COMBAT AIR SUPPORT

I. Combat air support

a. Combat air support was provided by the 1st Marine Aircraft Wing.

(1) The following support was received:

On 4 April Company G was extracted from a two company operation by CH-46 aircraft.

On 6 April the Command Group and three rifle companies were helo lifted from Marble Mountain to three landing sites in the vicinity of BT237476, BT228472 and BT222466. Twenty four UH-34's were utilized and the lift went off smoothly after an initial weather hold which resulted in a two hour delay.

An A/O was on station along with fixed wing air cover. CAS air strikes were conducted during the insertion to prep areas directly to the north of the LZ. The air prep left six dud 500 lb bombs which were destroyed by ground units during their advance.

Normal resupply was conducted with UH-34's during the operation with good results. The evacuation of detainees by air was hampered by the large number of detainees and heavy helo commitment.

Medivacs were conducted by all units without difficulty.

A/O's were utilized during the operation to fix friendly positions with good results. A/O's were also utilized to recon areas of advance.

Flare ships were utilized nightly in conjunction with 1st Bn, 1st Mar with some difficulty due to poor communications.

The Command Group and three rifle companies were helo extracted from BT228472 on 9 April. Sniper fire was encountered in the LZ periodically throughout the extraction. A/O was requested to locate sniper positions and one air strike with AH's was requested to the north. Sniper fire was suppressed effectively and no more fire was received from the area during the extraction. Sniper fire was then encountered from the south. Gunships were requested to suppress fire. The gunships ran two air strikes to the south of the LZ. One air strike was conducted by AH's and the other by FH's. Sniper fire was still being received from the south during the last wave of the extraction.

The lift commenced at approximately 1100 and was completed at approximately 1500. Marine C-130's were standing by at DaNang for immediate loading and further transportation to Phu Bai.

At 1500 on 11 April Company F was helo lifted from the base camp area to hill 51 (vic YD519261). The lift was scheduled to commence

[REDACTED] [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] however, the 2d Bn, 9th Mar was being lifted at the same time and air was over committed.

At 1630 on 21 April approximately 80 personnel of Company F were lifted from hill 51 to the base camp area with no problems being encountered.

On 23 April 2 platoons and attached engineers were helo lifted to the Operation Shawnee operating area. Due to poor weather and darkness the remainder of the battalion consisting of 1 platoon, 3 rifle companies and 2 command groups were inserted on the morning of 24 April. CH-46's and UH-34's were utilized. A/O's were utilized to recon possible LZ's and areas of advance.

During April medevacs were conducted within the DaNang TAOR and on subsequent operations without significant problems.

PART II

NARRATIVE SUMMARY

The month of April was a very active period for the Second Battalion, Twenty-sixth Marines. The initial part of the month was spent in planning and preparing for Operation Canyon in the Danang area but otherwise that period was a relatively quiet one. It appeared as though the enemy was by-passing the area while concentrating their activities in other sectors.

Operation Canyon was an instructive operation for this unit. It was located in an area of high Viet Cong activity, in flat, sandy, barrier beach terrain. It involved a major helicopter lift of the battalion and challenged the battalion with the problem of evacuation of large numbers of detainees. Also required was close coordination with adjacent friendly units and with supporting arms. All of these provided instructive experience for members of the battalion.

Operation Canyon resulted in 12 enemy KIA's and 10 probable KIA's. 103 detainees were delivered to ARVN units.

Operation Canyon was further marked by the particular effectiveness of the combat air support received. Helicopter support was excellent and fixed wing support was very effective and readily available when needed.

Operation Canyon was terminated when a requirement developed for deployment of 2/26 to the Phong Dien area. The battalion was helilifted from the Canyon area to the Danang Airfield where fixed wing aircraft were waiting for a troop lift to Phu Bai. This lift and the ensuing motor march to Phong Dien was executed without problems.

The administrative and logistical elements of the command followed by truck convoy and a small administrative rear was established in the Phu Bai area. Initially this created minor problems because of a lack of supplies, equipment and facilities with the forward units. These problems were quickly corrected however.

Shortly after 2/26's arrival in the Phong Dien area, it was assigned the mission of the defense of the Fourth Marines Command Post area. Two rifle companies, Companies "F" and "H", and the Headquarters and Service Company were committed to this mission. Company "G" had remained at Phu Bai OPCOM to the Third Battalion, Twenty-Sixth Marines while Company "E" was committed to other missions in support of Fourth Marines' operations.

On 11 April 1967, Lieutenant Colonel C.R. FIGARD assumed command of the battalion in relief of Lieutenant Colonel J.M. CUMMINGS.

