Dear Ogden,

Just a word of sincere thanks on behalf of a number of grateful students for such a lucid and graceful exposition of the issues confronting this country in Vietnam.

What is needed in our universities are people who can communicate with enthusiasm and lively discussion pros and cons of American foreign policy; your masterful handling of a difficult subject is an enduring contribution to the oncoming generation, and I am duly grateful for the contribution.

With sincere thanks, and with warmest personal regards, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

Dr. John Lydgate
Assistant Professor of History
