(1) Batteries in Support

(a) Direct support was provided 2nd Bn, 7th Mar by 2nd plat, 1st Armored Amphib. Co. Two sections gave support by indirect fire and one section accompanied the Bn and provided direct fire.

(b) General support reinforcing with priority of fires to 2nd Bn 7th Mar was provided by 2nd plat Btry K (Rein) 4th Bn, 11th Mar.

(c) General support artillery fires for this operation was provided by 1st and 3rd plats, 8" How Btry (SP), 11th Mar.

(d) Searchlight general support of the operation was provided by Det, HQ Btry, 11th Mar (Searchlights), and by Det, Btry G (Searchlights) 29th Arty (3 sections).

(e) From D+3, until conclusion of Operation, direct support for 2nd Bn, 7th Mar was provided by 2nd pl't Btry K (Rein) 4th Bn 11th Mar.

(2) Close artillery coordination between operating battalions was effected by a liaison net which the Bn Liaison Officers used to coordinate on directly.

(3) Sav-a-planes were cleared through the Regimental Artillery Liaison Officer on the Liaison Net. After D+3, sav-a-planes were cleared through the 2nd Bn, 7th Mar air Liaison Officer. When more than one battalion was operating, clearance again came from Regiment on the conduct of fire net.

(4) Artillery was used extensively for prep fires, on targets of opportunity, and H&I's.

(a) Direct support was provided 2nd Bn, 7th Mar by 2nd plat, 1st Armored Amphib. Co. Prep fires were used on D-day at the river crossing and Castillian 61 and Castillian 62 also used prep fires when moving into known or suspected enemy concentrations. It was not possible to attribute confirmed enemy casualties to artillery. Occasionally it was difficult to call in immediate artillery fire during the day when sav-a-planes could not be put in effect. When missions were cleared, the batteries executed the missions expeditiously. This operation was provided by 1st and 3rd plats, 8" How Btry (SP), 11th Mar.

(b) Missions on targets of opportunity called on those occasions when units of 2nd Bn, 7th Mar received fire from enemy mortars or from small arms and automatic weapons or when enemy forces were spotted. (Searchlights) 29th Arty (3 sections).

(c) From D+3, until conclusion of Operation, direct support for 2nd Bn, 7th Mar was provided by 2nd pl't Btry K (Rein) 4th Bn 11th Mar.

(2) Close artillery coordination between operating battalions was effected by a liaison net which the Bn Liaison Officers used to coordinate on directly.

(c) H&I's were used extensively during the hours of darkness. Between 20 and 30 H&I missions were plotted each day with approximately 2 rounds per hour fired at each target.

(5) The two LVTH 6's attached to 2nd Bn, 7th Mar provided effective direct fire support on those occasions when elements of Echo Company were taken under heavy fire from the enemy. The LVTH 6's, firing HE and Beehive rounds helped gain fire superiority and inflicted destructive fire on enemy positions.

(6) Total number of rounds expended in support of 2nd Bn
7th Mar.

Targets of Opportunity	307 rounds
H&I's	552 rounds

b. Air

(1) Close Air Support. A total of six fixed wing air strikes were utilized by the battalion on Operation Arizona. All strikes were controlled by a TAC(A) and FAC working in close conjunction. Response to Tactical Air Requests was entirely satisfactory with an average time of ten minutes to receive a fixed-wing flight on station. In most cases the type ordnance delivered was as requested. Three of the strikes were run in close proximity to friendly troops and were conducted in a highly professional manner with extreme accuracy.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ (a) 170730. One flight of F4-B's delivered 500 lb bombs on a ridgeline (AT 8349) prior to a sweep of the area. BDA: 100% on target/25% target coverage.

(b) 215145 - 160730. Three separate strikes were conducted on a hostile village in which approximately 30 enemy troops were observed (AT 871522) by F-4B, A-4, and F-8 aircraft, delivering 250 and 500 pound bombs, napalm, and strafing fire. BDA: 100% on target/75% target coverage. 15 KBA, numerous blood trails and bandages were discovered in and around village.

(c) 220030. Following a night mortar attack against friendly positions, gunship aircraft on station received heavy automatic weapons fire from hostile village (AT 8952). Three flights of F-4B's delivered 250 and 500 pound bombs and napalm, effectively suppressing all fire from the village. BDA: 100% on target/100% target coverage.

H&I's 552 rounds
(d) 221200. Six flights, consisting of F4-B, A-4 and F-8 aircraft, delivered 250 and 500 pound bombs, napalm and strafing fire in a closely coordinated air-ground attack against a hostile village (AT 8952). BDA: 100% on target/75% target coverage.

(2) Aerial Observers. Aerial observation is vital in this type operation. During daylight hours, an O1-C aircraft with an AO was on station 60% of the time. Maximum utilization of intelligence reports, control of fixed-wing air strikes, artillery plotting, and adjustment of mortar fire was obtained from the AO. Following night mortar attacks, C-47 gunships were requested and received to provide observation and to direct counter-mortar fire. The greater time on station and devastating effectiveness of their fire was considered to have been instrumental in preventing further mortar attack.

