SP4 KERMIT H YOHO

That is a name that I will never forget. It is etched in my mind. I have lost comrades in WWII and Korea, and not one can I name.

I was assigned to DASPO in Hawaii in the early '60s, and at that time we were in a villa in downtown Saigon, close to the Palace and the Saigon Cathedral.

Being another mean old career Army Sgt, there seemed to be a bit of tension with the younger troops. I met Kermit Yoho and Robert Lafoon in an incident in the kitchen one Sunday morning and it broke the ice between us. That was my introduction to the two youngsters, age wise of DASPO.

I saw footage of Yoho's combat MOPIC coverage, and Lafoon's still coverage and was greatly surprised by the top work that was turned in by the two of them.

I had covered WWII with the 486th Bomb Group in England, but outside of sneaking on a few air strikes, the coverage was all ground, including V1 and V2 attacks on England. Then in 1950-51 I was a cinematographer and still cameraman with the 7th Signal Company, 7th Infantry Division. From Pusan to the Yalu River, we covered the ground and air war from severe heat, monsoons and 32 degree below zero and documented war horrors.

At the sunset of 26 1/2 years in the military, I guess it was a reward to be assigned to the BEST team of photographers in uniform. I met some civilian photogs in the "boonies" that looked down on military. But, some of them had many years of experience, and some on our team had a few months of army photo school and were thrust into savage combat. And not ONCE did any member of DASPO ever "bug out" of combat action and say, "I have a deadline to make in Saigon" like some civilian news media stated. DASPO covered the toughest fighting of the war, whenever our teams could go in with the troops. And they produced excellent pics, or MOPIC.

Yoho and I talked one of the team officers into going to Cu Chi for a few days to cover base camp activities with still and MOPIC coverage. The day after we got there, we went on a perimeter sweep that landed up with over 40 VC or people without papers. Two days later we went on a sweep through the Ho Bo woods. Yoho waved to me as he entered the woods with one unit, I was covering the other one. Upon entering the dense woods, we started to get sporadic sniper fire. One cave that the VC did not come out of was sealed with explosives. Concrete bunkers were concealed by houses erected over them.

We hit a small clearing in the jungle and an infantry Sgt asked me if I could identify the body of a cameraman that was killed. I climbed onto the APC and looked at the soldiers face. I said it wasn't my buddy. But when they got the call to "get the hell back to the base, they're coming out of the tunnels," I climbed up again. I looked at his face, then the name on his uniform, then his caption book, all of the pens, his DASPO patch, and I still said it wasn't my buddy. Then one of the infantrymen said, "Here's he camera that was by his side." As I looked at the MOPIC camera, I broke down. Maybe it was a hidden wall that didn't want me to say it was him before. I jumped down and was hitting a tree, I was told later with my fist. No air or artillery fire could cover us, as the spotter plane said the jungle was too dense. So I rode with Yoho and the wounded back to the base camp, then to the hospital to verify it was Yoho. Got a ride to the villa, and the young photographers were outside waiting for me. I gave them Yoho's gear and went to my room, and prayed and cried. "God, why him. He was leaving in a week for Hawaii. It was his first war. My third. Why? And I still cry. He was...as if he were my son. A beautiful young man, full of life..full of fun. They say, "Do not question GOD," but I still do. And, I still cry for Yoho, and pray for his soul. Three wars...and he is the only one I can name, of all the men, not boys, killed in wars.

DASPO? The top all around team of "shutter buggers" I ever served with. Bridham, Breedlove, Sullivan, Gentry, Lafoon, Graver, Baker, Garvey, McBride, Austin, Massie, Wade, Yamaguchi, Salas, Steinbis, Durrance, Batunmical, Abbott, Penny, Meyers, Dung, San Hamel and all of the others that made DASPO the best photo unit to cover Nam, and the best professional "gang" that I was ever with..I quote Bob Hope, "Thanks for the Memories" and I love you all..GOD BLESS. I miss you loads Kermit.....
