

PHOTOGRAPHS OF NVA 110MM ROCKET FIRING SITE (ID 249752)

The attached photographs were taken by 12th Marines Aerial Observers-- Lieutenants M. S. LAFROMBOISE and G. N. SAMARAS--on 5 June 1968.

Shown are Soviet M-14-OF 110mm spin-stabilized rockets with a maximum range of 9810 meters.

This rocket site is the largest found in Northern IOTZ. It was discovered by a pilot from VM0-6 and subsequently attacked by artillery and air before the enemy was able to fire the rockets.

Emplacement of the rockets on earthen ramps is typical of the current NVA employment of rockets in this area. Orientation of the rockets indicates their proposed use against C-1.

Report Required: quarterly Report of Training Accomplished Format (Report Symbol Regt-1500-1) par. 10

1. Purpose. To provide instructions for the conduct of training within the 12th Marine Regiment.

2. Cancellation. RegtO 1500.1E.

3. Policy. The primary mission of the 12th Marine Regiment is to provide close and continuous fire support to the 3d Marine Division. All other tasks, including training, must complement this mission. Training conducted in a combat environment will reduce casualties, lessen supply and maintenance problems, and increase the overall effectiveness of the Regiment.

4. Training Objective. Success in combat is the primary training objective of this Regiment. Primary emphasis, therefore, will be directed toward technical knowledge so necessary to obtain this objective. The training should encompass subjects that pertain to combat and combat support activities in a counter-insurgency environment. Training should focus on known problem areas and developing capabilities where deficiencies exist.

5. Inspections. Battalions should conduct periodic inspections to insure that training requirements are being met and that the level of technical knowledge in the batteries is both at an acceptable level and is improving. Regiment will conduct unscheduled inspections from time to time to aid the Battalions and separate batteries in determining the training level of their units.

IV 3.1

Regt O 1500.1F
14 Jun 1969

6. Responsibilities. Battalion and separate battery commanders have the responsibility inherent in command for training within their respective organizations.

7. Training Program

a. A quarterly training bulletin will be published by this headquarters by the 20th of the month preceding the beginning of each quarter. The training bulletin will state minimum requirements in subject areas as established by this and higher headquarters. Those subjects listed in the Regimental quarterly training bulletin will be included in battalion/separate battery training schedules.

b. Each battalion and separate battery will publish a quarterly training program setting forth the commanding officer's determination of the manner in which the training will be accomplished. The quarterly program will include a master training schedule that may be prepared in an abbreviated form.

c. Each battery will publish an abbreviated weekly training schedule. The schedule will reflect subjects and amount of time to be devoted to each period of instruction.

d. Battalion and separate battery training officers will vigorously monitor their unit's compliance with training objectives. Only through constant guidance and help from all levels can the Regiment be assured that training, and thus, technical proficiency within the Regiment is at an acceptable level.

8. Planning and Types of Training. Training programs, to be effective, require planning and preparation. The following training areas require special attention in accordance with references (a), (b), and (c).

a. Individual Training. Each enlisted member of this Regiment will be trained in general military subjects and other Vietnam-oriented subjects as follows:

(1) General Military Subjects

(a) Weapons Training. Live fire training, at known distance targets, will be conducted at every opportunity to increase proficiency in the use of individual and crew served weapons with emphasis placed on principles of sight adjustment and zero of weapons. All Marines will be given adequate instruction to include as a minimum, assembly, disassembly, safety features, proper cleaning procedures, stoppages and common malfunctions and live firing of any weapon that is assigned for use. In addition, safety precautions in the handling of individual weapons will be given particularly frequent, thorough coverage.

