Relief Services

During the year 1957, the American Relief Administration (ARA) continued its operations in the Republic of China. The ARA's primary objective was to provide relief to the Chinese people who were suffering from the effects of the Chinese Civil War and the subsequent famine. The ARA's relief efforts were concentrated in the areas of food, clothing, and shelter. The ARA's relief efforts were also extended to the Chinese people who were suffering from the effects of the Chinese Civil War and the subsequent famine.