On 20 April 1967, 2/26 commenced a two day search and destroy operation. This was conducted in the hilly jungle country to the south of the Co-Bi-Tham area Valley and provided valuable experience in operating in this type terrain. Furthermore, problems of command and control were isolated and corrected in action situations.

On 23 April 1967, 2/26 commenced its participation in a major combined operation under the control of the Fourth Marines. This involved a helilift of the entire battalion into the hilly, jungle country in the northern portion of the Fourth Marines Area of Operations. Initially, the helilift was delayed by adverse weather conditions but the entire battalion was landed early on D+1 day. Initially, the battalion was assigned a blocking mission which required the occupation of static positions for four days. Following that, the battalion conducted search and clearing operations along its axis of movement out of the jungle. Contact with the enemy during this period was infrequent but the operation provided additional, invaluable experience in operating in jungle terrain.

There were reports of the 800th, 802d, 804th, 806, 810th and 2 unidentified battalions in the Regimental TAOR with the 6th Regiment's Headquarters believed to be in base area 114. Also numerous reports of rice caches, caves and bunkers in the area of operations.

SECRET

(3) The weather and terrain had no adverse effects on the operation.

b. Operation Canyon

(1) The weather had no adverse effects on the operation.

(2) The terrain had no adverse effects on the operation. The area was sandy with scrub pine up to 10 feet high, numerous water holes, paddies and dry vegetable gardens. Dikes 3 to 6 feet high with 2 to 3 feet wide paths on top crisscrossed the area.

c. Operation Big Horn

(1) Frequent thunderstorms occurred during the period which restricted use of helicopters due to reduced visibility. These storms were usually of short duration and did not adversely effect operations.

(2) The operating area was predominantly low hills separated by cultivated areas.

d. Operation Shawnee

(1) Low ground fog restricted resupply helicopters to late morning and early afternoon.

(2) The terrain consisted predominately of mountains covered with dense jungle growth. Movement was extremely difficult due to the heat, humidity, and narrowness of the trails. Visibility was limited to the trail and few feet on either side. The jungle canopy generally provided excellent concealment from aerial observation, and the dense vegetation provided cover from small arms in most cases. Other than the mountains in the objective area, no critical terrain features were encountered.

LOGISTICS

a. Supply activity during the month of April centered around resupply of units in field combat operations and in replenishment of damaged or lost equipment subsequent to the operation. On 8 April the battalion commenced the move from the DaNang area to the 4th Marines Regimental TAOR. The organic supply account was displaced to Phu Bai. Certain Class II items were sent forward to the battalion area while all records and office facilities remained in the rear. Supply activities in the latter part of the month focused on the implementation of "MOMS".

b. Maintenance within the battalion was good. At the end of April only two M-274's were on second echelon deadline. Receipt of spare parts continued to be spasmodic. Most weapons and communications equipment were returned to FLSG-A for repair. Those items justified as critical for support of Operation Shawnee were quickly returned to the unit.

c. Food Service: A battalion mess was established at the battalion C.P. A-rations were delivered daily by truck convoy from the rear. No ice was available for messing and electricity for ME-10 room heaters was not available until the latter part of the month. Meals were served daily with a light noon serving of cold drinks and snacks. MCI's were used extensively for troops in the field.

d. Transportation and roads: Transportation of troops to the 4th Marines area was accomplished by transport aircraft from DaNang to Phu Bai and by truck convoy from Phu Bai to the field. Organic supplies and equipment were transported from DaNang to Phu Bai by truck convoy. A convoy operated daily from Phu Bai to the 4th Marines area. Some difficulty was encountered at Phu Bai in the acquisition of vehicles necessary to bring battalion equipment and supplies to the field. Tactical movement of troops was by truck convoy and by helicopter. All roads in the area were controlled and maintained by the 4th Marines. One household truck was received daily for water resupply and trash collection.

e. Water in the 4th Marines C.P. area was a constant problem. The water capacity of the local water point was insufficient to meet the needs of this unit in several instances. On various occasions two to three hours were required to fill one water trailer M-107. Availability of shower water was generally not good. The battalion received constant assistance from the 4th Marines S-4 concerning this problem and the situation improved gradually.

f. Motor Transport within the battalion was improved by the establishment of all battalion vehicles into a central battalion motor pool. Vehicles were made available for comprehensive maintenance checks and repair. The battalion received a new Motor

[REDACTED]

