Dear Supporter,

As you know, the film, "War Dogs... America's Forgotten Heroes" touched everyone who saw it. People, like you, wanted to assist in the effort to recognize these canine heroes in a fitting tribute. And, after a successful year of fundraising, I am thrilled to update you on the status of our War Dog Memorial efforts. Even though our original plans for placement at Riverside National Cemetery were denied by the Veterans Administration, we feel we have selected a truly appropriate site for the first of our War Dog Memorials. The War Dog Memorial will be placed at the March Field Air Museum located in Riverside, California.

This site was selected because of its excellent accessibility, high visibility and commitment to honor military history. Additionally, the Museum attracts nearly 100,000 visitors annually and is certain the memorial will draw even more. The March Field Air Museum is as excited about the dedication as we are and plans to develop a K9 exhibit to complement the memorial. The memorial will stand proudly in the Heritage Courtyard, easily visible to all visitors.

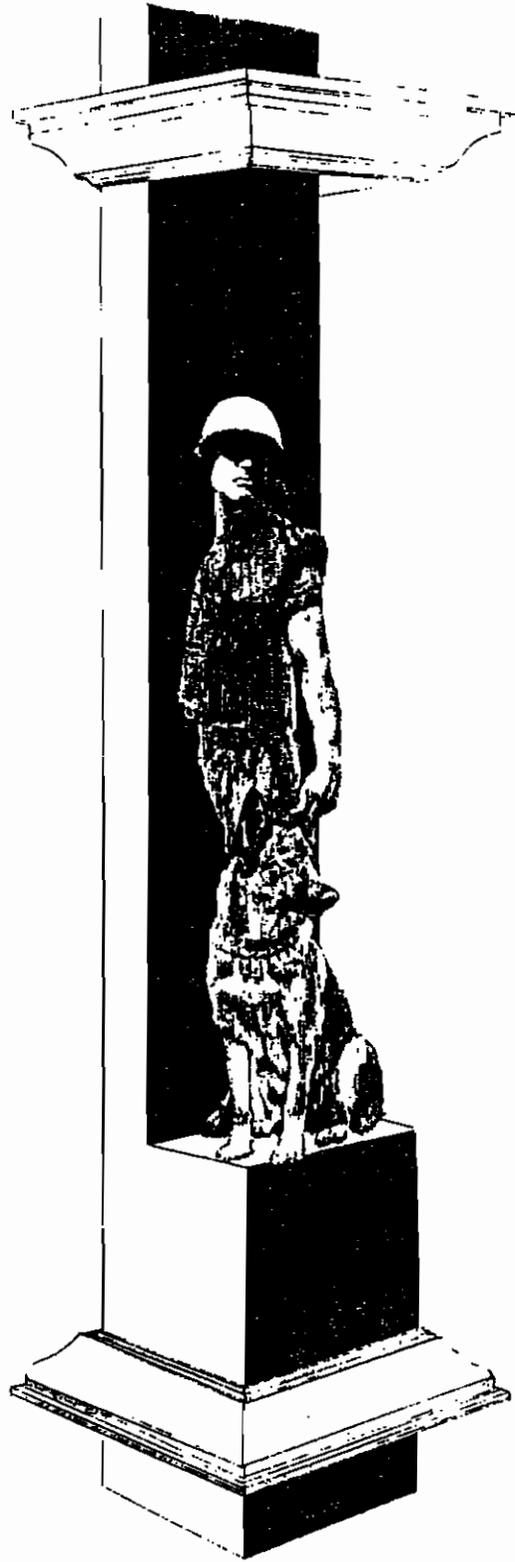

The dedication ceremony will be February 21, 2000 at 11:00 am. The enclosed invitation will provide you with a location map and other details. We hope you are able to join us this President's Day as we, at long last, recognize and honor these valiant canine heroes that are so important to our American history.

We have additional information available on local hotels and airport if you should need it. Please call us at (877)WAR-DOGS (927-3647), and we'll be happy to send it to you. We are available Monday through Friday, 9-5 PST.

Thank you again for your contribution and support of this special effort. I look forward to seeing you in a few weeks.

Sincerely,

Laura J. Bengel
