14. (C) Commander's Analysis:

a. Lessons Learned:

(1) Item: Organization of a Provisional Reserve Company.

(a) Discussion: Immediately prior to LAMAR PLAIN, during the period 12 May - 14 May, virtually all line companies of the battalion were in contact with the enemy which precluded availability of an immediate reserve force for the battalion. An additional rifle company may well have assisted materially in the relief of A company.

(b) Solution: On 24 June 1969 a Provisional Reserve Company (PROSERVCO) of battalion trains personnel was organized. This 117 man company was exercised in the vicinity of LZ Professional during the period 27 June - 28 June. Provisional Reserve Company will receive 16 hours training in weapons, grenades, claymore, first aid, map reading and airmobile operations each month. Additionally a 24 hour FTX will be scheduled for PROSERVCO. This company can be employed for up to 3 days without severely degrading logistical and administrative support. This lightly armed (99 M-16's, 12 M-79 grenade launchers, 12 laws) company can be employed to relieve a rifle company then on firebase security for use elsewhere; establish an LZ through which a besieged company could be extracted, or relieve/reinforce a rifle company in jeopardy.
