MARINE CORPS BASE
Quantico, Virginia

Guest of Honor

MAJOR GENERAL CLIFFORD B. DRAKE, USMC
Director, Marine Corps Reserve, Headquarters Marine Corps

Clifford Barnes Drake was born November 7, 1918 in New York City and grew up in Los Angeles, graduating from Fairfax High School there in 1935. A ROTC honor student while at UCLA, he was graduated in 1940 with a B.A. degree in Physics. He resigned a Coast Artillery Reserve Corps commission to accept appointment as a Marine second lieutenant, July 1, 1940.

At the outset of World War II, he was a member of the Marine Detachment USS CALIFORNIA and was aboard the ship on 7 December 1941 at Pearl Harbor. He later commanded the detachment aboard the USS ARGONNE and at South Pacific Force Headquarters. After completing Artillery School at Quantico, Va., in 1943 he returned to the Pacific area and took part in further combat on Roi-Namur, Saipan, Tinian, and Iwo Jima, with the 4th Marine Division.

He earned the Legion of Merit with Combat "V" on Tinian when, after his commanding officer was killed, he assumed command of the 1st Battalion, 14th Marines, directed the evacuation of the wounded and reorganized the battalion for further combat; and the Bronze Star Medal with Combat "V" for heroic service on Iwo Jima as commander of the 2d Battalion, 14th Marines.

Following the war, he served in the San Diego area with Troop Training Unit, Pacific Fleet; was Administrative Assistant and Aide to the Vice Chief of Naval Operations from 1948 to 1950; and earned his Master's degree in Education at Stanford University in 1951. During subsequent assignments, he served as Assistant Chief of Staff G-1, as a battalion commander and as regimental operations officer with the 10th Marines, 2d Marine Division, 1951-53; and was Head, Enlisted Coordinator Section, Personnel Department, HQMC, for three years. He completed the United Kingdom Joint Services Staff College in 1957, then served as Marine Corps Representative to the British Joint Services Amphibious Warfare Center, Poole, Dorset, England, for two years.

In 1959, he returned to the G-1 Division, HQMC, serving as Executive Officer, and later as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1. In July 1961, he became Commanding Officer, 12th Marines, 3d Marine Division, on Okinawa. On his return to the United States, he completed the National War College in 1963, and that August was named Director, Marine Corps Command and Staff College, Marine Corps School, Quantico.

In January 1966, General Drake was promoted to brigadier general and designated Director, Marine Corps Reserve. In August 1967 he was promoted to his present rank of major general.

Mess Night Tradition

Formal dinners in wardrooms afloat and messes are among the finest traditions of military institutions. The history of the Navy and Marine Corps are replete with examples of such occasions, undoubtedly a carryover from the British practice of formal gatherings of men in an atmosphere of dignity which they felt contributed to the unity and esprit of an organization. Similarly, this reasoning gave impetus to many such occasions beginning in the highly patriotic era of the early 1800's.

In 1816, a dinner was given in honor of Commodore Stephen Decatur and Captain Charles Stewart as reported by the National Intelligencer in these words: "The company sat down to dinner at five o'clock and spent the evening with the purest harmony and good humor. After the cloth was removed, many toasts were drunk, accompanied with highly patriotic songs and music by the Marine Band."

The same newspaper reported a dinner on July 4, 1816, as "a large party of gentlemen assembled to celebrate the glorious festival of the anniversary of American Independence ... Accompanied with songs and music from the Marine Band, and announced by repeated discharges of artillery, many toasts were drunk". Some have suggested that this is the origin of "having a shot".

Similar affairs were noted for many years thereafter, always with Marine Officers, Marine Artillery, and the Marine Band in attendance. However, these dinners were not traditional Marine Corps Mess Nights as we know them today, although they contributed much of the fostering influence.

The only significant mess nights during the 19th Century which were sponsored by the Corps for her officers were at the Old Center House, Marine Barracks, Washington, which must have seen some gay evenings in the old days. The Evening Star of Washington, D.C. on February 16, 1908, printed a large photograph of the old Center House (then torn down) with the following caption; "Tales are told of nights of revelry, when the wine flowed and souls of great men, freed from the cares of state, allowed their wit and spirit to soar unhampered while gracing the Officer's Mess beneath the beams of the old house. The rafters which once rang with the laughter of Presidents now lie in grim disorder."

Fortunately, the tradition is carried on and each summer or early fall, Marine Barracks, Washington, Center House Mess is honored by the presence of the Commandant at a Mess Night. The general routine which is a good guide line for mess nights, subject to modification as required, is outlined below. The dress is Mess dress, blues, whites; or black tie for civilian guests. The affair is always stag. At 1930, the officers assemble in the anteroom for cocktails and to meet the Commandant and guests. At 2000 a drummer and a fifer, smartly turned out in Blues, sound The Roast Beef of Old England announcing dinner. All proceed to their places in the dining room, remain standing behind their chairs until a short Grace is pronounced, after which all are seated and the first course is served. Officers are seated according to rank; the Commanding Officer or another who is designated to act as President of the Mess is at the head of the table, the junior lieutenant at the other end. The ranking guest is served first, the serving then continues counter-clockwise, not according to rank. Simultaneously the other side of the table is served, beginning with the officer seated to the right of the junior lieutenant.

The long table is not covered with a cloth. Instead, narrow runners are placed along both sides of it to lay the table service. This permits the soft glow of the candlelight and the silver candelabra to be reflected on the polished mahogany as well as facilitating the complete removal of all the table service, including the runners themselves, before the port is passed. Two or three table wines may accompany the meal, depending on the number of courses. The dinner ends with a savory, rather than a sweet dessert, since the latter spoils the taste of port.

