*"In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger."
—President John F. Kennedy, Inaugural Address, January 20, 1961.*

In tribute to Former CIA Director Ambassador William Colby and the United States military and clandestine forces who served in the Vietnam War, we join the grateful people of America to award to you this

Commendation and Citation for Vietnam War Service in Laos

to

Lt. Xiong Yia Yang #9501767

On this 12th day of May, 1996

For your courageous defense of your people and homeland against communist aggression and your support and sacrifice on behalf of United States military and clandestine forces. Hmong and Lao units in the Royal Lao armed forces operated in crucial air and combat support missions for United States military and clandestine forces, including the rescuing of downed air crews and the interdiction and destruction of enemy troop and supply convoys. Against overwhelming enemy manpower and weaponry, the outnumbered Hmong and other Royal Lao forces successfully fought as allies of the United States to maintain the freedom of Laos and other Southeast Asian nations threatened by the invasion of the Soviet-backed, North Vietnamese Army. Now, therefore, on this 12th day of May, 1996, we confer upon you and the other Hmong and Lao combat veterans this commendation and citation and the long overdue recognition and honor you so rightly deserve for your sacrifices on behalf of the United States, Laos and the freedom loving people of Southeast Asia.
