BATTALION NEWS

September arrived with a convincing sample of how wet the monsoon season can be in Duc Pho. Headquarters' local residents responded with wheelbarrow and trowel. Zealous cement laying crews soon encased many of the leaky bunkers in (almost) waterproof shells and made a good start on a network of drainage ditches.

MEDITATIONS

(A contribution from the Battalion Chaplain, CPT Ronald W. Benzing)

"God's Perimeter"

In the 34th Psalm and the 7th verse God has given a message of hope and victory to those who will listen. The verse reads as follows: "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them."

Every field Soldier in Viet Nam is aware of the importance of a good defensive perimeter. Without a tight, well fortified defense, the chances of the enemy entering either by sappers or massive ground attack is very likely. Time and time again we have lost men because of faulty or weak defensive perimeters.

The same truth can be carried over into the spiritual realm where we are fighting the spiritual battle which the apostle Paul describes as a fight against principalities, powers, against rulers of darkness of this world. God promises deliverance for us because He has already established a perimeter around those that fear Him. When reading the Psalm, this is brought out by the three words "en-cammeth round about." Is it not logical that God's perimeter is built to stand even the largest and fiercest attacks of evil? Can we not rest assured that behind His perimeter stands all His attributes as all powerful, all knowing, everywhere present, and all wisdom?

To put your physical life within our soundest perimeter gives a certain amount of security; to place your physical and spiritual life in the center of God's perimeter gives undeniable security. With this security comes peace of mind and soul. This is God's desire for us.

He says NO Chieu Hoi, but he wants to buy some Savings Bonds just in case !!!

Marijuana Marks You

GRASSWOP

You are a soldier in Vietnam and you share many of the daily problems faced by the man in the Delta or the man in the Highlands. You face the same conditions and you are concerned with the same thing--getting home after a tour in Vietnam. But some of you face more problems than others. If you're a user, marijuana is the cause of some of these problems. Why the flap over marijuana? What does it have to do with you? And whose business is it, anyway, what you think or do about marijuana?

These are some of the questions concerning the use and misuse of drugs--drug abuse--being asked by soldiers in Vietnam. The answers are not easy, but it may mean the difference between life and death to understand drugs, their use and why the word "abuse" is used.

Drugs have a definite place in Vietnam. When medically prescribed and properly used, drugs can prevent disease and infection, and help heal wounds. When drugs are misused, they can cause serious complications, sometimes even death. They should be treated with respect and common sense. A hallucinogen--a drug that can cause delusions can damage your mind and have no known medical benefit whatsoever. Marijuana is such a drug. It is the easiest to obtain in Vietnam. Known as "pot", "grass", or "weed", marijuana is the most frequently abused of the hallucinogenic drugs today.

