NARRATIVE SUMMARY

During the month of March, "K" Battery, 4th Battalion, 13th Marines continued it's mission of general support of the 5th Marines and 3rd Battalion, 26th Marines and direct of recon inserts throughout the An Hoa area. During the month the battery remained under command less opcon of 1st Battalion, 13th Marines. From 1 March to 8 March the battery was opcon to 1st FAG. On 8 March opcon of the battery was passed to 2nd Battalion, 11th Marines where ti remained throughout the remainder of the month.

Fire support during the month was characterized by numerous counter-rocket/mortar missions, many of which were fired during periods of incoming. Other missions included observed and unobserved missions for recon teams, harrassing and interdiction missions, rocket supression missions and fires on intelligence targets. Surveillance included the following:

KIA.....	15
WIA.....	2
Possible KIA.....	35
Mortar/AA pans neutralized.....	4
Structures/bunkers destroyed.....	38
Secondary explosions.....	14

Throughout the month the battery continued emphasis on the construction of bunkers and strengthened defensive positions. Cross training of personnel continued to be stressed to insure maximum flexibility.

Personnel gains and losses during March were as follows:

Administrative losses.....	26
KIA.....	1
WIAE.....	3
MIA.....	0
NBC.....	0
Replacements.....	26

On 5 March "K" Battery had ten 155 Howitzers on position. The extra four were towed 155 Howitzers from Tango Battery, 2nd Battalion, 11th Marines returning from a fire base. They were placed in a position so that they could cover the battery perimeter in a direct fire role.

On 8 March at about 0530H An Hoa base received 120 enemy rocket and mortar rounds of which six landed in "K" Battery. One round landed in Gun #1 position resulting in two WIA's. They were cannoneers LCpl HOBSON and PFC MISSI who were medevaced. One of "K" Battery's five ton trucks, #345696, took a direct hit from an enemy recoilless rifle round. The truck suffered heavy damage to the left fender, door, windows and the interior. Also damaged was the radiator and the power steering unit. The battery fired at counter-rocket/mortar targets.

On 8 March at 0800H operation "Taylor Common" ended and "Task Force Yankee" was dissolved. At this time Battery "K" left the operational control of 1st FAG and came under the operational control of the 2nd Battalion, 11th Marines.

On 19 March at about 1430, a 122mm rocket hit the battery supply tent. One man was killed, LCpl KOPP, B. L. 2420026/2531 and one man wounded, PFC ARONHEIM, an 0844 who was medevaced. The supply tent was completely destroyed with communications and ordnance suffering damages to equipment. The battery returned counter-rocket/mortar fire.

On 20 March at about 0310, Battery "K" fired continuous illumination in support of "D" Battery, 2nd Battalion, 11th Marines which was under ground attack, expending 84 rounds.

On 29 March Battery "K" received an administrative working inspection and assistance team from Headquarters, 1st Battalion, 13th Marines.
