Dear Librarian or Bookseller:

We're one publisher and book distributor that wishes we could go out of business. That is to say, we wish the world situation didn't require the kind of books and other publications we specialize in: written material on the problems of violence, injustice and war, as well as material on the making of peace.

Tragically, it will be a long while before there is sufficient religious commitment and political sanity in the world for the peacemakers to move on to other concerns.

Admittedly, few of the books we offer are anything like best sellers. But we ask you to consider placing an order even for those few readers who would otherwise have a very difficult time finding the published resources to assist them in peace work and peace study.

Enclosed is our new book list as well as a special listing of a number of items that are available at drastically reduced prices.

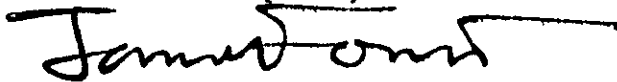

We also enclose a promotional letter about Fellowship, the monthly magazine of peacemaking we publish. We will provide this to libraries at half-price-- $3 a year for eleven issues--as a means of encouraging its use. Pulitzer Prize-winner Robert Coles has said of this magazine:

"Fellowship addresses itself consistently and without hesitation or fear to the important ethical issues that face our society--issues which have to do with life and death, war and peace, justice and injustice. It is a brave and thoughtful magazine, well worth the attention of those who care what is happening here and elsewhere on this planet."

Book sellers may retain 50% of the sale price of the magazine (60¢ a copy) and have, of course, full right of return of unsold copies.

We hope to hear from you soon.

Yours in peace,

James Forest
