Part II

Narrative Summary

During the month of October 1968, the Ninth Marine Amphibious Brigade continued to fulfill its assigned missions. These missions included rehabilitation of equipment, training and replacement of personnel, training of aviation squadrons and contingency planning as the Fleet Marine Force component of the Seventh Fleet.

During 5-8 October BGen WILLIAMS visited 9th MAB units in-country and at Subic, R.P.I., in addition to conducting liaison visits to elements of TF 76. On 28 October BGen WILLIAMS met LtGen WALT and LtGen NICKERSON during a brief stop-over enroute to RVN and on 29 October met and briefed LtGen BUSE during his visit to Okinawa.

October was a relatively quiet month for the 9th MAB staff and elements of 9th MAB located on Okinawa and Japan. Revision of TF 79 Oplan 120-YR, the basic plan used for BEACH BARON IV in September, was completed early in the month and planning continued for the rehab of BLT 2/26 until the rehab was cancelled due operational requirements levied by III MAF for the BLT to remain in-country. Routine operations prevailed for the remainder of the month.

26th Marines with 3rd Battalion 26th Marines in Operation OWEN MESA and 1st Battalion 26th Marines in defense of the Danang Air Base continued combat operations in the Danang area. OWEN MESA terminated on 14 October and 3/26 remained in the Danang TAOR throughout the remainder of the month. Contact was light and few casualties occurred on either side.

Throughout October 1st Battalion 13th Marines remained in position north of Danang and provided support for 26th Marines. In a major realignment of command and control, on 1 October "A", "C" and Mortar Batteries, 1/13 and K/4/13 were returned to the command less opcon of 1/13 from 3rd Mar Div while K/4/12 command less opcon was returned to 3rd Mar Div from 1/13. This shift effectively reconstituted the artillery assets of 9th MAB.

VMFA-122 of MAG-15 is now in an operational/training status, but training has been restricted due to aircraft availability. MATCU-66 was not operational from 9-31 October due to deployment of most of the personnel to RVN during September, expeditionary equipment not being calibrated and controllers not being qualified.

During October, SLF ALFA participated from 1-16 October in Operations SWIFT PURSUIT II/SCOTLAND II/TROUSDALE NORTH/LANCASTER II in support of BLT 2/26. From 17-21 October the SLF supported BLT 2/26 in Operation SWIFT PURSUIT II/NAPOLEON SALINE. On 22 October the BLT commenced backloading and rehab of personnel and equipment.

During 1-4 October SLF BRAVO support BLT 2/7 in Operation SWIFT PLAY II. Upon termination of the operation, the SLF/ARG departed for Subic for rehab/upkeep followed by a port visit to Kaohsuing, Taiwan.

On 23 October Sub Unit #1 of Provisional Service Battalion was formed to provide a holding facility for approximately 1045 Marines awaiting transfer to RVN

Narrative Summary

During the period 1-31 October 1968, the G-3 Section continued in its duties of conducting training, contingency planning and supervision of matters relating to aviation, naval gunfire support, artillery and MARES/OPSTAT.

Following the execution of BEACH BARON IV CPX on 26-28 September, the G-3 staff reviewed results of the CPX to determine deficiencies and initiate corrective action as required. CTF 79 Oplan 120-YR, used as the basis for the CPX, was reviewed and corrections made as a result of lessons learned.

During the first part of the month planning continued for the scheduled rehab of BLT 2/26 on Okinawa. However, planning terminated on 15 October when COMSEVENTHFLT approved a revised ARG/SLF employment schedule deleting the Okinawa rehab and substituting a brief rehab at sea to permit SLF employment in-country late in October.

On 29 October BGen WILLIAMS briefed CG, FMFPac on current status of 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade.

Memorial services for SSgt S. MAAFALA, 1300673/0369 USMC, were held at the Camp Hansen Chapel on 4 October. SSgt MAAFALA was a member of S-2/3 Section of Provisional Service Battalion Headquarters. He died on 2 October 1968 as a result of an apparent heart attack. Approximately 40 persons attended the ceremony.

During the month of October, fresh water was delivered daily to the Kin T. B. Sanitarium, and the Kin Mental Hospital. This was done as an effort to supplement their normal water supply, which was in short supply. Personnel from Truck Company delivered one trailer load of fresh water daily to each institution.

On 14 October, the Data Processing Platoon #25 moved from building 2217, to their new location in building 2444. Additional space and more desirable facilities were provided.

During the period 10 to 14 October, two other units were re-located. Fleet Stock Account moved from 2217 to building 2444, and the OIC Organic Supply, moved his office from building 2208 (warehouse) to building 2217, which was vacated by DPP #25, and Fleet Stock Account.

