STRUGGLE FOR JUSTICE

1.95

A report on crime and punishment in the United States. This AFSC working party paper examines the inequities and repressive functions of America's criminal justice system, approaching the problems of police, courts, and prisons from the perspective of those on the receiving end, balancing the rights and needs of prisoners against the well-being of society as a whole. Strong criticism of present practices, especially the predominating concept of rehabilitation. With suggestions for working toward change. (New York: Hill & Wang, 1971) 179 pp. (cloth 4.50)

BEYOND DETERRENCE

The Beyond Deterrence series is based on the assumption that humanity can yet escape nuclear destruction. It is concerned with the conquest of violence in all its forms through fair persuasion, just laws, peaceful negotiation, economic aid, intercultural exchange, honest dealing, unilateral initiatives and nonviolent resistance.

Each contributing author has been given freedom to express his own views, views which may be fairly challenged but which need to be considered at every level of our national life.

These pamphlet/essays are planned to spark discussion. They are widely used as material for school debates and adult education classes.

THE DRAFT? 1.25

An AFSC working party argues against military conscription and questions the government's right to conscript its citizens for any purpose. Questions discussed include: What is the status of the conscientious objector? What is the status of the selective objector who refuses to fight in the Vietnam war but believes himself willing to participate in a "just" war? What are the psychological effects of the draft on the individual, his family and society? Does conscription have an increasing effect on foreign policy? (New York: Hill and Wang, 1968) 112 pp. (cloth 3.50)
