PART III

SIGNIFICANT EVENTS

- 2 September: Dong Ha Air Field and the HMM-361 area came under enemy artillery and rocket fire at 0530H, 1107H, 1245H, 1340H, and 1515H. Several aircraft sustained moderate damage. Several huts in the working area sustained light damage. There were six WIA's.
- 3 September: At 0855H, Dong Ha Air Field came under heavy enemy artillery fire. Soon after the beginning of the attack, a round or rounds landed in the ammunition dump that was adjacent to the HMM-361 enlisted quarters. After being set off, the ammo storage area continued to explode and cook off rounds for eight hours. Due to the close proximity of the ammo dump to the enlisted huts, the living area was destroyed by shells and consumed by fire. The shops area was leveled and the officers huts sustained moderate damage. The damage to squadron aircraft was extensive from incoming rounds, shrapnel, and shells cooking off from the ammo dump. There were 46 WIA's, mainly as a result of the ammo dump going off, and not from the initial enemy artillery. Beginning at approximately 1800H, personnel of HMM-361 were moved to Marble Mountain Air Facility by CH-53's. As much squadron and personal property as possible was moved with the personnel. A night medevac crew stayed on the USS TRIPOLI to handle the night medevacs.
- 4 September: Operations continued to retrieve squadron property and damaged aircraft, and return them to Marble Mountain. The CH-53's did an unwavering job, and all gear and equipment was moved to Marble Mountain in 4 days. The squadron suffered the following WIA's:

Cpl Robert W. AUDETTE