Report Chief. At the end of April a total of six vehicles were on deadline. One M-422 A1 was on 3d echelon deadline. Two M-274A-2's were on second and three M-274A-2's were on third.

g. Embarkation within the battalion mainly concerned the displacement of equipment and personnel from DaNang to the 4th Marines T/O. Rifle companies and support sections were moved by plane and truck convoy. The rear battalion elements and equipment were transported north by three truck convoys of approximately forty trucks each. No advance warning order was issued by higher headquarters thus resulting in an entirely spontaneous movement on the part of the battalion.

h. Hospitalization and evacuation: Casualties from field operations were detained at Regimental Aid or passed to Company A, 3d Medical Battalion as necessary. Some evacuees were treated at the Battalion Aid Station and returned to duty. Evacuation was accomplished by helicopter or truck convoy.

5. Supporting forces.

a. Artillery

(1) Btry B, 1st Bn, 11th Mar provided artillery support for this unit.

(2) Artillery was used extensively during the operation. Orientation by artillery was utilized on numerous occasions, accurate map reading being difficult due to the flat terrain. Recon by artillery fire was also extensive.

(3) Response to fire missions was excellent.

b. Air

(1) On 6 April the command group and three rifle companies were hoisted from Marble Mountain to three landing sites in the vicinity of BT237476, BT228472 and BT 222466. 24 UH-34's were utilized and the lift went off smoothly after an initial weather hold which resulted in a two hour delay.

(2) An A/O was on station along with fixed wing air cover. CAS air strikes were conducted during the insertion to prep areas directly to the North of the LZ. The air prep left six dud 500 lb bombs which were destroyed by ground units during their advance.

(3) Normal resupply was conducted with UH-34's during the operation with good results. The evacuation of detainees by air was hampered by the large number of detainees and heavy hoist commitment.

(4) MedEvacs were conducted by all units without difficulty.

(5) A/O's were utilized during the operation to fix friendly positions with good results. A/O's were also utilized to recon areas of advance.

(6) Flare ships were utilized nightly in conjunction with 1st Bn, 1st Mar requirements. Flare drops were coordinated through the 1st Bn, 1st Mar forward with some difficulty due to poor communications.

(7) The command group and three rifle companies were hoisted retracted from LZ BT228472 on 9 April. Sniper fire was encountered in the LZ periodically throughout the retraction. A/O was requested to locate sniper positions and one air strike with A-4's was conducted to the North. Sniper fire was suppressed effectively and no more fire was received from the area during retraction. Sniper fire was then encountered from the South. Gunships were requested to suppress fire. The gunships ran two air strikes to the South of the LZ. One air strike was conducted by A-4's the other by F-4's. Sniper fire was still being received from the South during the last wave of the retraction.

8. CONCEPT OF OPERATIONS. Commencing at H + 1 Hour on D-Day, one company (Rein) lands by helicopter at landing site Gull 1, BT 237476, and establishes a blocking position toward the north, in its zone of action. Upon completion of landing this company a second company (rein) lands by helicopter at landing site Gull 3, BT 22466, and establishes a blocking position toward the north in its zone of action. Fire support will be provided by 1st Bn, 11th Mar and close air support aircraft on station over the objective area. Battalion Reserve lands on order in landing site Gull 1, 2 or 3 as directed.

9. EXECUTION. 1st Marines operation order 124-67 was received at 021400H. D-Day, H-Hour was established as 060700H Apr 67.

The Command Group and Companies E, G and H departed the Danang C.P. at approximately 060510H and arrived at Marble Mountain at approximately 060615H.

L-Hour, which had been established as H + 1, was postponed until approximately 0900 due to low ceiling over the objective area.

At approximately 0900H the helo lift of Company E commenced. Two platoons of Company E were lifted to landing site Gull #1, BT 237476. Two platoons of Company H were then lifted to landing site Gull #3, BT 22466. The remaining platoons of Company E and H respectively were then lifted in. Company G and the Command Group were lifted to landing site Gull #2, BT 228472. The lift was completed at approximately 1245H. There was no contact.

A blocking position was immediately established, the companies coming on line and linking up. Company C.P.'s were established at: Company E BT 241479; Company G and the Command Group BT 229473; Company H BT 220415.

Some difficulty was encountered in establishing an accurate position fix due to the lack of prominent terrain features.

At 1400H the CO 1st Marines arrived by helo and conferred with the CO 2d Bn, 26th Mar. At 1500H the Battalion commenced movement north.

At 061520H at BT224476 Company G had detained one individual about 30 years of age, he broke away and started to run north. His attempted escape was covered by an unknown number of VC who fired at Company G. Small arms fire was returned resulting in 1 VC KIA.

