late afternoon of D+1. All lifts were made with MAG 16, and MAG 36 aircraft. MAG 36 helicopters provided ~~Security~~ on D+2, D+3, D+4, D+5. All troop lifts were accompanied by ~~Armed~~ UH-1E Aircraft.

(2) Fixed Wing. Aircraft were requested and provided HIZ preps on D+1 in the vicinity of 038211, 068242 and 075207. On D+2 a fixed wing strike was requested in the vicinity of 115225 against troops dug in. The strike was carried out with two MAG 12 A4E Aircraft and controlled by Cottage 14 Bravo. On D+4, at 1510 when the Battalion encountered heavy enemy contact, air support was requested. Two armed HUE's reported on station and were almost immediately hampered in their operations due to a heavy rain storm that moved through the area. Numerous fixed wing aircraft from both MAG 11 and MAG 12 reported on station and commenced strikes at approximately 1730 when the rain storm ceased. All strikes were controlled by HUE Aircraft. The airstrikes continued until approximately 2045. A flare ship reported on station just prior to sunset and provided continuous illumination through out the night. On the night of D+5 illumination was provided at 10 minute intervals by a flare ship until 0430 on the morning of D+6. Continuous illumination was requested at this time because of a mortar attack on the Battalion position. Armed HUE aircraft were requested and conducted an air strike on retreating Viet Cong. Armed HUE's provided air cover for the Battalion for it's movement back to TAM KY on D+6.

b. Artillery Support. The artillery support of First Battalion Fifth Marines on Operation COLORODO consisted of preparation fires, H and I fires, blocking fires, observed fire missions, and illumination.

First Battalion Fifth Marines was directly supported by Battery D, Second Battalion, Eleventh Marines and by 4.2 inch Mortar Battery, Second Battalion, Eleventh Marines. General artillery support was provided by 155mm Gun Battery, 8 inch Howitzer Battery and 5 inch naval guns.

The most significant event of the operation occurred on D day plus 4 which was 10 August 1966. The battalion encountered and estimated two Viet Cong Main Force Battalions in the vic of 231241 at approximately 1500.

When initial contact was made, the enemy was too close to the Marines for artillery support. One mission was fired by Battery D, Second Battalion Eleventh Marines at the withdrawing Viet Cong. The rounds landed on target, but the Forward Observer could not see the effect since the Viet Cong were behind the hill.

During the night of 10 August artillery, and naval gunfire fired extensive H and I and blocking fires on the withdrawing Viet Cong. 105mm Howitzers, 155mm Guns and 8 inch Howitzers provided the artillery blocking fires while 5 inch naval guns comprised the naval gunfire portion.

The helicopter transportability of the 4.2 inch mortar was utilized the night of D plus 1. 4.2 inch Mortar Battery, Second Battalion Eleventh Marines provided two mortars for the perimeter defense since the location was out of range for other artillery.

The overall support of artillery was excellent.

UNCLASSIFIED

~~UNCLASSIFIED~~c. Communication

(1) Battalion Communications for Operation COLORADO was dependent on the AN/prc-47, AN/prc-41 and AN/prc-25.

(2) The AN/prc-47 and AN/prc-41 proved excellent to outstanding. The only trouble encountered was with the AN/prc-47 when a heavy cloud coverage prevailed.

(3) The AN/prc-25 proved quite dependable however due to great distances and mountains between stations all communicators depended on relay stations both ground and air. Also the Battalion utilized locally manned relay sights using a field expedient RC-292 and AN/prc25. The RC-292 proved most valuable.

(4) At all times the Battalion was in constant radio contact with the regiment. Communications was good to excellent throughout the Operation.

13 Commander's Analysis.

a. The major portion of the operation was relatively uneventful except for scattered sniper fire. However, on D+4 an estimated two Main Force battalions were encountered. It is firmly believed that these units were in the process of establishing an ambush, on well-considered terrain when they themselves were surprised by the lead elements of this Battalion. Security was well-out to the front, flanks and rear. As a result, it is felt that this enabled the Battalion to react properly to the situation at hand and to neutralize the element of surprise the enemy had hoped to attain.

b. The helicopter support rendered by MAG-36 was particularly noteworthy. During the late afternoon and early evening of D+4, these helicopters made repeated trips into the battalion perimeter to deliver ammunition and reinforcements and evacuate casualties. Almost universally these landings and takeoffs were made through intensive ground fire that could not be suppressed by the troops on the ground.

c. Artillery and Naval gunfire was well planned and executed. It is felt that these supporting arms prevented the enemy from massing and launching an attack on the battalion perimeter during the night of D+4.