The table is then cleared. Smoking ceases until after the formal toasts. Many messes do not smoke at any time during the dinner, so as not to acquire an insensitive taste for the excellent food. A wine glass is placed before each officer. The port is passed, each officer pouring from the decanter and passing it to the left until all the glasses are charged. More than one decanter may be passed simultaneously starting at various points at a large dinner, in order to shorten this interval and obviate the necessity of refilling them.

The Commanding Officer or President of the Mess then rises to propose the first toast. "Mr. Vice, the President". The junior lieutenant then rises, glass in hand, waits until all have risen, and gives the toast. "Gentlemen, the President of the United States". All repeat, "The President", drink, and again seat themselves. After a pause of two or three minutes a second toast may be drunk. If a foreign officer is present, the second toast is always to the sovereign or president of his country. Lacking such a guest the second toast is usually to the United States Marine Corps. More toasts may be drunk; for instance, it is necessary to do so should foreign officers of more than one country be present, but it is well to limit them as far as possible. If the guest of honor is a general officer of the Marine Corps, and it has been arranged for him to speak, it is appropriate for him to respond to the toast of the Corps. Non-drinkers turn over wine glasses during dinner and toast with an empty glass.

With the formal toasts over, ash trays reappear on the table. Coffee is served. Also cigars and cigarettes. The port is passed again. Conversation becomes general and the atmosphere becomes informal. All remain at the table until the senior officers and guests arise.

The remainder of the evening may be spent more or less as impulse and ingenuity suggest. Singing is always in order, and by this time many officers are often pleasantly surprised to discover how really well they can produce harmony. There are also any number of parlor games and feats of strength, some of which are of such a nature that the temporary removal of dress coats and even shoes may be advisable.

Anyone should feel free to leave at any time after a decent interval. If the usual custom is observed, that no one is at liberty to leave prior to the departure of the Senior Officer, it will place the latter in an awkward position. He will feel he must leave early, even though his inclination is to stay on, in order not to inconvenience those who may have important duties the following day and wish to leave at an early hour.

Circumstances will frequently not permit a mess night with all formalities as to uniform, catering or table service as outlined here. This should not deter an organization, however, and adaptations should be made to meet the "situation and terrain". Do not, in particular, let yourself become stupified by the apparent formality of mess nights; the object is the pleasure and camaraderie of all hands.

So, as the Revolutionary War recruiting poster of the Continental Marines stated, (the latter portion of which is often used as the final "bottoms-up" toast of the evening to the Corps)... "Take courage then, seize the fortune that awaits you, repair to the Marine Rendezvous where, in a flowing bowl of punch, and three times three, you shall drink, "Long Live the United States, and success to the Marines".

Schedule of Events

1845 Remainder of Company arrives.

Commanding Officer of The Basic School arrives. Colonel Haffey is met at his car by the Mess President. Upon his signal the bar opens.

1900 Guest of Honor arrives. He is met by Colonel Haffey, the Mess President and Vice President, who escort him into the entrance to meet Major Alexander.

1920 Chimes sounded. Last opportunity to make head call.

1930 Call to Dinner. The Drum and Bugle Corps plays Officers' Call, followed by drum rolls. When the Call to Dinner is sounded, the company and guests move to the Hanson Room immediately. No drinks or cigarettes are taken into the dining room. Officers to be seated at the head table will wait in the Hawkins Lounge until the signal is given that everyone is in position, at which time they will move into the Hanson Room. All remain standing until Grace is said .

Dinner is served.

After-dinner cigars and port are served. Members pour for themselves. Wine decanters are passed clockwise.

Toasts. The Mess President stands, raps for silence and says, "Gentlemen, a toast." Everyone stands and the designated toast is made. Toasts are made, at short intervals, to the heads of state of the foreign countries represented, and to the United States Services represented. Members remain standing until the music following each toast has been completed.

Introduction of Guests. The Company applauds each guest from their seats.

Toast to the President. If a foreign guest is present, the Mess President calls the senior foreign guest by name. The guest rises and proposes a toast "To the President of the United States." If no foreign guest is present, the Mess President proposes the toast.

Remarks by the Guest of Honor. All stand and applaud when the Guest of Honor is introduced, and again at the conclusion of his remarks.

The Basic School Military Chorus sings. The last selection is the Marines' Hymn. The Company is invited to sing the last stanza.

Toast to the Marine Corps. Immediately following the Marines' Hymn, the Mess President proposes a toast "To the United States Marine Corps." All glasses are drained with this toast.

Mess adjourns to the bar. The Mess President announces, "Gentlemen, will you join me at the bar?" The head table exits first, followed by the other guests and escorts. When all guests have moved out of the Hanson Room, the remainder of the Company exits.

Guest of Honor leaves. Colonel Haffey, Major Alexander and the Mess President accompany Guest of Honor to his car.

The Commanding Officer of The Basic School leaves. Major Alexander and Mess President accompany Colonel Haffey to the door when he departs.

The Marines' Hymn

From the Halls of Montezuma,
To the shores of Tripoli;
We fight our country's battles
In the air, on land, and sea;
First to fight for right and freedom
And to keep our honor clean;
We are proud to claim the title of
UNITED STATES MARINE.

Our flag's unfurled to every breeze
From dawn to setting sun;
We have fought in every clime and place
Where we could take a gun;
In the snow of far off northern lands
And in sunny tropic scenes;
You will find us always on the job—
THE UNITED STATES MARINES.

Here's health to you and to our Corps
Which we are proud to serve;
In many a strife we've fought for life
And never lost our nerve;
If the Army and the Navy
Ever look on Heaven's scenes;
They will find the streets are guarded by
UNITED STATES MARINES.