At 061630H Company G discovered a tunnel complex at BT224481. The complex was approximately 100 meters long in a hedgerow and treeline, running east and west with entrances on the north and south. The complex was destroyed with C-4.

At 061720H the 81mm Mortar Platoon which had been left in general support reported a security patrol in the vicinity of BT233462 encountered an estimated 50 VC at a range of 50 meters. An unknown number of small arms fire was received and returned. An 81mm fire mission was called and three rounds of 82mm counter fire was received at the mortar position BT228473. A platoon from Company G and elements of the Command Group were sent to assist. The area was searched with some expended .30 caliber brass being found but no other conclusive results. The action resulted in 3 USMC KIA and 3 M-16 rifles being lost.

At 061805H at BT224486 while Company G was preparing individual positions, one Marine cut his hand on a punji stake in a well camouflaged punji pit resulting in 1 USMC WIA non evac.

At 070919H at BT197472 Company H received 4 rounds of 60mm Mortar fire from the vicinity of BT199465. An artillery fire mission was called and no further fire was received.

At 071500H at BT 202496 Company H established contact and sighted approximately 20 persons carrying rifles at BT200499. Company H pursued and fired small arms, 4 were seen to fall. The remainder fled to the west. 1 VC KIA; 5 VC KIA (Prob).

At 071830H at BT205493 Company H engaged an unknown number of VC at BT204494. During the engagement 15 VC were seen to fall, 7 of these were observed being dragged away. A search of the area at daylight revealed 6 VC KIA. 7 VC KIA (Prob).

At 071545H at BT218499 Company G was escorting a detainee to the rear when he attempted to escape, and was shot and killed.

At 071600H at BT218507 Company E received 15 rounds of small arms fire from the vicinity of BT219508. Approximately 50 rounds 5.56mm were returned. 1 USMC WIA.

At 071645H at BT207498 Company H received what was believed to be approximately 25 rounds 105mm artillery. An immediate cease fire was called. 6 Marines were wounded, 3 were evacuated and three not evacuated.

At 080530H at BT208502 3 VC attempted to run through the lines and fired 3 rounds. The line returned fire at a range of approximately 10 meters. 1 VC KIA, the others fled to the west. Further search of the area at first light revealed one VC with a bad chest wound. Interrogation of the wounded VC indicated 2 additional VC were killed and dragged away.

At 080810H at BT215492 the Command group received 2 rounds of sniper fire from an unknown source resulting in 1 USMC WIA not evacuated.

At 081010H at BT215492 the Command group received 2 rounds of sniper fire from the vicinity of BT215492. An artillery fire mission was called and no further fire was received.

At 081310H at BT 189497 one VC attempted to run through the lines. The VC was taken under fire and seriously wounded. 1 automatic pistol was captured.

At 081350H at BT 213501 Company G received 1 round sniper fire resulting in 1 USMC WIA.

At 081420H at BT 210495 Company G received approximately 100 rounds small arms fire from an unknown number of VC at approximately 100 meters. Fire was returned and a 60mm mortar mission and an artillery fire mission was called. The initial contact resulted in 2 USMC WIA.

At 081725H at BT 206471 Company H was being resupplied by helo, the helo landed and received approximately 8 rounds small arms fire. Fire was returned, 1 VC ran from a bunker and was wounded in the leg, another individual attempted to flee and was wounded in the arm. PW's evaced.

Positions for the night were established at: Command Group BT 235478; Company E BT 240479; Company G BT 235478; Company H BT 216464.

A sweep of TAN AN (1) and (2), BT 236461 and 248464 was planned for 09 Apr 67. The sweep was started at first light and ceased about 0930H when a message was received from CO 1st Marines to prepare for immediate movement to Danang.

A helo lift was started at approximately 1100H and completed approximately 1500H.

During the retraction by helo sporadic sniper fire was received almost continuously. Artillery fire missions were called and two air strikes. The sniper fire was controlled but never completely halted. 1 USMC WIA not evaced.

The lift was completed at approximately 1500H ending the battalions participation in Operation Canyon.

11. ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS.

a. Supply. All resupply for operation Canyon was effected by helicopter from the LSA. HST teams were located with each company and with the command group. Resupply request came in from companies over the HST net to the S-4, who in turn passed them to the LSA for fill. Coordinates of landing zones and time of resupply were submitted later.