On 25 October equipment and personnel from Provisional Service Battalion were provided to support fire fighting operations in a fire in Camp Hansen training area #2. The fire was of major proportion, and three (3) M-50 Water Tankers and 30 personnel were involved in supporting the regular fire department. The assistance was continued on 26, 27, and 28 October.

On 29 October, three officers from the Republic of Korea Marine Corps arrived at Provisional Service Battalion for an orientation visit. The three ROKMC officers were Colonel CHANG Chin Hwan, Colonel KIM Yong Baek, and Lt. Colonel OH Heung Yull. Colonel W. C. DOTY, Commanding Officer, Provisional Service Battalion, officially welcomed the visitors aboard.

The visiting ROKMC officers were briefed on the mission and organization of Provisional Service Battalion, prior to a tour to the various units within Provisional Service Battalion. The tour included visits to Fleet Stock Account, warehouses, GSM/Motor Transport, Maintenance Shops, and a trip to Electronics Maintenance Platoon, Camp Courtney. The visiting officers departed Camp Hansen for 3rd Force Service Regiment on 30 October.

LCpl Patrick J. HOGAN, Admin Clerk, Provisional Service Battalion, received two Meritorious Masts during October. The awards were presented by Colonel W. C. DOTY, Commanding Officer, Provisional Service Battalion, for outstanding performance while serving as admin clerk to Sub-Unit #1, and for commendable skill and duty while attached to 5th Communications Battalion during September.

During the month of October, commencing on 23 October, Provisional Service Battalion assumed the logistical support of Sub-Unit #1, comprised of 1045 officer and enlisted personnel. The support includes medical, messing, billeting, administrative, and a vigorous special services program. The training provided is geared towards operations in the Republic of Viet Nam. This training includes ordnance, jungle trails, identification of mines and booby traps, and other training incident to possible operations in the Republic of Viet Nam.

On 14 October, the pier at Red Beach was initially placed in service with the debarkation of vehicles and equipment from the LST Whitfield County. Subsequent debarkation operations occurred on 17 October from LST MSTS #1067. The pier at Kin Red was constructed by Army Engineers and is presently on lease to the Naval Port Authorities at White Beach. It is ideally situated for the conduct of operations involving Camp Hansen and adjacent bases and considering the unserviceable condition of equipment recently debarked at Kin Red, the use of this pier was highly desirable especially from an economic viewpoint.

Personnel and equipment from Provisional Service Battalion were used in both unloading operations. The facilities at Kin Red, its close proximity to Camp Hansen, the success of past operations, and the abilities of Provisional Service Battalion personnel to operate on short notice, are factors that prove the overall value of the pier. Future operations at Kin Red can readily be accomplished without assistance from Naval Installations other than normal liaison procedures.

9TH MARINE AMPHIBIOUS BRIGADE, 1968 -- When Kaiser Wilhelm II of Germany directed a Dutch engineer, H. G. Fokker, to synchronize machine gunfire through the propeller arc of German airplanes, he wrote Chapter One to the of air combat.

As the end of the year approaches, Marine All Weather Squadron 235 will trade in the last of the "gun fighters," the F-8 Crusader, for superior aircraft featuring rocket firepower.

With the removal of the F-8 Crusader from the Marine Corps arsenal that chapter which, for 50 years, pitted man and machines against each other comes to a close.

The first of the "gun fighters" were flown by American volunteers who blasted their way to glory in the famed Lafayette Escadrille. The "gun fighters" flew one-man, kill-or-be-killed missions across Europe where the pilot's skill was the only assurance that they would return to their squadrons to fly again the next day.

They flew by the seat of their pants with an intimate code of chivalry that directed them to entertain downed enemy pilots with an evening dinner before shipping them off to prisoner of war camps.

The men and machines of the Lafayette Escadrille were to take a back seat and let progress bring faster and more maneuverable aircraft into the next war.

World War II brought with it the British Spitfire that courageously defended Britain during its darkest hour by successfully harassing Hitler's Luftwaffe. Single-man fighters also escorted the Allied bombers which helped curb the German tide in Europe.

In the Pacific the Hellcat, Corsair and Lightnings were spearheading the advance of amphibious landings to capture Japanese strongholds.

This year the "last of the gun fighters," the F-8 Crusader is being replaced, once again by progress.

Perhaps guns are becoming obsolete in this day and age of rockets and missiles but to the Marines in the trenches and rice paddies of Vietnam the Crusader was an angel from the sky when she arrived on the scene with her guns blazing.

The F-8 Crusader with its 20mm cannons is a single-engine, one-man airplane. One Crusader pilot expressed his feelings for her by commenting: "She's a good bird. I'm really going to miss her."

The phasing out of the F-8 Crusader closes the book that Kaiser Wilhelm II opened. The Rickenbackers, Baron Von Richthofens, and shouts of 12 o'clock high settle into the pages of history.

9TH MARINE AMPHIBIOUS BRIGADE, 1968 -- Three young Marines of the Logistics Section of Headquarters, Provisional Service Battalion, 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade, received Meritorious Masts October 4 for their parts in combating typhoon Della.

The three, Sergeant Joseph A. Krzak (Assistant S-4 Chief) and Corporals Donald L. Jernigan and John C. Gregor (Logistics Clerks), distinguished themselves during preparations for and during the course of the storm, ensuring the safety of the battalion's men and equipment.

Making the presentation for their actions was Colonel W. C. Doty, Provisional Service Battalion Commanding Officer.

According to his citation, Sergeant Krzak, 20 year-old native of Chicago, Illinois, "worked tirelessly, disregarding fatigue" in directing and controlling the operation of the damage control center.

Twenty-one year-old Corporal Jernigan presented himself to the Battalion Control Center at the public announcement of Typhoon Condition II, and worked continuously for three days "without respite" prior to, and during the full force of the storm. According to his citation, the native of North Webster, Indiana's "knowledge of emergency plans, initiative and professional competence contributed significantly to the early and orderly readiness of the battalion."

CAMP HANSEN, OKINAWA, October 25 -- "See the pretty dog. His name is Spot. See Spot run." The little girl gleans each word from the textbook with some difficulty in pronunciation, stumbling little, and flashing a disarming smile before taking her seat, proud of her ability to read aloud.

Just a typical scene in any American first grade class? Hardly! This scene takes place here on Okinawa, and the little girl is an 11-year-old Ryukyuan school girl who is struggling, with excellent results, to learn one of the world's more difficult languages.

This young lady is part of Camp Hansen's semi-annual English Introductory Classes, offered by the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade's Chaplain's Office. Taught by Marine volunteers, the conversation course is offered free of charge to all Ryukyuan school children between the ages of 11 and 18.

The course is designed to supplement the children's basic school program teaching pronunciation and fundamentals of grammar. It is offered each Thursday evening for approximately one hour, beginning at 5:45 p.m. at Kin Baptist Church.

The program is one of several Camp Hansen Marines have initiated on their own off-duty time. Coordinated through the Chaplain's Office, the program has been in effect for about two years.

The program last week brought a response from the civilian populace for an advanced adult class. This class, once organized, will help interested adults advance themselves in Okinawa's modern, fast-paced society, giving them the ability to express themselves clearly in English, and according to recent sociological surveys, enhance their confidence to achieve their ambitions.

According to Chaplain George Fulfer, Brigade Chaplain and coordinator of the program, "It is our way of showing these people that someone cares.

"Not only is the program rewarding to the student, but fulfilling to the instructor as well. Utilizing this medium, each Marine who participates in the informal classroom finds himself learning the customs, traditions and culture of the Ryukyuan people.

"What's more, he develops a sense of accomplishment. It's the ideal situation for the Marine who wants to meet new people, develop lasting confidence or overcome his fear of public speaking.

"Even though well-established, the program is in a constant state of flux, with a constant flow of new teachers, students and varying approaches.

"What the program now needs are people who are genuinely interested in doing something constructive while stationed here. Interested individuals are encouraged to contact myself, Chaplain Fulfer, at extensions 28-4719 or 28-4832 for further information."

CAMP SCHWAB, Okinawa, Oct. 11--There is a project underway on northern Okinawa that both Okinawans and Marines might find interesting were they to visit the job site. It is a people-to-people project in the real meaning of the words --- with benefits for both.

The project is one of the largest community relations efforts ever undertaken by the Marines on Okinawa. It involves the leveling of several large hills, which, until a few weeks ago, were mostly pineapple fields.

When completely cleared, some eight or nine months from now, there will be a large flat area that will serve as the grounds of the Northern Technical High School and the Northern Industrial High School a few miles north of Nago, the island's third largest city.

In return, the Marines will have gained realistic training and practical experience.

A handful of Marines from the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade's (9th MAB) Regimental Landing Team-26 have been working, since August 24, on what has come to be known as the "Hilltop" project.

To really appreciate the project a visitor would have to spend some time there.

He'd have to get there quite early in the morning, before the sun had cleared the surrounding hills, in order to see the Marines first climb aboard their bulldozers and other heavy equipment.

If the visitor stayed with the Marines during the next 12 hours he'd sweat a little from the heat that builds during the day. If he rode on one of the bulldozers, he'd feel the hot blasts of air from the exhaust systems of the equipment, adding to the heat from the sun.

By the end of the day, when the shadows make the furrows of dirt seem deeper than they actually are, he'd finally see the Marines cease work. Only then would the visitor understand just how much individual effort had been expended that day.

But what would probably impress this visitor as much as these Marines from 9th MAB's 5th Engineer Battalion and 5th Shore Party Battalion is the graciousness of the Nago city officials and the way they have gone out of their way to give the Marines assistance where they can.

During the course of the working day the visitor would notice the canvas shelter set up alongside of the job site. It was erected by the Okinawans for the Marines' benefit.

An equipment operator who had just been relieved by his partner would go lie down in the sugar cane that cushions the ground beneath the tent and enjoy a cup of water or a soda from the portable soft drink cooler that is kept constantly filled.

At lunchtime the visitor would see the Marines head into the city of Nago to an excellent, air-conditioned restaurant, where they eat as guests of the city.

But it would be at dinnertime, after the day's work has been completed, that the visitor could really appreciate how gracious the Okinawan hosts are to these Marines.

They have living quarters provided for them in a Nago hotel. Each of the Marines has his own room. When they return from the job site and shed their dirty clothes, that will be laundered for them, they have a chance to get cleaned up before heading back to the restaurant for dinner.

But in the morning it is back to work for another 12-hour day. Late in the day, the local school children will arrive at the project to stare in wonder at the Marines with their gigantic, noisy machines. They will giggle with delight when a Marine stops work to joke with them.

The visitor to the project will have seen a people-to-people program as it was meant to be.

CAMP SCHWAB, OKINAWA, October 8 -- Twenty Ryukyuan farmers may now plant, cultivate, harvest and transport their crops to market more quickly than they ever dreamed possible thanks to a cooperative community relations project between the U. S. Navy and Marine Corps.

The project, an easy-access highway in Ishikawa, was born when the aforementioned farmers spoke to the Ishikawa Mayor, Mr. Hirakawa, about their inability to travel to and from their cane and rice fields easily.

After inspecting the situation, Mr. Hirakawa promised them his support and asked the Community Relations Committee of the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade for Marine Corps assistance.

They, in turn, contacted the 9th MAB Civil Affairs Officer, Second Lieutenant Steven E. Cox, for further action.

A meeting was planned at the site in question and Mr. Hirakawa, Lt. Cox and Gunnery Sergeant M. Vega, a demolitions expert of the 5th Engineer Battalion, 9th MAB, met and surveyed the problem September 2.

"The problem seemed easy enough at first," explains Vega, who later was selected to be project foreman. "Then I viewed the site! Initially we were told that the job would be to construct a dirt road 150 yards long by 25 yards wide from Highway #13 (the main road between Kin Village and Koza City) to the farmer's fields, and provide an elliptical 150-yard by 50-yard turnabout and loading point at one end.

"The main problem was the blasting, which turned out to be a tricky job. We had to move approximately 300 tons of solid rock from between the main highway and the cane fields in order to finish. The entire project took six men armed with 1300 pounds of TNT, one bulldozer (loaned by Camp Kinser Navy Construction Battalion) and one dump truck forty hours to complete.

"To complicate the situation, we had to make certain that none of the exploded rock hit any travelers on the main highway who could not be rerouted around the area. Further intricacies involved the safety of civilians who were training for their motor vehicle licenses at the Ryukyuan Driver Education Course, not 30 yards from the site itself."

Demolition experts Cpl. M. D. Mastbaum, LCpls. A. J. Erdman and R. Medlock, and Pvt. J. C. Connelly were called in to assist on the project.

"It all took careful planning and well-placed charges," Mastbaum reiterates. Each day we would blast 30 to 40 tons of rock, then a Ryukyuan civilian would take over, driving the TD-24 bulldozer in to grade or level the area. Next we'd load up the dump truck and Cpl. R. K. Dixon would haul the dirt and rock to a pre-selected dump site.

"Some of the rock formations weighed as much as 40 tons," he continues, "and stood approximately 25 feet off the ground."

Actual earth-moving procedures came to a halt on October 5, and the project was deemed a success by the six-man crew.

"It wasn't easy. Sometimes I thought we'd never finish," Vega recalls. "But we kept at it, and the men proved able to handle the situation."

CAMP HANSEN, OKINAWA, October 28 — When Lance Corporal Bruce Palmer of Maywood, California first joined the Marine Corps in September 1967, he, like many recruits, had visions of racing across a rice paddy to wipe out a Viet Cong re-enforced bunker singlehandedly, thus saving his company from possible annihilation.

Exposed to the emotional turmoil of Boot Camp at San Diego, the physical rigors of infantry training, and later, further training in Personnel Administration at Camp Pendleton, California, he clung wistfully to his dream.

Instead, the 19-year-old received orders to the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade Chaplain's Office late last March.

"At first I was a little disappointed," he recalls, "but I have since learned that there is more to being a Marine than firing an M-16 rifle and leading a patrol in the jungles of Vietnam."

Since his arrival, the new Chaplain's assistant has performed a variety of tasks, both during working hours and on his own, off-duty time. He has learned what every Marine must learn, that the Marine Corps has two equally important tasks, that of combat readiness and that of civic action. He has come to the realization that civic action, here, as well as in Vietnam, pays better dividends over all.

"With this in mind," he explains, "I became involved in the Department of Defense United States Administration Ryukyuan Island Education Program."

Palmer is presently the only 9th MAB representative participating in the program. Three nights each week since his arrival on Okinawa, he has taught English pronunciation to 25 Ryukyuan students at Camp Mercy, Okinawa for two hours per class.

"It wasn't easy at first," he says, "but I took the big step and committed myself to three classes a week. The first night was difficult, but each succeeding night became easier and more rewarding than the last. I soon found myself immersed in my job. My students displayed amazing interest in the subject.

"They were so adept at learning my native tongue that I soon began taking Japanese language courses at the Armed Forces Ishikawa Servicemen's Center to keep up and aid me in my class presentations. With this basic course, I have learned Ryukyuan customs and culture.

"I've come a long way in understanding myself and others since my arrival at Camp Hansen," he concludes. "I now know how much I have to learn."

CAMP SCHWAB, Okinawa, October 10 -- Armed with 800 pounds of trinitrotoluene (TNT), a case of electric blasting caps, several spools of wire, one pick, two shovels and one detonating device, the Marine demolition experts of the 5th Engineer Battalion, 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade are presently blasting their way into the history of Ryukyuan progress.

Completing a Civic Action road construction project last week near ~~Ishikawa~~ Ishikawa, this team started and has nearly finished a blasting project on the outskirts of the city involving the clearing and subsequent grading of a future housing project site.

Blasting holes in several feet of solid rock isn't child's play, especially with homes close by, but the Marines take it all in stride.

The project site, similar to last week's completed access-road, has none-the-less presented some new and interesting problems to the Marines involved.

"On the first day of blasting," explains Corporal Mike Mastbaum, "our explosions disturbed a huge variety of small animals and snakes in the area. For a while the mass exodus took us by surprise, but we soon became used to it."

Each day at 1 p.m. the seven-man crew departs from Camp Schwab to renew blasting.

"We've found that time of day best," reports Gunnery Sergeant M. Vega, project foreman, "since traffic on nearby Highway #13 is usually lightest in the afternoon."

Upon arrival on the site 'Gunny' Vega, Cpl. Mastbaum, Privates First Class James L. Ingram, Oris W. Denning, Wayne P. Swank, John P. Novakowsky and Private Joseph C. Connelly survey the previous day's work and break out the tools of their trade. Next they select a target, usually some boulder about 25 feet high and 30 feet in circumference.

A team of two men armed with pick and shovel begin digging a small hole deeply into the boulder and place a charge inside. The "charge" usually consists of a small bundle of TNT, carefully wrapped with friction tape, and armed with an electric, heat percussion blasting cap.

Once the charge is in place, the Marines cover it with a thick coating of mud, pat it neatly in place, and splice the cap's wires to those of the firing reel (wire spool).

Next they carefully insulate the connections with bits of cardboard tubing and walk back to the detonating device, trailing wire behind them. The detonating device is an electric battery, which has already been placed in a <sup>'Safe'</sup> ~~████████~~ area, used for setting off the charge.

cavender - 2

Signaling a Ryukyuan policeman who awaits on the main highway, they ensure that no one will be hit by debris following the explosion. Once receiving word that all the traffic has been stopped and the area is clear, one of the men connects the firing reel wires to the detonating device and another produces a small handle from his pocket. This he inserts into the top of the detonating device.

A moment's pause.

A slight twist.

"Wham!" The earsplitting sound of the explosion shatters the afternoon stillness, the ground rolls beneath one's feet and debris is channeled for hundreds of feet in a predetermined trajectory.

When the smoke clears and the debris ceases to fall, the handle is secured, the men stand up and walk over to inspect their work. Satisfied, they select another blasting point while a bulldozer grades the remains of the boulder into the surrounding crevaces.

To date the seven-man crew has accounted for the grading of 75 tons of rock and dirt. When they finish next week, the total ~~will approach~~ 150 tons. Not bad for a week's work.

CAMP HANSEN, Okinawa, October 14 — Four 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade officers were presented awards for outstanding service during informal ceremonies Friday.

Major Anton E. Therriault, 9th MAB Aviation Safety Officer and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, received his first Single Mission Air Medal with Bronze Star for "courage, superb airmanship and selfless devotion to duty" while serving as a helicopter pilot with Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron-262, Marine Aircraft Group-39, First Marine Aircraft Wing, Vietnam.

On a night emergency medical evacuation April 2 over Ca Lu, Quang Tri Province, the major "unhesitatingly" attempted extraction of a lone, injured Marine in a fire-fight below. After calling in flares three times and still being unable to land in the mountainous area due to heavy overcast and thick haze, Major Therriault spotted a hand flare marking the recovery site, landed and rescued the wounded man.

For wounds received July 11, he also received a Purple Heart.

First Lieutenant Edward S. Dawson, Assistant G-2, was awarded a Navy Commendation Medal with Combat "V" for his "tireless initiative and unwavering devotion to duty" while serving in various capacities with the 2d Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment at Quang Tri and Camp Carroll, Vietnam.

First Lieutenant Dawson organized defense of the battalion command post, coordinated resupply of field operating units and reconstructed both the Flame Thrower and 81 mm Mortar Sections after they sustained heavy casualties.

Major Russell E. Dolan was awarded the Navy Achievement Medal for his "professional competence, military knowledge, adaptability and sound judgment" while serving as an Administrative Inspector, Headquarters Marine Corps Feb. 26, 1964 - Aug. 15, 1968. According to his citation Major Dolan's ability "to quickly diagnose and evaluate a unit weakness... and his aid in constructing a guide for unit self-inspection" made quick, effective corrective action possible.

Lastly, Lieutenant Colonel John Hennelly, Operations Officer, received the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry with Gold Star for "distinguished" actions in Vietnam.

Following the informal presentation, BrigGen. Williams congratulated the recipients and delivered a short address: "Although we, as Marines, have made many such presentations lately, their volume doesn't distract from the services rendered, and greatly received from you and others.... These awards are given informally, and oftentimes taken lightly; but I would like to extend my personal thanks for the deeds you have all so generously given in the service of your country."

9TH MARINE AMPHIBIOUS BRIGADE, 1968 — "Hey, I forgot my soap!

OK if I run down to town?"

"No!" One concordant voice comprised of 13 Explorer Scouts of Post 190 rang out through the woods.

When Corporal Floyd O. Robb, Headquarters Company, 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade, and his Explorer Scouts of Post 190 comprised of dependents located at Kadena Airbase, had planned on camping out for three days without running to town — they meant it.

After three weeks of planning, scheduling, rescheduling, selecting, discussing and voting, Explorer Post 190 met at Kadena. They loaded their tents, blankets, sleeping bags, hatchets, food, water, ropes, square knots and laughter aboard trucks that were to transport them to a reservoir surrounded by pine-covered hills located behind Ishikawa, Okinawa.

Arriving on location, crisp clear orders were given by Scout officials. Eager hands, more than willing to pitch in and do their share of work, began streaming into the woods to gather firewood, dig garbage pits and plot the exact location of the area.

Soon tents began to appear. Cpl Robb moved from tent to tent making suggestions. "Maybe if you tie it this way," or "Wouldn't it work better if the line was run in this direction?" suggestions that kept the Scouts doing their own thinking, making their own decisions, yet at the same time guiding them in the right direction.

When the camp was completed, chores turned to horseplay. Finally time for the kitchen to open up was at hand. Can of beef & potatoes, franks & beans, fried ham and chicken were opened and set next to hot coals to cook. Anxious stomachs and watering mouths waited impatiently as the food sent off warm fragrances spiked with the pine cone smell of the forest. At last the young Scouts were able to eat in an attempt to satisfy the inexhaustible appetite that is inevitably created by the out-of-doors.

After the evening meal was finished and the utensils cleaned and put away the boys began to gather together in groups to tell jokes, swap camping experiences and talk about the adventures that were awaiting them the following day when they would explore the neighboring mountains.

The flames in the fire began to die down, the talking and laughter began to ebb and one-by-one the boys, with drooping eyelids, began to find their way to the sleeping bags that beckoned from the pup tents.

When the Okinawa rooster crowed its international language Troop 190 was already finishing breakfast, checking the water supply, cleaning the camp site and gathering the paraphernalia needed to compete in the games planned for the new day.

Stockings full of flour, that would leave a mark at the slightest touch, were handed to each member of previously selected teams. Packs were hoisted on the Scouts backs and they set off on their jaunt through the hills.

While the Post made its way up the slopes Cpl. Robb, acting in his role of advisor, was kept busy counting heads, checking first aid kits and giving a helping hand to those who packed just a little too much on their back.

The teams divided and went to their different areas. Once again the exact location was plotted and, in old Indian fashion, lookouts were stationed to try and locate the opposing team members. Soon contact was made between teams and captives were taken on both sides.

The captives were sent to the well-concealed dens where they were harbored for one hour. After the hour of detainment the Scouts were set free to once again roam the hillside in an attempt to capture their opponents. The game continued until the setting sun marked an armistice.

The Scouts made their way back down the hill to the main camp site. That evening they gathered around the campfire, jesting those captured during the day long competition.

Sunday morning, the last day of the camp out, found a band of reluctant Explorer Scouts "breaking camp" and picking up the odd pieces of trash. They were heading home to start another week of classes and books

CAMP HANSEN, Okinawa, October 24--In the 107 years since Abraham Lincoln first authorized the Medal of Honor for heroism in combat, 258 Marines have earned the coveted award.

Traditionally, the award has been given sparingly. The requirements are stringent. A gallant feat must be witnessed by at least two persons, be clearly above and beyond the call of duty, be at the risk of the doer's life and be the type of action which, if not done, would not subject the Marine to any justifiable criticism.

World War II Marines earned only 80 medals in four years of bitter, island-hopping warfare and 30 of those were posthumous. Forty-two were presented during the Korean Conflict and again the majority of them were posthumous. Thus far in the jungles of Vietnam, 16 Marines have won the honor and nine of them died doing so.

The record, however, goes to a nasty little conflict known as the Boxer Rebellion. For in less than two months during the summer of 1900, 33 Marines received the nation's highest award.

Among them was Pvt. Dan Daly, who was later to duplicate his gallantry in Haiti and become one of the few Americans to earn two Medals of Honor.

That war, though short, probably has no equal for sheer savagery. A group of Chinese rebels who opposed foreign influence in China terrorized thousands of westerners in China and laid seige to the city of Peking for nearly two months until an international relief force which included Marines could rescue the city.

On the way, fierce engagements were fought to the north where the relief force, consisting of Marines, Russian, British, Japanese and French troops captured the walled city of Tientsin.

Speaking of the valor of these first "old China hands," Maj. Littleton W.T. Waller, then a battalion commander, said, "I feel I can't do my men justice. They have made history marked with blood, still glorious and brilliant. They were the first in the field and, please God, they will remain until the last man, woman and child is relieved from the toils of these barbarians."

The battles with the Boxers marked the beginning of a new era in the history of the Marine Corps. It was not until the late 1940's that the last Marines vacated the China mainland and during those years thousands of Marines served in China. None, however, equalled the gallantry of the band of Marines who earned the nation's highest award 33 times in less than 60 days.

CAMP HANSEN, Okinawa, October 23 — Camp Hansen, Okinawa, the Marine Corps' gateway to the Orient, doubles as a communications gateway to the world, thanks to the efforts of four "MARSmen."

The term "MARSmen" is not to be confused with those little, green Martians that we've all heard about. In this case, it refers to four Marines: Staff Sergeant "Dave" Littleton, Corporal John Hury and Privates-First Class "Chet" Park and Dennis Gwaltney of Camp Hansen's Navy/Marine Corps Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS), located in Building 2545.

Open from 8 a.m. - 11:30 p.m. daily, Camp Hansen's MARS is one of four operating Marineunits on the island. The three others are located at Camp Foster, MCAF Futema and Camp McTeureous.

Transmitting close to 40 phone calls and 60 messages per day, these four men spend an average of 12-14 hours per day making people all over the world happy. To accomplish this task requires patience, technical "knowhow" and nearly $90,000 worth of Navy MARS equipment, plus another $6,000 of Camp Butler Special Services' equipment.

According to SSgt. Littleton, Communications Chief of the outfit, "Our job is basically to provide members of this base and Camp Schwab with a communications medium that will reach the continental U. S. Our service is not, by any means, limited to Marines; it is available to Navy personnel, civil service employees, and dependents who wish to use it."

Let's now take a close-up view of MARS, utilizing a fictitious character to make things less complicated.

Private Charles Youngblood, reporting for duty with the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade, checks into Camp Hansen's Transient Facility. During processing, his troop handler hands him a form and provides the necessary information, "Fill it out!"

The form is almost as concise as the explanation:

To: _____

Address: _____

Dear _____,

Have arrived on Okinawa safely. Will write soon.

Signed _____.

Our young friend looks over the form and grins to himself. "Wow! What will they think of next?"

The form, one of Camp Hansen's MARS' newest services to the Marine, is then collected and hand-carried to Building 2545 (the home of Hansen MARS' operations), where it is quickly processed and broadcast, via teletype, to another MARS unit on the West Coast of the United States.

That station receives the message and quickly relays it to its next point, the MARS unit nearest the message's destination. There it is processed and mailed to its final destination.

By the time Charlie has checked out of Transient Facility and reported into his unit, someone back home has already been informed that he has arrived safely and well.

But this is only the beginning of the services MARS has to offer.

Let's say that Charlie has a friend stationed in Vietnam, Japan or the Philippines he would like to contact. MARS provides an additional "hotline" to each.

In case of an emergency, Charlie may contact his First Sergeant, Chaplain or Commanding Officer, explain the emergency and request permission to place a priority call. Once approved, MARS/Amateur will place the call as soon as possible.

When Charlie finishes checking in, he automatically ensures himself the opportunity to place one ~~three~~ minute phone call each week to whomever he wishes in the states.

In order to accomplish this feat, all that Charlie need do is fill out a personal information card at Bldg. 2545, and notify the station in person within 24 hours of the actual time that he wishes to make the call. Requests can be made between 2:00 and 3:00 p.m. daily. Calls, called "phone patches" by the MARS MEN, can be made Monday - Friday from 7 a.m. - noon, and 9 p.m. - 11:30 p.m.

When the MARS operator is ready to place the call, he calls Charlie (using his reference card for information) and tells him that he will, or cannot, make the call at that time, depending on atmospheric and radio conditions.

Once the operator has established contact, he again notifies Charlie and places the call.

He transmits, calling fellow amateur radio operator Ken Hindleton in Phoenix, Arizona.

Ken, who works part time in a small Phoenix bakery, is blind. Working as much as 12-14 hours each day making phone patches, Ken has provided Okinawa-based Marines with continual, sustaining contact with loved ones back home for more than  $8\frac{1}{2}$  years. The MARSmen have all come to know him well.

Once contact is assured, the MARS operator gives Ken the caller's request, which, he, in turn, relays to a long-distance telephone operator, informing her that it is a collect call.

Aware of the fact that Ken is one of America's communications links with Okinawa-based Marines, the operator places the call quickly. Barring any telephone tie-ups, she reaches the desired party within seconds.

"Will you accept a long-distance collect call from a Mr. Charles Youngblood," she asks.

Receiving a confirmation, she next addresses Charlie, "Go ahead, please."

"Hello, Mom? (over)"

"Charlie! How in the world...?"

CAMP HANSEN, Okinawa, October 25--A constant search for errors, ranging from imperfect weapons to improperly kept service record books, presents a massive task for the 9th Marine Amphibious Brigade Inspector's office.

The Inspector crew, headed by LtCol. Rufino DeLaCruz, who is slated to take command of Regimental Landing Team 26 (rear) Nov. 1, is charged with keeping the 9th MAB running smoothly with as few mistakes as possible. Col. A.E. Coffeen is scheduled to replace Col. DeLaCruz in the Inspector post.

To accomplish its mission, the section conducts nearly every kind of inspection imaginable, then documents its findings to let both unit commanders and the commanding general know what's wrong and what's right.

"The paperwork is the most difficult aspect of this job," said Cpl. Mark Benetsky. "Every inspection is accompanied by reams of paperwork."

Benetsky ought to know. He has been working in the Inspector's office since it was officially formed last December and is due to rotate back to the States shortly.

LCpl. Mervin Showell emphasized another difficult part of the crew's work. "You have deadlines to meet and that can be rough. Sometimes after an inspection we have to work all evening."

The Marines in the section actually have two jobs. They not only have to be skilled as clerks to handle the routine office work, which includes processing request mast forms and traffic citations, they also serve as inspectors in the field.

Much of their work entails finding qualified inspectors and preparing inspection checklists. The inspectors come from the Brigade's general and special staff sections and they must be schooled on what to look for.

For instance, a record book inspector might spot check only 15 record books out of a unit containing 800 men, but he must get a thorough cross-section of the unit.

"Inspecting is a big responsibility," said Benetsky. "You can't be wrong. It's not possible to correct a marine in the conduct of his job if you aren't doing your duties right."

Once the actual inspection is completed, the real work begins for the section. Both informal and formal reports are given to unit commanders and a formal brief is given to the 9th MAB commander.

The job is a large one, but the section's Marines, including Showell, Pfc. Robert Goetter, enjoy it.

"Travel is what we enjoy most," said Showell. "We get to go somewhere once or twice a month, which makes all of the hard work worthwhile."
