

(HAND-OUT FOR PASSERSBY**)

What are we trying to say?

That you and I are responsible for the consequences of our acts. That if we make instruments of death we are killers.

Close your eyes. Can you hear the screams of the children of Vietnam?

What can we say to them? And what can we say to the technicians who make the napalm that sears their flesh? To the executives who contract to produce it? To the government that uses it? To the stockholders that profit from it?

We are saying it is wrong for an organization, like Dow, to ignore humanity for a profit.

We are saying it is inconsistent with the purpose of a university to provide capital for the manufacture of napalm.

We call upon the Dow representative to debate this evening the question of Dow's manufacture of napalm and defoliants.

And we call upon the Administration of the University to debate this week the question of University cooperation with Dow.
