Lack of direct exchange repair, parts accounted for sixteen (16) of twenty-eight (28) vehicles deadlined at second echelon. One AN/MPC-83 was received during the month bringing the battation up to the full five (5) rated by the T/E.

The ordnance equipment and maintenance situation showed improvement during the month. Weapons turned into FLSG "B" during the month experienced less down time and were back to the unit normally one day after turn-in. Direct exchange services for panoramic telescopes showed a marked improvement during the month with new sights being introduced into the system.

6. General Logistics. Shortage of individual equipment was alleviated during the month with the receipt of upper body armor, helmet liners, sweatbands and folding cots.

UNCLASSIFIED

At 1428H on 27 March an Air Observer from 3d Marine Division was taken under fire by an MVA 50 caliber machine gun. The AO was wounded. He called in a mission on the 50 caliber position but had to leave station. The target was located at grid ND827640. "G" 3/12 was assigned to fire. The battery expended a total of 48 rounds of H2, with negative surveillance. At 1605H a target described as active mortars, was reported by "E" 2/4 and "F" 2/4. A total of 251 rounds were expended by "H" 3/12 and "L" 4/12 in the suppression of the mortars.

At 0700H on 28 March "G" 3/12 and "I" 1/12 fired a 266 round prep fire in the XD906l grid square for "I" and "K" 3/4. At 1/15H I" 3/12 had completed their move from Fire Support Base Full r (Dong Ha Mountain) to Vandegrift Combat Base. "E" 2/12 occupied Fire Support Base Fuller.

Regiment at XD 6857; in the immediate vicinity of Fire Support Base Augoria, this location was confirmed by elements of 1st Battelion, 4th Merines receiving numerous enemy initiated incidents and incoming mortars upon their insert at Fire Support Base Argonnes 3d Battelion, 246th Regiment was in the vicinity of XD8261, approximately 4,500 meters north of Fire Support Base Neville.

The 246th Regiments artillery support unit, the 4th Battalion of the 84 artillery Regiment, was located in the vicinity of XD9365, approximately 6000 meters north north east of Russell.

Due to allied operations, the enemy has declined to make a stand and has been kept constantly on the move while fighting mainly delaying actions when forced into combat. The numerous bunker complexes located by friendly units and the quantity of enemy supplies, ammunition and food, captured with hittle or no resistance tends to substantiate the enemy is fighting a delaying action while trying to evade U.S. forces long enough to resupply and regroup for an offensive operation of their own liking.

10. Communication-Electronic.

- 1. The vajor effort during March consisted in maintaining reliable communications between the FDC's at Vandegrift Combat Base and Fire Support Base Alpine. A primary VHF/PM net was established using directional antennas. This net was double remoted to the 4th Marines FSCC for use in fire support coordination purposes. Because of the traffic load and interference on this net an on-call HF/AM net was established using the PRC-47. This radio was powered at Fire Support Base Alpine by a MRC-109 lifted to therefor that purpose. The function of the AM net was admin and reporting traffic.
- 2. Division radio relay confirmed to provide trunks to 12th Marines and 3d Division. Radio relay to reinforcing units at Elliot Combat Base was maintained smoothly until the end of March when generator problems required scheduled use.
- 3. The communications section supported two Naval Gunfire Spot Teams with radio operators and equipment during early March.
- 4. Radio communications for the 4th Merines FSCC was provided during March by a system of double-remoting the FDC radios.

Construction to improve office space and facilities continued at both Vandagrift Combat Base and Quang Triduring the month with a new bunker being constructed at Vandagrift to house the Se2/3 offices. At Quang Triconstruction was completed on a shed with a cement deck to house a locky generator. Also construction on a stand to hold a 3000 gallon water tank to provide the messhall with a more sanitary means of water supply was completed.

Despite bad weather hampering the helicopter resupply to forward fire bases during 20 days of the month approximately 65,000 rounds of 105mm, 1,800 rounds of 107mm and 6,500 rounds of 155mm ammunition were helilifted from the Vandegrift and Quang Tri LSA's to the Battalions forward batteries.

