

Announcing . . .

Vietnam: Lotus in a Sea of Fire

A Buddhist Proposal for Peace by Thich Nhat Hanh

Is there really a viable third force in Vietnam?

This authentic voice of Vietnam itself shows a way between the impossible dilemmas of oppressive regimes determined to destroy each other—and the Vietnamese people in the process. Following his historic visits in the United States and Europe, the renowned Buddhist monk presents the first account of one thousand years of travail as a Vietnamese might see it, impressively documented and backgrounded, but with the greater part directed to a resolution of the present crisis.

With an afterword by Alfred Hassler and original documentary material related to Thich Nhat Hanh's visit to the United States and Europe.

Says Thomas Merton in his foreword:

"Nhat Hanh speaks for the vast majority who know little of politics but who seek to preserve something of Vietnam's traditional identity as an Asian and largely Buddhist culture. He speaks for his people and for a renewed and "engaged" Buddhism that has taken up the challenge of modern and western civilization in its disastrous impact upon the East.

"Nhat Hanh has given us the first really clear and articulate expression of the peculiarly Asian viewpoint . . . A reasonable, carefully documented and authoritative exposition of historical and cultural evidence. From this book we may perhaps begin to understand why so many fantastic errors and confusions have so far characterized Western adventures in Southeast Asia."

ORDER FORM ON REVERSE

The Contents

THE HISTORICAL SETTING

1. Vietnamese Buddhism

Thien, the Vietnamese Zen - Buddhism and nation building - Relationship with Confucianism and Taoism - Decline of Confucianism and Taoism.

2. Enter Roman Catholicism

Early Missions: religion and politics - Colonialism and Resistance: the "Monks' War" - Nationalist Catholicism: a new outlook.

3. Buddhism and Nationalism in Southeast Asia

Ceylon - Burma - Comparison of Western and Communist Chinese attitudes - Modern Revival of Buddhism in Vietnam.

THE STRUGGLE TODAY

1. Enter Communism

Revolution and intrigues - Ho Chi Minh, a national hero - Ngo Dinh Diem, a Catholic dictator - The National Liberation Front.

2. Enter the United States

American Soldiers: how the peasant sees them - The dilemma of Vietnamese religious leaders - About land reform—and Vietcong terror - Strategic hamlets - The towns and the refugees: corruption and misery.

3. What Can Be Done?

Neutralism outlawed: the fate of poets, petitioners, and visiting pacifists - U.S. aims incomprehensible to Vietnamese - A third possibility? - Peace activities of religious and other groups in Vietnam.

CONCLUSION

ORDER FORM

Please send me copies of
VIETNAM: LOTUS IN A SEA OF FIRE

at $1.25 paper / $3.50 cloth
(10 or more copies $1.00 each)

I enclose $ Bill me
(add sales tax where it applies)

Name

Address

City

State Zip

Tear off and send to

FELLOWSHIP PUBLICATIONS

Box 271, Nyack, N.Y. 10960

(Copies will be ready for shipment on or about January 20.)