Troops initially carried a basic allowance of ammunition, four MCI's and two canteens of water. Water was readily available and usable with water purification tablets. With this combat load a resupply was not necessary until the second day of the operation.

b. Maintenance. None

c. Casualties, evacuation and hospitalization - Casualties were treated initially by corpsman in the field and immediately evacuated to the LSA. From the LSA casualties were further evacuated to NSA medical facility.

d. Transportation. transportation initially to the air facility was by truck convoy. All subsequent transportation was by helicopter.

e. Communication

(1) Terrain. Barrier Island is flat and sandy with little undergrowth, trees 15 to 20 feet high throughout the island.

(2) Equipment. PRC-47, PRC-25.

(3) Radio was the sole means of communication for the operation.

(4) The HF (PRC-47) was to be used as primary on the TAR Net with FM (PRC-25) as a secondary. Communication on HF frequency could not be established therefore FM was used on TAR Net. FM communication was good to poor.

(5) FM frequencies 40.00 to 46.00 began fading about 1600 and continued to depreciate until 0500. An RC-292 was employed during the period with some improvement in communications. FM frequencies above 50.00 were generally good.

(6) Maximum distance required to communicate was approximately 10 miles.

f. Medical evaluation. No medical problems were encountered.

12. SPECIAL EQUIPMENT AND TECHNIQUES: None

13. COMMANDERS ANALYSIS: Operation Canyon once again proved the capability of the Marine Infantry Battalion to land in the enemy's backyard and operate so long as supporting arms fires are available. The provision of a loadmaster by the helicopter unit proved invaluable both in the initial loading at Marble Mountain and in the extraction from the OK.

The requirement to detain all males between 15 and 50 and evac them by helicopter proved to be a great burden on the line companies and the helicopter squadrons.

The nature of contacts in this operation consisted of small units and snipers. The length of front assigned this Battalion left only one platoon as Battalion Reserve and stretched the units on line so thin that some VC were able to sneak through.

14. RECOMMENDATIONS

- a. That the area be swept again.
- b. That at least a full battalion be employed if stretched from the river to the beach.
- c. That civil affairs/CIT be assigned to process detainees when the problem is of the magnitude encountered in Operation Canyon. This unit should include MP personnel for security.

ENCLOSURE (1)

LOGISTICS

1. Movement. During the month of October this Battalion was required to move to Phu Bai. The move was accomplished by moving three Rifle Companies and H&S Company (-) and organic vehicles via air in one morning with the supplies and other equipment via truck on Rough Riders. Three Rough Riders of forty trucks each were required to move the equipment. One Rifle Company, the major portion of the Supply, Motor Transport, and the Mess Sections, and representatives of each of the other sections and Rifle Companies remained for security of the Battalion area, and for the loading and security of the equipment for which each section was responsible. The Battalion Embarkation Officer had the responsibility of loading the trucks in accordance with pre-assigned priorities. In each case the trucks had to be loaded over night to meet the scheduled departure time. Only a limited amount of all classes of supplies were moved via Rough Rider, the remaining dump levels being returned to FLSG "A". The movement was conducted with no difficulties.

2. Supply. a. Because of the movement mentioned above, several major items of equipment had to be left in FLSG "A" while awaiting repair parts. The Supply Officer returned to Da Nang about two weeks after the initial move in an attempt to recover these items. He met with limited success because the equipment requiring repair was still awaiting parts. It appears continued periodic visits by Supply personnel will be required until all equipment is recovered.

b. Operation Bacon was conducted during the month of October. Due to its proximity to the Phu Bai complex and due to continual movement of the tactical units, resupply was controlled from the Phu Bai complex. The maneuvering element sent its requirements via radio, stating the location of the pick-up point and time resupply was desired. Resupply was by truck due to the lack of acceptable landing sites.

3. Food Services. Alpha rations were served in the mess hall at Phu Bai for the evening meal on the day the field ranges arrived via Rough Rider. This was made possible by insuring that most of the cooks arrived with the mess equipment, the advance party consisted of several cooks who made initial preparations, and "B" rations were shipped via Rough Rider.

4. Maintenance. a. Maintenance efforts for motor transport were facilitated by deadlining all vehicles administratively except for the minimum essential for tactical operations and administrative runs.

b. Upon arrival at Phu Bai and prior to operation Bacon, all communications equipment and weapons were thoroughly inspected for required maintenance.

5. Camp Facilities Development. On or about 26 October 1966, a shower unit was installed in the 2nd Battalion, 26th Marines containment area after three persons were trained in the operation of same by Maintenance Co., Headquarters Battalion, 3rd Marine Division.

6. Motor Transport. See Maintenance.
