Mission was briefed for 0700 — LSA was in no way prepared to execute the mission at that time. Having completed the troop lift portion of the mission, we were then informed that the ground units would not be ready to accept supply until 1600 or late. It is my opinion that this hour was totally ~~unreasonable~~ due to the ~~it~~ proximity to darkness and the ~~strong~~ possibility that working birds would not be available.

In addition, when the resupply package was assembled at 1630, it was told to launch in spite of ~~PIREPS~~ of unsatisfactory weather in the working area. At 1810 the mission was again launched in spite of the fact that timely ~~PIREPS~~ and visual weather check at home field showed the area to be below acceptable weather minimums for routine resupply. I feel that approaching darkness and unacceptable weather in addition to ~~low~~ ^{high} crew time (5.0) were grounds for either cancelling the mission or releasing the crew from standby some time prior to the 1820 cancellation of the mission.

Respectfully,

W. J. Kerner
