

HAVE you ever wanted to read a radical journal whose writers acted as if they thought YOU were important? Well, that's exactly how MATCH writers do feel. We're concerned with the stifling effect the present society and government have upon you, the individual, and we have a consistent analysis of what is now wrong, as well as some ideas on what to do about it.

THE MATCH has no party for you to join, no cure-all for your every problem. What we do have is an idea that you and we --and everybody-- would be better off if we ourselves could only make the decisions concerning each of our own lives, and if each of us could retain the whole fruits of our labor, instead of having to be robbed by governments.

Our ideology is simple: We think that any assault, or robbery, or invasion carried out against an individual is a crime, no matter whether it is another individual or some supposedly sacred institution which is the culprit. Our articles discuss why this is so and what the ramifications of this fact are, and our monthly features focus a withering spotlight on the State. The Match is different from any radical newspaper you have ever read.

We hope you will want to receive every issue.
