FIFTH BATTALION, FORTY-SIXTH INFANTRY

The 5th Battalion, 46th Infantry is a newly-activated Battalion of the United States Army. The parent 46th Infantry Regiment was originally constituted in May 1917 and formally activated in June of the same year at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, from elements of the 10th Infantry Regiment. Although inactivated and demobilized between the two World Wars, the 46th Infantry was called to service again in 1941 when it was reactivated at Fort Knox, Kentucky.

During World War II, the 46th Infantry Regiment became an Armored Infantry Battalion and in turn spawned the 15th and 47th Armored Infantry Battalions. The 46th first served with the 5th Armored Division throughout the war, and before its deactivation in 1945, it had one battle streamers for action in Normandy, Northern France, the Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace, and Central Europe. It was decorated with the Distinguished Unit Citation and the Luxembourg Croix de Guerre.

On 6 July 1948, the 15th, 46th, and 47th Armored Infantry Battalions were reactivated at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, as elements of the 5th Armored Division but were again inactivated in February 1950. The Korean War caused the battalions to be reactivated again from 1 September 1950 to 16 March 1956. Finally on 1 July 1959, the three Battalions were consolidated and reorganized to form the 46th Infantry. Presently there are four battalions of the 46th Infantry on active duty. The first battalion deployed to Vietnam with the 198th Brigade as an element of the Americal Division. The second and fourth Battalions are mechanized Battalions with the first Armored Division. The 5th Battalion was activated as a light Infantry Battalion under the command of LTC David K. Lyon on 2 October 1967, at Fort Hood, Texas, and assigned to the 1st Brigade, 2nd Armored Division.
