NARRATIVE SUMMARY

During the reporting period, the 2nd Battalion, 26th Marines was still established in the northernmost sector of the Division TAOR, the Area of Operations including HAI VAN PASS.

The Battalion Rear Command Post remained at the ROCKCRUSHER (AT 942747) throughout the period. The Battalion Forward Command Post remained at Hill 724 (AT 944920) overlooking HAI VAN PASS. Company E maintained its command post at LIEN CHIEU ESSO DEPOT (AT 937867). Company F maintained its command post at LANG CO BRIDGE (AT 886955). Company G colocated its command post with the Battalion Forward Command Post on Hill 724. Company H maintained its command post at Hill 88 (AU 807017).

The reporting period was marked by the completion of the Rifle Platoon Training Program and the return of four (4) full rifle companies to the field on 26 January. Increased ground activity was experienced as the enemy began probing and reconnoitring in preparation for his expected early February Lunar New Year Tet offensive. The DaNang-Hue train was derailed by command detonated mines on the 5th and 19th of January in harrassing actions.

The Battalion's activities, in furtherance of its defensive mission, were marked by continuous small-unit patrolling and ambushing. The Kingfisher package, a combined air-ground assault team directed against targets of opportunity in a chosen area of operations, was utilized by the Battalion on 25 January. While no enemy contact was experienced, the potential of the concept was easily recognized.

On 26 January, Major D.L. HUMPHREY relieved Lt. Col. DRUMRIGHT as Commanding Officer.

The close of the reporting period found the Battalion receiving increased activity around defensive positions. Organic resources were being redeployed to provide more close-in security for LOS BANOS FSB, LIEN CHIEU ESSO DEPOT and LANG CO BRIDGE, according to plan.

2. INTELLIGENCEa. Enemy Situation

- (1) At the beginning of the reporting period the enemy situation was somewhat obscure because of the lack of activity. The enemy concentrated efforts on gathering rice and supplies for the upcoming offensive, and avoided contact.
- (2) By the end of the reporting period, the intensity of enemy activity increased somewhat with several harrassing-type enemy initiated incidents. The movement, repositioning and build-up of enemy troops became evident as reports by friendly activities, surveillance devices, reconnaissance teams, and friendly indigenous personnel became more frequent. By the end of the reporting period, a pattern had developed which showed the enemy to be positioning elements of the Phu Loc Armed Battalion, the K4-B Battalion, Hai Van Engineers Battalion, T-87 Sapper Battalion and the C-31st Co. (Independent) in and around the Battalion Area of Operations for the expected early February Tct Offensive. The total enemy strength of these units and elements within the AO was estimated at 300-450 men, with a maximum of 750 men possible.

b. Enemy Initiated Incidents

- (1) On 5 January, the DaNang-Hue railroad track was blown at coordinates AT 858949 by command detonated charge, leaving a hole 6' x 4' in the road bed. The charge blew under the first flat car, causing the engine and the following flat car to derail. A fire mission was called for the pursuing Regional Forces in the direction of the enemy retreat with unknown results.
- (2) On 9 January, S-2 Scouts killed 1 NVA at coordinates AT 825075 as he was moving Southeast. He was alone and was later identified as the Loc Tu Village VCI property and training chief. 11,000 Piastres and several documents were found on the body. The Scouts also captured 1 caliber .45 pistol and some 782 gear.
- (3) On 13 January a Company H listening post in the vicinity of Los Banos Fire Support Base heard movements to their front. Following the sounds they heard Vietnamese yelling and shouting about twenty meters away, behind a small knoll. The next morning they found that a claymore mine in front of their position had been turned around and aimed at their position.

