WISCONSIN (BADGER STATE)

Wisconsin leads the U. S. in milk and cheese production. In 1964, the state ranked first in the number of milk cows and produced 29.4% of the nation's total output of milk. Other important farm products are: potatoes, cabbage, maple sugar, cranberries, and cherries. The state ranks first in the production of peas, corn, and beets for canning.

About 40 years ago Wisconsin's forest became depleted, but in recent years phenomenal strides in reforestation have been made.

The chief industrial products of the state are automobiles, machinery, furniture, paper, beer, and processed foods. Wisconsin ranks first among the 47 paper-producing states.

Wisconsin pioneered in social legislation, providing pensions for the blind (1907), aid to dependent children (1913), and old-age assistance (1925). In 1932, it was the first state to enact an unemployment compensation law. In labor legislation, the state has also pioneered in important laws, among them the first workmen's compensation law actually to take effect. Wisconsin had the first state-wide primary-election law and the first successful income-tax law.