(3) Med-Evac. A total of nine med-evac missions were conducted to evacuate 69 cases. The importance of vectoring the helicopters around areas of known enemy fire and using the terrain to mask the helicopter from fire became quite evident.

(4) Resupply. The battalion received 29 resupply flights during Operation Arizona.

(5) Recommendations

(a) Whenever it can be foreseen that helicopters will be landing in a "hot" zone, an air officer or unit commander should brief the helicopter pilots on the tactical situation.

(b) All squad size and larger units should carry an ample supply of smoke to allow them to clearly mark their positions.

(c) Aerial observers should be extensively used. CONFIDENTIAL

(2) Aerial Observers. Aerial observation is vital in this type operation. (a) For days and nights, caution should be exercised in the selection of landing sites. Unit leaders must ensure that their men take cover during such operations to prevent unnecessary casualties. (b) Maximum utilization of intelligence reports, control of fixed-wing air strikes, artillery plotting, and adjustment of mortar fire was obtained from the AO. Following night mortar attacks, C-47 gunships were requested and received to provide observation and to direct counter-mortar fire. The greater time on station and devastating effectiveness of their fire was considered to have been instrumental in preventing further mortar attack.

(3) (a) LVT-5's were used by the battalion in the crossing of deep non-fordable water barriers. In addition, supplies were preloaded and transported in these vehicles and greatly reduced the frequency of pre-supply by helicopter. No difficulty was experienced by these vehicles in traversing the terrain of the operating area.

(4) Resupply. The battalion received 29 resupply flights during Operation Arizona. (b) LVT-1's (2) were used to some extent in destruction of trenches, bunkers and tunnels. No mined areas were encountered and therefore, the opportunity never prevailed for the use of the line charge.

(a) Whenever it can be foreseen that helicopters will be landing in a "hot" zone, an air officer or unit commander should brief the helicopter pilots on the tactical situation.

Heavy resupply of water by helicopter became necessary when water in the operation area became scarce or polluted. In addition, 240 cases of C-rations were also preloaded aboard the amtracs. This reduced, to an absolute minimum, helicopter resupply of class I and V supplies.

b. Maintenance. Maintenance support was available at the LSA. One 81mm mortar bi-pod was sent in to the LSA for repair and was returned in a serviceable condition.

c. Casualties. Casualty evacuation theoretically should have been outstanding. The LSA where the med-evac helicopters remained during day-light hours was only five minutes flying time from the operating area. Yet on two occasions when med-evac helicopters were desperately needed to evacuate emergency cases, over one hour elapsed before their arrival. This lateness in evacuation endangered the lives of those critically wounded and may have complicated their chances for recovery. Once the med evacs were picked up, they received outstanding care from the Medical Support Team stationed at an Hoa. The presence of the Medical Support Team undoubtedly saved the life of at least one Marine and contributed greatly to the recovery of others. 69 cases were med-evacuated on nine different helicopter flights during the operation.

d. Transportation. Transportation in the field by amtracs enhanced rapid maneuver. Transportation to and from the operation by CH-35 helicopters was outstanding with 35 Marines on each heli-team.

e. Communication. Communications were adequate to support the tactical scheme of maneuver. AN/PRC-25's were the primary means of communication, linking all tactical elements. AN/PRC-6's were used by the Yankee Platoon and sound power phones were used to link 81mm mortar crews with Whiskey Control. Difficulty was encountered in receiving replacement tape and long antennas when they were damaged by mortar fire. It was also impossible to receive a replacement AN/PRC-25 radio when one was damaged by enemy mortar fire.

f. Medical Evacuation. Medical evacuation was made to the Medical Support Team at An Hoa. The cases requiring further treatment were sent from An Hoa to the 1st Medical Bn for further treatment and further transfer if necessary. During one medical evacuation by helicopter on the night of 19 June six casualties were flown directly to the NSA hospital from the field bypassing the Medical Support Team at An Hoa, which had been alerted. This defeated the purpose for which the Medical Support Team was established; namely to render timely aid to medical evacuees.

14. Commanders Analysis

a. The operating areas assigned this battalion for the conduct of operation Arizona provides an excellent base and operating area for enemy forces. This is based on two facts with the first being that this area is excellent farm country, rich in rice and vegetables, which provides a readily available source of food to VC forces and the second being that the area is seldom subjected to operations by friendly forces which permits the enemy complete freedom of movement and activity. Each hamlet and village passed through contained a complex network of defensive works consisting of fighting holes, trenches and tunnels which indicates that this area is VC dominated and controlled and has been for some time. In Whiskey Control. Difficulty was encountered in receiving replacement tape and long antennas when they were damaged by mortar fire. The enemy encountered in this area was well trained, motivated and determined. He possessed a wide range of weapons including 60mm and 81mm mortars and anti-tank weapons. It was noted that he is very skilled in the employment of each. Medical evacuation was made to the Medical Support Team at An Hoa. The cases requiring further treatment were sent to the 1st Medical Bn for further treatment and further transfer if necessary. The terrain affords easy movement to troops and presents no difficulty to the employment of supporting arms. At this time of year, track vehicles can be employed effectively. The Medical Support Team at An Hoa, which had been alerted. This defeated the purpose for which the Medical Support Team was established; namely to render timely aid to medical evacuees.
