PART IINARRATIVE SUMMARY

Operation SCOTLAND commenced at 010001H November 1967

During the month of November the Battalion continued to execute its assigned mission of defending the KHE SANH Combat Base complex, maintaining security of Route 9 in the assigned operating area, maintaining, on a continuing basis, a SPARROW HAWK platoon and conducting extensive reconnaissance and combat operations throughout the assigned operating area. In the execution of the assigned mission, the Battalion conducted one company (-) size search and destroy operation, two SPARROW HAWK operations, 105 night ambushes, 13 company (-) size patrols, 49 platoon size patrols and 48 squad size patrols as well as establishing a total of 403 listening posts during the period.

HIGHLIGHTS

On 10 November 1967 the 192nd Marine Corps Birthday was observed by conducting cake-cutting ceremonies on Hills 881s, 861 and at the Battalion Command Post within the KHE SANH Combat Base. Adverse weather precluded delivery of a cake to Hill 950.

A thorough three-day search of the area disclosed no evidence which would substantiate the intelligence reports.

ENCLOSURE

UNCLASSIFIED

c. During the period of 15-21 November, Company D(-)(Rein) with representatives from H&S Co, 3d MT Battalion, Co A, 3d AT Battalion and 3d Engineer Battalion conducted a trafficability study from the KHE SANH Combat Base to Hill 881S (XD777438) in order to develop alternate plans for the resupply and medical evacuation of the hill positions. Results of this trafficability study indicate that tracked vehicles could not reach the hill positions without extensive engineer effort.

d. On 26 November, one platoon of Company D was dispatched to provide security for air-dropped material which landed approximately 2000 meters from the established drop zone. A convoy consisting of M-76 marginal terrain vehicles and M50A1 ONTOS was dispatched to transport the supplies to the KHE SANH perimeter. No enemy activity was encountered.

e. At 291020H November a platoon patrol from Company B received 10 rounds of 82mm mortar fire at XD768423. Counter-mortar fire was fired at XD768414 and the patrol continued. At 291143H November the patrol had reached XD771429 and again received mortar fire. Counter-mortar fire was again employed and Company D (-) was directed to move to the helicopter pad to begin transferring to Hill 881S(XD777438). At 291240H November the patrol received 10 more rounds of mortar fire at XD771429 and Company B (-) was committed in support of the patrol while Company D (-) and 2d Platoon, Company B occupied the defensive perimeter at Hill 881S. Upon joining forces with the patrol, Company B (-) began a three-day search of the area with negative results.

b. The Battalion's Class II supply levels remain precarious due to the limited aircraft capacity assigned to the support of the KHE SANH Combat Base and the slowness of the supply system to respond to demand. Certain items of individual equipment such as helmet liners, mess kits, canteen cups and first aid kits have become critically short in supply as well as equipment associated with the M911A1 pistol.

c. An ordnance contact team inspected the Battalion's major ordnance items during the reporting period. Some problems were noted in the areas of first and second echelon maintainance which are being corrected by providing specific guidance in the area of second echelon maintainance of weapons.

g. At 230745H November, Company B, on Hill 881s (XD 774427) received three rounds of incoming small arms fire from the south. The area was kept under surveillance by scout-snipers but no further contact was made.

h. At 271400H November, a Company B patrol, at XD 773426, found footprints of two people. The tracks were estimated to be from three to six hours old. A scout dog was employed to follow the trail but the effort was unsuccessful due to the thick undergrowth.

1415		51	201415	Fm: Co D - D(-) found an extensive bunker complex at 769414. Approximately 50 bunkers were located. The bunkers are 3'x4'x3' and covered with bamboo and logs approximately one to three feet in diameter and a one to two foot layer of dirt. The complex is positioned along both sides of the trail which runs generally northeast to southwest. The bunkers appeared to be at least 7mo old and numerous enough to support a reinforced company. The following items were found: 1. 2 60mm Caps, 2. 1 water can (enemy), 3. 1 cooking Pot, 4. Boiled rice (one week old). The bunker apertures face the north west and south-east and are therefore concealed from observation from the trail without close inspection. Suspect enemy Reconnaissance element used this sight recently. The bunkers were destroyed with entrenching tools. The the items reported in the initial spot report will be returned to KHE SANH, the boiled rice will be destroyed	S/F/R/M

1. SUMMARY OF ENEMY SITUATION:

a. Enemy activity in the vicinity of Hill 689 and northwest to Hill 881S has been characterized in the past two months by scattered sniping and reconnaissance. The following incidents have been noted:

(1) On 24 September a Recon element observed a large blue light at XD 779423.

(2) On 12 October one living bunker was found at XD 776426, approximately four months old.

(3) On 17 October an AO spotted two NVA in a fighting hole at XD 792416.

(4) On 28 October the re-supply helicopter departing Hill 881S received five rounds SAF from XD 770430 and XD 768432.

(5) On 30 October the perimeter on Hill 881S received two rounds of SAF from vicinity XD 775427.

b. The enemy has the capability of massing up to a battalion in this vicinity with a supporting arms capability including mortars, rockets and artillery, though this is not a probability at this time. They normally move through this area in small groups. In the past, the enemy has carefully avoided contact with our patrols of platoon size or larger. But this does not rule out the possibility of an ambush or sniper activity if they feel it will be to their advantage.

2. ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF INFORMATION.

a. Determine if the enemy is conducting a reconnaissance operation. If so, determine where, when and in what strength.

b. Determine infiltration and supply routes used by the NVA.

c. Determine the location of trail networks within the TAOR and the extent of use. Can the area be observed from the air?
