Subj: Report of Command Safety Council; action on

Encl: (1) Command Safety Council Meeting; report of

1. The report of the Command Safety Council meeting of 28 February 1968, enclosure (1), is approved. Masters are directed to carry out the recommendations.

2. As there is no course of action totally devoid of hazard in life, so in ship operations there is a time to sail and a time to lay for a time to take a careful calculated risk and a time when the risks are too great; but always when there is doubt as to the safety of the men in the ship, it is time to plot a safe course. Prudent management dictates the course to choose.

3. I commend and thank personnel of the following ships and ships, which operated for the entire year without a disabling work injury, for their exemplary safety performance. Well Done!
