RESUME OF THE 123D AVIATION BATTALION

The 123d Aviation Battalion was organized and activated on 8 Dec 67 by USARPAC GO 300, dated 2 Dec 67.

The 161st Aviation Company became the nucleus for the organization, providing initial assets for the Battalion Headquarters, A Company and B Company. The 406th TC Detachment and the 449th Signal Detachment which had supported the 161st Aviation Company, were reassigned and attached to the 123d Aviation Battalion by AMCL GO 168, 25 Jan 68.

During January and February of 1968, the activity of the 123d Aviation Battalion organization intensified. Key officers and enlisted personnel were assigned to the Battalion. Staff sections were formed and equipment and facilities were requisitioned and expanded. The Motor Pool, Supply, Flight Operation, Commo, Maintenance, and Mess were consolidated to facilitate operations.

It was at this time that the Commanding General, Americal Division, expanded the mission of the fledgling Aviation Battalion, which, due to the exceptionally large area of operation of the Americal Division, required an additional air cavalry type unit. B Company was organized from the Armed Helicopter Platoon of the former 161st Avn Co and later given a provisional mission as Aero Scouts. Additional aviation and infantry personnel and equipment for this unit were made available from within the Americal Division's assets by AMCL GO 603, 10 Feb 68, which directed the organization of the Aero Scout Company (Provisional).

During 1968, the 123d Avn Bn compiled an impressive record. A Company supported the Americal's ground units by hauling 1,482 tons of cargo in over 3,736 sorties, and in the process killed over twenty VC/NVA and med-evaced over 94 persons. B Company learned their tactical lessons well, killing over seven hundred VC/NVA and destroyed over 575 structures in 27,510 sorties.

On 15 Dec 68, the 123d Avn Bn, comprised of A Co, B Co, 406th TC Det, and the 449th Sig Det and was attached to the 16th Combat Aviation Group. In Jan 69, two CH 47 units, the 132d and 178th Assault Support Helicopter Companies were attached to the Battalion. With the addition of the 178th and the 132d, extensive changes were necessary in the Battalion's staff structure.

The functions of the S2 section, previously handled as an additional duty of the S3 were separated and the S2 section was fully staffed and became a functional staff section. The most significant changes occurred in the S3, which previously handled all flight records and operations duties of A and B Companies. Facilities were expanded to accommodate the more complex mission requirements of the CH-47 and to provide continuous information on aircraft and mission status to Division Army Aviation Element.

A short period after this reorganization, the 406th TC Detachment and the 449th Sig Detachment were deactivated. E Company, 723d Maintenance Battalion, which was formed from the assets of the 406th TC Det, and the 449th Sig Det were attached to the 123d Aviation Battalion. The current organization of the 123d Aviation Battalion is Headquarters and Headquarters Company, A Company, B Company, E Company, 132d and 178th Assault Support Helicopter Companies.

The individual photo section for the 132d Assault Support Helicopter Company have not been located. Please advise if these can be located.

The albums for each company were different. The first 80 pages were the same. But the last section included only the individual photos for a serviceman's specific company. When I bought my album I had ordered an A Company album. But in the 26 months I was assigned to the 123rd Cbt. Avn. Bn. I had lived in hootches with men from B Company and had served my last 10 months with E/723rd Maint. Bn. So I would have liked to have had all the individual photos in the album. I have not seen another unit album that was done this way. .