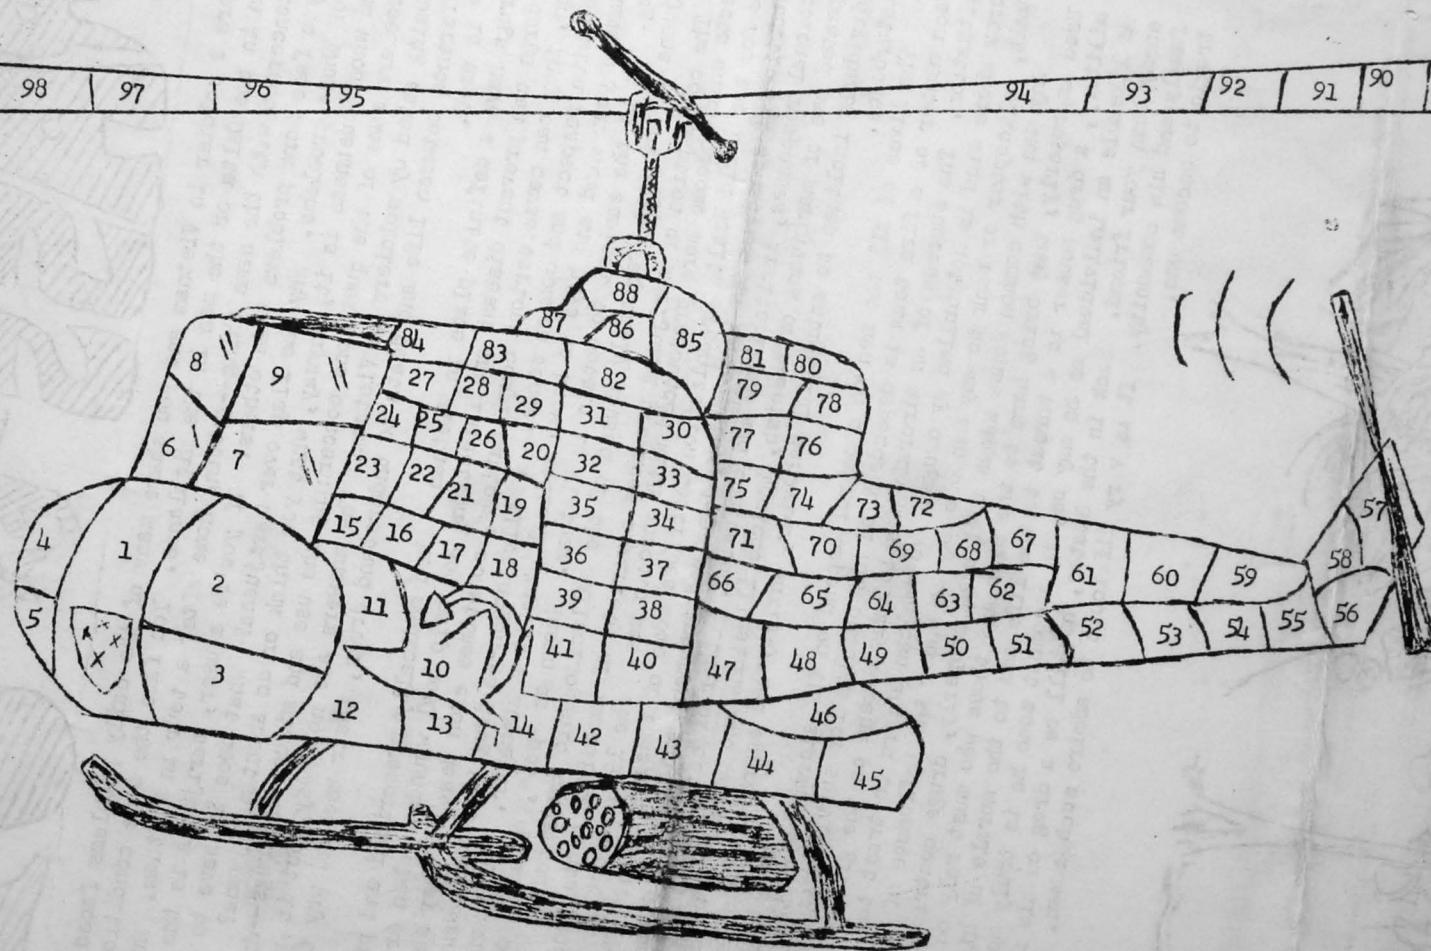

The consumption of marijuana produces a variety of immediate mental and physical effects which become more pronounced with chronic use. The 1965 report on Drug Dependence for the World Health Organization describes some of these effects. They include distortion of sensation and perception, impaired judgment and memory, distorted emotional responses, irritability and confusion. Other effects, which show up after repeated use of marijuana or hashish, include illusions and delusions which make individuals inclined to antisocial behavior, anxiety and aggressiveness and sleep disturbance.

The lives of all the men on a patrol depend on the alertness of the point man. Each member of a fire team is dependent on his buddies for survival in a combat situation. The success of an aircraft mission may depend on the ground maintenance crew whose mind is not dulled by drugs. No one can afford to trust the fate of his unit, helicopter or tank to any man who may be under the influence of marijuana.

Any man with common sense knows that used properly, drugs contribute to life. Used improperly, they bring harm to the user and those who must rely on him. In the military, a drug abuser is a threat to the life and to the morale of his comrades. As likeable an individual as he may be, in a combat zone he is truly more your enemy than your friend. Back in the States, he will be a drag on his friends, his family and his community. It is very difficult to admire such a man. It would be tragic to become one.
