

The American war machine reaps a whirlwind that engulfs our country and threatens the world. Three billion dollars a month, which could be spent to attack the intolerable conditions of our disinherited cities, is spent instead to kill and destroy in Vietnam. The insulted and injured at home have no choice but to act out their despair by rebelling.

We call on those opposed to the war to escalate the quality of their opposition—by intensifying activity in their communities and by converging on the Capitol on October 21st.

A day of united activities with many levels of intensity, from simple protest to determined direct action.
