But the personnel of the 174th with their high degree of discipline, training and morale were able to overcome this obstacle and continued to accomplish their missions in an outstanding manner and at the same time, repair all damage done to the base camp in the minimum amount of time.

And again, the personnel of the 174th rallied to meet the situation and continued to meet their mission requirements in an outstanding manner.

And back at the base camp, the unit's personnel were also able to build another enlisted billet, rebuild the officer's and enlisted billets for better ventilation and start construction on a new NCO billet. The shower was installed with new plumbing and a well was dug to supply water for the shower. During this time period, the 174th Aviation Co continued to give support to the 11th Light Infantry Brigade in the form of numerous combat assaults and logistical support missions. The majority of the support was made necessary by the fact that the 11th Light Infantry Brigade was still involved in Operation-Iron Mountain. The 174th also provided support for other Americal and ARVN units.

The support provided during this period has seen the 174th accumulate 8,511 flying hours, complete 37,954 sorties, carry 58,893 troops, carry 2,090 tons of cargo, and medevac 117 personnel. The 174th base camp area is still being plagued with enemy rocket and mortar and sapper attacks. The attacks have become a continual threat but have in no way deterred the personnel from performing their duties in the same outstanding manner that they have in the past. Besides their normal duties, the personnel of the 174th are still continuing to build and rebuild the base camp area to make it more comfortable to live.

The 174th Aviation Co has also instituted a civil affairs program after coordinating with the S-5 and G-5. The program consisted of sending the doctor from 756th Med Det which is attached to the 174th, into the ville on Medicaps on the average of 6 times a week and treating about 35-40 patients per day. The major portion of the patients being orphans ranging in age from a few months old to ten years old. This program did much in improving the relations between the 174th and the Vietnamese people.

The 174th Aviation Co has continued to provide support for the 11th Light Infantry Brigade and other Americal and ARVN units. With the majority of the support being provide to the 11th Lt Inf Bde because of their still being involved in Operation Iron Mountain. The 174th has also picked-up the requirement of giving support to MACV.

Because of all of these requirements, the 174th accumulated 6,439 flying hours, completed 31,277 sorties, carried 46,656 troops and 1,404 tons of cargo, and also medevaced 109 personnel. The personnel have completed a majority of the work on the base camp because of the added incentive of no enemy rocket or mortar attacks during this period. But the Thanksgiving holiday finds the 174th engaged in a staggering effort of supplying a hot turkey meal to all the personnel of the 11th Lt Inf Bde that were located in the field. Although it meant being late for their own units very enjoyable meal, the helicopters were not shut down until the mission was completed.

The Christmas holiday for the 174th again a very busy day but also a very rewarding one. After completing their missions of supplying the personnel in the field with a hot meal, the men returned to the base camp where they were having a party for about 100 orphans from the surrounding villages. The party consisted of a meal for the children and the passing out of gifts that the personnel of the 174th had donated.

The high esprit-de-corps of the men of the 174th has shown through the results and accomplishments of the 174th in the past year. Again the 174th has lived up to its motto of

"NOTHING IMPOSSIBLE"
