TIME Magazine Letters

Dear Editor,

I was very surprised and disappointed when I read the article "A War on Poverty" in the TIME (April 30, 1990). While writing about the situation of American veterans and North Vietnamese veterans, the author ignored thousands of disabled South Vietnamese soldiers who fought for years side by side with American soldiers against the Communists and have been forgotten since the death of Freedom in Vietnam in 1975.

While living in South Vietnam after April 30, 1975, I eyewitnessed hundreds of disabled South Vietnamese soldiers being expelled from hospitals and their homes by Communist soldiers. Many of them died or committed suicide. For those who survive, they are the most miserable people in Vietnam today. I suggest that MR. William Steward should go down to South Vietnam and take a look at the plight of those persons.

South Vietnamese soldiers were unfairly treated by the media during the war, and now they continue to be ignored. There were rare accounts telling the truth about their dedication and loyalty to a principle they believe to be right.

In his book LA DEUXIEME MORT DU VIETNAM, French General Vanuxem wrote "... during the Vietnam war, one South Vietnamese soldier killed every 8 minutes. Since the Paris Accord of 1973, the government of the Republic of Vietnam (South Vietnam) had to continue to order 3,000 coffins every month (until 4.30.75) for its sacrificed soldiers", (page 8). So, besides the deads, how many more wounded and left behind?

I think your readers deserve to know the truth about those people.

Sincerely Yours,

Nguyen M. Ngoc

Based upon the QDP, and the new special released

Reeducation Center Detainees Resettlement programs are there any provisions for the departure of the former South VN's army officers captured in the Northern part of VN before April 1975? Are there

Any special treatment for those peoples?
