Dear Dick:

My greatest regret with regard to my Saigon visit is that we never got together again for more discussions. I spent almost all the time in the regions and my brief stays in Saigon were hectic. I took copious notes of our recent conversation, however, and it was as always a tremendous pleasure to see you again, and particularly to find you in such superb fettle.

Please remember me to Ho Chi and keep in touch. I still entertain the dream of doing some fishing with you in Oregon someday.

All the best.

As Ever,
