You can send this around to anyone you like.

John McCain (Jonboy) is a hair-splitter like Bill Clinto (now get your minds out of the gutter). The key words are "delibertyly" or "intentionally" leave anyone behind. Clinton, clever lwyer that he is, argues that his claim never to have engaged in "sexual relations" with Monica Lewinsky was "legally accurate" (WT, 9/29/98). It's much like Clinton's defination of "is."

Former POW, Air Force Colonel Donald "Digger" Odell, said two American POWs in the cell next to him were not released by the Hanoi communists because "they were too severely tortured by Cuban interrogators..." "The Vietnamese didn't want the world to see what they had done to them."

We never got these two guys out. Were they intentionally left behind? Did we intentionally leave them behind? Were they left behind? Yes! Did we intentionally lveve them behind. No! Were they deliberately left behind? No! However, the Vietnamese communists had us by the balls because we pulled out of Viet Nam, and then Congress cut them, so we had no leverage to get them out. Were they left behind? