PART II
NARRATIVE SUMMARY

From 01 February to 28 February the 2d Battalion, 9th Marines was deployed on Operation DEWEY CANYON. The area of operations included the southern Da Krong River, the northern A Shau Valley and a portion of Laos to include Highway 922. The main geographic character was one of high mountains and steep valleys with numerous rivers and streams. The primary objective in this area was an enemy supply route coming out of Laos and crossing into the upper A Shau Valley.

After conducting a helo assault into the area of operations the primary means of movement was by tactical march; securing the high ground while seeking out the enemy, his caches and equipment with saturation patrolling into the valleys. Night movements with platoons and companies was utilized extensively with excellent results.

On 1 February 1969 the battalion was attacking south along the Da Krong River. (see (FORD 3-69). "G" Company was to secure Hill 1175 vic (YD 107098) the high ground on the right flank. "F" Company was moving overland to secure vic (YD 163107) and establish a FSB to extend artillery coverage permitting the attack to the south to continue. "E" Company was initially in reserve to support either movement and eventually attack south and interdict what was believed to be an enemy main supply route vic (YD 130090). "H" Company was providing security for FSB Razor vic (YD 143186).

Beth "F" Company and "G" Company were successful in seizing their objectives however, bad weather and the inability to resupply forced the withdrawal of "G" Company from Hill 1175. "F" Company completed FSB Erskine on 12 February 1969 and the scheme of maneuvers was changed sending "E" and "G" Companies attacking on an axis of advance of 180 degrees without seizing the high ground on the right. Simultaneously "H" Company was relieved of FSB security and helo lifted into FSB Erskine. With H&S Company providing a portion of the FSB security on Erskine, "F" Company minus and "H" Company attacked on an axis of advance of 270 degrees. The road at (YD 165160) was found to be only partially completed, and after searching the area "E", "F" and "H" Companies attacked south seizing the high ground on the Vietnam-Laos Borders over looking Highway 922 while "G" Company was to remain on the valley floor.

"E" Company was ordered to move to Highway 922 establish an ambush and prevent further traffic. They were followed by "F" Company and with "H" Company remaining on the ridge the order was given for the three Companies to attack east along the road until it crossed the Vietnamese Border at (YD 191103). 1st with excellent results.

On 1 February 1969 the battalion was in a camp south of the Da Krong River. (see (FORD 3-69). "G" Company was to secure Hill 1175 vic (YD 107098) the high ground on the right flank. "F" Company was moving overland to secure vic (YD 163107) and establish a FSB to extend artillery coverage permitting the attack to the south to continue. This area, in the vicinity of the Southern portion of the Da Krong River Valley, was proven to be the main infiltration route for men and supplies into the Provinces of Quang Tri, Thua Thien, and Quang Nam. This area also housed assorted artillery bases and numerous small overnight base camps. A field hospital was discovered vic (YD 113150). This hospital was later identified as the 88th Hospital which is subordinate to the Rear Service Section of the 7th Front. Documents captured at the various arty sites identified the artillery units as elements of the K-32 Artillery Battalion. Other documents proved the presence of other units subordinate to the 559th Transportation Group, which has the responsibility of controlling the infiltration of men and logistics from North Viet Nam into Laos and South Viet Nam.

ENCLOSURE (1)

UNCLASSIFIED

UNCLASSIFIED

The actual transporting of troops and supplies occurs during the night hours. Convoys laden with supplies and troops run along Route 922 from within Laos into South Viet Nam. These convoys are usually preceded by a medium size tank (possibly a T-54). The trucks keep about 500 yd intervals between vehicles and do not exceed 8 mph in speed. The tank uses a searchlight mounted on its turret to sweep the road ahead and the sides of the road. The convoys traveling East to West, from South Viet Nam to Laos, were empty and traveled faster and without the large intervals between vehicles.

Route 922 is a well-cared for road. Its surface is hard packed soil but deeply rutted by frequent traffic. It looked as if it was in a constant state of repair. The road was 15-20 feet wide. Rock thrown into culverts and streams provided access across them. One-man L-shaped fighting bunkers were found along the side of the road. It is apparent that the bunkers were also utilized for incoming shelters. Numerous small truck parks, all well camouflaged, were found off to the sides of the road. A POW, from the 4th Co, 130th Bn, 4th Regt, 559th Trans Group, stated that his company and a sister company (3rd Co) were tasked with the maintenance and construction of adjoining segments of Route 922.

Another road, built by the NVA, was discovered running between coordinates (YD 102942) and (YD 133090). There were no signs that this road had been used by vehicles. Draws and streams were filled in with rocks to provide crossings. Trees and clumps of elephant grass were planted in the road for camouflage. This road wasn't completed but still in a state of construction. L-shaped bunkers were found every twenty meters along the side of this road. Kilometer markings as well as what appeared to be mathematical problems were found carved very carefully into trees along the side of the road.

Documents from this area consisted mostly of shipping and receiving records, requisition sheets, issue slips and other papers usually concerned with logistics. Gear found consisted of artillery pieces (122mm guns), tracked vehicles, trucks, maintenance gear and assorted individual weapons and 782 gear. (See Enemy Losses) all times medevac work was outstanding. In three cases, Battalion lifts were uncompleted due to hostile fire in the zones or a/c difficulties.

(2) 1700 personnel were helilifted in 8 tactical lifts.

(3) 37 medevac missions were flown evacuating 189 personnel.

(4) 36 helicopters were utilized by the Battalion.

d. Personnel and Equipment

(1) The Battalion has 1 TACP with 2 officers and 2 enlisted. 3 companies have 2 man FAC teams and 1 company has only 1 FAC man.

(2) All companies have only FM capabilities, the Battalion has limited UHF capabilities.

15. Artillery

a. Supporting Fires

(1) 2/12 (Rein) provided direct support for 2d Battalion, 9th Marines. Batteries utilized were "D", "E", and "F" (105mm) and August Nite, Greek Money (155mm) and "W" (4.2).

(2) General support, normally provided by 12th Marines, was precluded due to range considerations.

(3) Nature of missions fired include: NVA in the open, active artillery mortar and auto weapons positions, vehicles, enemy bunkers, prep fires, H&I's, and TOT's.

(4) Total rounds expended are as follows: 13,482HE, 362WP, 179ILL, 10HC Smoke, and 181 Firecracker.

(5) Artillery support during the entire operation was timely, accurate, and effective.

16. Communications and Electronics

a. General. The communications platoon is split into four sections at the time of this report. The rear consisting of approximately 14 men for operations of message center, switchboard, maintenance and radio, 2 men at a relay station at FSB Cunningham, the S-4 at Vandegrift Combat Base is supported by 6 men and the remainder of which is in Operation DEWEY CANYON at the time of this report.

b. Wire. Normal wire was employed at Quang Tri and Vandegrift Combat Base. A combined effort of 1/9, 2/9, and 3/9 is in the process of installing a hot line from 3d Medical Battalion to the Battalion area. This is being done because of the difficulty of getting through from 3d Medical Battalion, when the need arises.

c. Radio. Normal communications was established, using PRC-25's. When feasible, a TR-292 was used in the field by the Battalion CP. Log periodics were used from this station to the field. A log periodic is being installed at our relay station at FSB Cunningham. Results are not yet known.

d. Message Center. Message center processed 613 incoming and 12 outgoing messages. Normal shackles and brevity codes were delivered to all units that were able to receive them. A total of 363 outgoing and 278 incoming messages were processed by the message center on the Battalion admin net.
