

Ogden Williams is a graduate of Princeton University and Harvard Law School. After practicing law in New York City for three years, he entered the U.S. Foreign Service and served 11 years with C.I.A. (Germany, India, Vietnam), followed by 12 years with A.I.D. (Vietnam, Tunisia, Washington.) Since 1974 he has been a free-lance writer, and in 1978 placed a major article on the Hmong in the Washington Post (See: The Allies We Abandoned in Laos are Still Fighting and Dying, Outlook Section, September 17, 1978) which was carried by CBS on the 60 Minute TV program in 1979.