- (4) On 14 January, the S-2 Scouts killed 1 VC at coordinates AU 820089 as he dried seaweed. The Scouts recovered a USSR first aid kit, watch, hammock, pills, and a syringe.
- (5) On 19 January, the DaNang-Hue railroad track was blown at coordinates AT 833982. The front two wheels of the engine were derailed. The charge was command detonated by an enemy OP approximately 75 meters to the West.
- (6) On 19 January, Regional Forces found a mine buried under the railroad tracks at coordinates AT 835979. The charge was approximately 13 lbs. of TNT, armed by an electric blasting cap. Two civilian flashlight batteries were buried with the mine. Regional Forces disarmed the mine.
- (7) On 22 January, an ambush from Company H killed 1 NVA and wounded one, at coordinates AU 805002.
- (8) On 23 January, a patrol from Company E spotted two enemy at coordinates AT 912898. They lost the enemy but found five crude rocket launchers. The launchers were carved out of logs elevated by engineer stakes. They were destroyed.
- (9) On 24 January, two RPG rounds were fired at the DaNang-Hue train, both rounds missing. One security guard was wounded by small arms fire that had accompanied the rockets. Four enemy were seen fleeing the site.
- (10) On 26 January, at AU 844042, a patrol from Company G found 3 spider holes and one tunnel with medical supplies, food and bloody bandages.
- (11) On 31 January, Company H found 100 lbs. of rice and two fire sites that had been used in the last 72 hours.

c. Enemy Losses

- (1) Returnees 0
- (2) Casualties 2 VC KIA, 1 NVA KIA
- (3) Captured Equipment:
 - 1 AK-47
 - 1 Caliber .45 pistol
 - 11,000 Piastres
 - 1 first aid kit
 - 1 watch (USSR)
 - 1 Claymore mine

1 bag of medical supplies
100 lbs. of rice
 $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. of cheese
1 NVA Demolition Medal
1 Paymaster Pouch
1 Chinese Battle Dressing
1 NVA cartridge belt

d. Enemy Trends

(1) Other than avoiding contact during this period, the VC/NVA tried to strengthen their offensive posture by positioning forces and reconnaissance of friendly positions. They have demonstrated their ability to blow the train tracks and seem to do so for harassment to the Government of Viet Nam, instead of trying to obtain any tactical advantage in the area.

e. Weather Conditions

(1) During the first and second week of January, weather conditions from friendly operational standpoint were poor due to low ceilings, high winds and heavy fog. In the last half of the month, the weather began to improve, enabling infantry and air support activities to become more active and effective.

8. LOGISTICSa. Supply/Resupply

During the period 1 - 31 January, all company supply/resupply, with the exception of deployed platoons, was accomplished by truck. Deployed platoons were resupplied by helicopter. However, each time helicopter support was requested, it was usually 2 to 5 hours late, causing a loss of man hours and the delaying of needed supplies to deployed rifle platoons.

b. Food/Water

During the reporting period, three messhalls were in operation, one each at Hai Van Pass, Dai La Pass and the Esso Depot. All Messhalls served two hot meals daily and one hot meal was trucked to units not having access to messhalls. Supplementary rations of MCI's, "B" Rations, and fruit juices were supplied to units not having access to messhalls. Although some improvement was noted, water delivery continued to be a problem at Hai Van Pass. The 2000 gallons of water delivered was insufficient for the needs of that cantonment.

c. Maintenance

During the period 1-31 January, all first/second echelon maintenance was completed by personnel of this command. Third/fourth echelon maintenance on equipment/vehicles was done by Force Logistics Command.

d. Como Facilities

On 19 January, the Battalion Command Group (Forward) occupied a new 20' x 32' Combat Operations Center bunker at Hai Van Pass. Concurrently, the commanding officer occupied new sea-hut quarters at Hai Van Pass. Normal maintenance was accomplished on other existing facilities.

9. NEW TECHNIQUES

While not new to the Division, the Kingfisher - type operation was conducted by this Battalion for the first time on 25 January. The Kingfisher package consisted of 3 CH-46 transport helicopters carrying a rifle platoon, 4 helicopter gunships, a command and control helicopter, and one OV-10E observation aircraft. The operation began shortly after first light with a quick pass over the entire specified area of operations to observe any unsuspecting enemy activity. When none was sighted, the platoon was landed at preselected target areas to conduct brief searches. A reaction platoon was standing by for immediate reinforcement of the committed platoon had contact been made. Command was retained by the ground commander in the command and control helicopter, working in close coordination with the air air commander. While the 4 hour operation netted no enemy contact, the technique has proven valid, particularly over wide areas where enemy units work with more freedom.

10. TRAINING

- a. The last four rifle platoons received instruction under the Battalion's Rifle Platoon Training Program. On 26 January, the program was completed. The syllabus remained unchanged.
- b. Technical training was conducted at the platoon level in the 81mm Mortar Platoon, 106mm Recoiless Rifle Platoon, Communications Platoon, Service Platoon, and Flame Section.