RegtO 1500.1F
14 Jun 1969

- (b) Map Reading and Land Navigation
- (c) Tactical Training of the Individual
- (d) Field Sanitation, Personal Hygiene, and Buddy Aid
- (e) Mines, Booby Traps, and Hand Grenades
- (f) Leadership Training
- (g) Code of Conduct Training
- (h) Riot Control Agents
- (i) Nuclear, Biological, and Chemical Defense

(2) Drug Abuse

(3) Certain other individual training will be conducted having specific application to personnel serving in the Republic of Vietnam to include the following:

- (a) COATIP Training. See references (d) and (e).
- (b) Indoctrination of personnel rotating to CONUS concerning interviews with news media. Instruction should stress accuracy, avoidance of exaggeration and hearsay, and ensure each Marine knows why he has been in the Republic of Vietnam and the adverse effects of frivolous comments. Instruction should not seek in any way to preclude a Marine from speaking about his unclassified experiences.
- (c) Additional indoctrination training deemed appropriate by commanders regarding relations with local populace, customs and traditions of the Vietnamese, and the importance of Civil Affairs/ Civic Action programs, nature of the enemy and "Code of Conduct" emphasizing escape and evasion.

b. Technical training will be conducted to fulfill requirements listed in the MOS Manual for each rank and specialty. This training cannot be accomplished by on-the-job training alone. Continuous schooling must be conducted, particularly in the FDC's. Only unusually heavy tactical commitments should be allowed to completely eliminate some MOS training from a day's training schedule. In the FDC, a minimum of two hours of school a day (in addition to OJT training) should be the goal.

Regt O 1500.1F
14 Jun 1969

c. Correspondence courses. Correspondence courses in MOS topics can, and should, be an integral, important part of MOS training. Frequently it is impossible to have 2 or more men free simultaneously for a formal school. This problem can be effectively overcome through a closely monitored correspondence course program. Group study is another excellent method of employing correspondence courses. This command strongly recommends that correspondence courses be used extensively to augment training. See reference (f).

9. Schools

a. Schools located in WestPac are listed in Section IV of reference (c). Units desiring information or quotas to any of these schools will submit requests to this headquarters (ATTN: Training Officer).

b. A division-level schools program is not currently in effect. However, certain special training courses are conducted periodically. These courses are listed in Section IV of reference (c). Units desiring to take advantage of these courses will submit requests to this headquarters (ATTN: Training Officer).

10. Records and Reports

a. Training Plans. Battalions and separate batteries will prepare quarterly training plans as required in paragraph 7b of this Order. Three (3) copies of this plan will be submitted to this headquarters no later than the last day of the month preceding the quarter concerned.

b. Training Schedules. All batteries will publish abbreviated training schedules as required in paragraph 7c of this Order. Training schedules will be retained for the entire quarter and may then be disposed of.

c. Lesson Plans. A lesson plan (or, at the least, a lesson outline) should be prepared for every class within the battalion for which there is no printed outline or script (such as Ft. Sill notes). Battalions should require and retain a copy of all lesson plans or outlines in a central battalion training file. Consolidated lists of all lesson plans held should be included as an enclosure with Battalion Quarterly Training Schedules.

d. Records. Battalions and separate batteries, including Headquarters Battery, will maintain records of training to include:

(1) Subject/date(s)/hours of training accomplished

(2) Number of personnel attending subject training

In order to give the Regimental Commander a true picture of the training status of the Regiment, these records should be carefully compiled. Approximate figures are unacceptable.

RegtO 1500.1F
14 Jun 1969

e. Individual Training Records. Maintaining of Individual Training Records may be waived in writing by Battalion Commanders.

f. Quarterly Report of Training Accomplished. Battalion and separate battery commanders will submit a Quarterly Report of Training Accomplished in the format of enclosure (1) to reach this headquarters (ATTN: S-3) no later than the fifteenth day of the month following the quarter concerned. Units are reminded that training given as the immediate result of particular incidents should be included under training accomplished. In other words, units should credit themselves with all the training that is actually conducted within the unit. An example of this would be the instruction that is conducted in an FDC in conjunction with the conduct of a seldom run type mission.

1. Operation DEWEY CANYON challenged both the concept of fire support base operations and our ability to support it. The success of the operation answered the challenge. The enclosed report, enclosure (1), does an excellent job of describing the process from the viewpoint of artillery.
2. Enclosures (2) and (3) are forwarded with the recommendation that one copy of the subject report be enclosed therein and forwarded to the Commanding General, III Marine Amphibious Force and the Commanding General, XXIV Corps for information.
