Little Cathy Dies

SAN FRANCISCO -- Little Cathy is dead.

Her broken, tortured body-- after six weeks of horror--could not heal.

A Polio victim, the 8-year-old beauty was the object of taunts and derision by negro classmates. They said they didn't like the way she walked.

So, the negroes set fire to her summery print dress. Flames seared 40% of her body and scorched her metal braces as she tried to scale

a wall crying, "Mummy, Mummy."

"We did our best," said

one of the weary physicians as attendants wheeled away the body, freed by death from relentless agony. "It was touch and go right from the start."

Little Cathy-- her full name was Catherine Reeves-- was virtually ignored by the nation's liberal newspapers who saw the story as hurtful to race-mix efforts. Most of those which reported the incident considered it minor and censored the fact that her tormentors were negroes.