6a. Foca Services. The battalion messhalls at Quang Tri and Vandop ift fed approximately 75% "A" rations and 25% "B" rations during the month.

The battories at the forward fire bases subsisted primarily on MDI, supplemented by "B" rations. During the month the battalien messhall at Vandegrift began to prepare and send out to the fire bases hot meals as the weather and taction.

The remaining classes of supply were provided through the Battalions organic supply.

b. Maintenance Third and Fourth echelon maintenance as provided by FLSG B" was a critical readiness factor due to the time and transportation between the shop in Dong Ha and are fire bases. Contact teams were utilized to the maximum and Fire Control equipment was a problem throughout the operations. The panoramic telescopes, due to their age and condition, fogged continually in the high humidity and high attitudes at which they are employed. A continuous rotation of sights through the optics maintenance shop was accessary to keep the sights operational.

Leve of assets for the direct exchange maintenance program to function effectively, hampered the Battalians capabilities particularly in the communications and motor transport maintenance area. The long periods of time swalting direct exchange replacement parts, in additional to the loss of the equipment turned in, put an additional burden on the remaining assets.

6. Intelligence, Whe intelligence willort of 3d Battalion 12th Marines was discondenainly in two areas during the operation: i.e. tanget aquisition, and counter Bartery/ Mortar operations. Enemy rockets and mortars were active in the area of operations on a sporadic basis. By use of crater analysis techniques and FO reports, active enemy mortar/rocket positions were located and subsequently destroyed or suppressed. Programs of movement suppression and H&I fires were developed through use of Intelligence analysis techniques based on sightings, reported locations, Intsums, POW reports and known NVA habits.

The weather during the period of Operation Scotland II included the monsoon season which was characherized by sporadic and mild rains and heavy bloud cover throughout the area of operation. Due to these conditions, programs of day time H&I fires were stepped up based on the above mentioned sources.

primerily by convoy between Quang Tri and Vandegrift with occasional helilifts directly from Quang Tri to the Fire Support Bases. The fire bases were resupplied exclusively by helilift throughtout the operation. Adverse weather frequently limited resupply operations, but due to the mild monsoon sesson, the battalion was able to maintain the fire cases at satisfactory operating levels of supply.

Gritical atoms were obtained through the "walkthrough" requisitioning procedures. This system was most effective in the replacement of communications equipment lost during the months of November and December 1968

e. Governmications. Once operating forces of the 4th Marines and W and W Batteries moved into the Alpine area and nowhwest, great communications problems were encountered from the FDC at Ca Lu. The primary means of communications was established by a relay at Fire Support Base Cates which had good comm with Fire Support Base Gurkha, Alpine and Argente. Direct but marginal communications was established between Gurkha and Ca Ku but a much better shot was established between Argenne and Ca Lu.

With the increased range requirement imposed on the PRC-25 radio by these operations, this behavelion was one of the first to employ one directional antonian AS-2236 on a large scale. HF/AM communications was tried from Alpine but failed due to a battery resupply problem with the BB-451. As a matter of mention, Alpine proved the poorest base from which to sommunicate to the Ca Lu/Vandegrift area.

With the general shift eastward into the general area of Fire Support Base Neville, Russell and Fuller positions, demunications were greatly improved. For the first that the fire bases were linked to the FDC by direct fire channels. The site at Dong Ha Mountain (FSB Fuller) was extensively used as a relay for increased operations to Marketing Ridge area to the north and Con Thien to the east.

The displacement of the FDC from Ca Lu to Vandegrift provided a superior site for communications both to the west and to Dong Ha. The areas masked by Dong Ha Mountain remains the area of operations requiring a relay.

on the most part accomplished by helicopter from the forward elements to 3rd Medical Battalion located at Quang Tri. If for any reason hospitalization was required it was at Quang Tri. There were also nospital ships available at all times. "I" Company of 3d Medical: Battalion was located at Vandegrift Combat Base for the use of the elements at Vandegrift Combat Base and also for a stopover for extreme cases.
