one company) was ordered from the CHA LE area to DONG HA as the 3rd Marine Division Reserve, where the Third Battalion, Ninth Marines provided telephone communications. The following FM voice radio nets were established: Battalion Tac, CP Security, and 30 Forces Nets; Ninth Marines assumed the message guard for the battalion. The Battalion Tactical Net frequency had to be changed due to mutual interference generated by local units.

b. On 13 July, when placed under OPCON of the Ninth Marines, the battalion relinquished responsibility for CP Security and CAC nets, and entered the Ninth Marines Tactical Number One Net.

c. On 14 July, Operation HICKORY II began; Bravo and Delta Companies plus the 81 Conduct of Fire nets also had to have frequency changes due to other stations operating on the same frequency.

d. On 16 July, the battalion was chopped from the Ninth Marines to Fourth Marines, and the Fourth Marines assumed Message Guard. The Ninth Marines TAC net was secured and upon moving to Camp EVANS, a station on the Fourth Marines Regimental Tac was activated.

e. On 17 July, the battalion moved back to CUMBERLAND area and the Battalion Tac, Regimental Tac, Artillery Conduct of Fire, and TAC local nets were set up. Bravo Company M. Tac interfered with Battalion Tac and the Division CEO granted a change of frequencies.

f. On 19 July, a secondary frequency for the Battalion Tac was requested and received from the Division CEO.

g. On 24 July, the battalion set up a message center with teletype service at the battalion operating base. The Battalion Tac Rear was moved from Camp EVANS to PHU BAI.

h. Message center operations were normal for the month but involved changes of the message guard between Fourth Marines and Ninth Marines. Distribution of numeral and authentication codes was effected from the rear CP to the user. K-7 on line crypto and teletype equipment were returned to the battalion prior to the move to PHU BAI by the Battalion Rear. Upon establishing the message center in the CUMBERLAND area difficulties were encountered involving defective terminal equipment associated with the teletype circuit and maintaining stable radio relay shots.

~~SECRET~~AIR SUPPORT / DEFENSESECTION VIII

All categories of air activity, with the exception of medevacs, were at a low level throughout the month. This was primarily due to the limited requirements of the battalion which was static during the greater part of this period.

A very smooth and expeditious movement was provided by C-130's of VMGR-152 transporting the battalion from PHU Bai to DONG HA. Another very efficient troop lift was accomplished later in the month by CH-53's which transported Company C (Rein) from DONG HA to Camp EVANS.

Medevac support was in general good. The majority of medevac requirements were the result of encounters with booby traps. The casualties were picked up from secure prepared and non-prepared zones. Two members of the battalion TACP were medevacs and subsequently returned to CONUS.

The remaining activity consisted of short-haul transport, area reconnaissance, and seven CAS sorties were controlled by TAG (A).

PSYCHOLOGICAL WARFARESECTION X

During the period of 1 July to 31 July, the Battalion Psychological Warfare effort consisted of leaflet drops in the Cumberland area of Operations. The appeals mainly consisted of Chieu Hoi and rewards for enemy equipment, although there was one subsequent rallier in the Battalion area of operations. The Battalion exploited this by going into a VC area and extracting the ralliers family. To further exploit this, a PSYOP'S team was called in, and pictures, tapes, and a letter were obtained for informational material. Other leaflet drops were made over the area trying to exploit more ralliers.

The Psychological Warfare Officer attended a PSYOP'S course and a PSYOP'S conference at 244th PSYOP'S Company and III MAF. Future plans are to use an APT team in our area, also to exploit the rallier.
