DATERLINES AROUND THE WORLD UPI

LOS ANGELES—Senator Robert F. Kennedy was shot and wounded critically early Wednesday moments after he had jubilantly declared a victory in the California Primary Election.

A swarthy gunman fired a bullet into Kennedy's brain as the Senator left a crowd of supporters cheering the election results in a ballroom of the Ambassador Hotel.

Firing again and again, the gunman hit Kennedy twice and wounded five other persons.

The jubilation in the ballroom turned to pandemonium as witnesses shouted "Bobby's been shot".

Kennedy was taken to a Hospital where a team of six surgeons three hours later operated in an attempt to remove the bullet.

At 4:50 A.M. PDT, a Kennedy aide told newsmen the senator had been in surgery for two hours. He said physicians estimated he would remain in surgery "for another hour—perhaps two hours".

Whatever the outcome of the operation, Kennedy's political future was uncertain, despite his victory over Senator Eugene McCarthy in Tuesday's critical California Presidential Preference Primary.

Moments before he was shot Kennedy had gone before his supporters and a television and radio audience. His brief statement included a remark deplored violence.

Flashing a victory sign, he walked from the ballroom to where the gunman was lurking.

Kennedy aides, including a professional football star and an olympic champion, subdued the gunman and turned him over to police who whisked him away in secrecy under heavy guard. The gunman refused to give his name, and police were unable to identify him.

The world was shocked by the shooting, and President Johnson ordered the Secret Service to guard all the other presidential candidates.

The Senator was shot down 4½ years after his brother, the late President John F. Kennedy, was slain by two bullets from an assassin's rifle while riding in a motorcade in Dallas, Texas.

Although the Senator had aides who helped him when necessary in crowds while campaigning, none was regarded as a bodyguard.

Kennedy on several occasions had refused offers of police protection while in Los Angeles. This was disclosed by Police Chief Thomas Riddin at a news conference in which he announced "as near as we can tell, there's only one person involved".

PARIS — France is on the verge of a nicotine fit. The latest and most humiliating effect of the country's domestic crisis is that the heavy smoking nation has run out of cigarettes.

Even the calmest Frenchmen—somehow unperturbed by the paralysis of transport, disappearance of gasoline supplies, shortage of cash, street rioting and unprecedented traffic jams—pushed the panic button when their right to dangle a cigarette from the lower lip came into question.

Last week when many neighborhood tobacco stores ran out of government produced "brown" tobacco cigarettes, Frenchmen gave in and bought "blond" tobacco cigarettes imported from the United States and other European countries.
