Käthe Kollwitz:
Woman and Artist

By Martha Kearns
(256 pages, illustrated—$5.50)

“There is very little material on women artists that allows us to see them and their work in the context of their lives as women. This book will be a significant contribution to our understanding of women and art.”
Judy Chicago

The Woman and the Myth:
Margaret Fuller's Life and Writings

By Bell Gale Chevigny
(520 pages—$6.50)

“A fascinating, original, and important book. Its imaginative structure and the sensitive feminist perspective of the author result in a totally new interpretation of one of America's most prominent literary figures.”
Gerda Lerner

My Mother the Mail Carrier

By Inez Maury
Illustrated by Lady McCrady
(32 pages—$3.50)

A bilingual story about the mutual love and admiration between five-year-old Lupita and her mother, Mariana, “la cartera.” Together they cook tamales, paint Lupita's room, and cheer each other up when things get tough.

Portraits of Chinese Women in Revolution
By Agnes Smedley
Edited by Jan MacKinnon and Steve MacKinnon
(240 pages, illustrated—$3.95)

“These stories are among the most lyrical and moving pieces we have about a variety of Chinese women in the 1930s, from the urban elite to Communist guerrillas to the ordinary peasant woman.”
Jan MacKinnon and Steve MacKinnon
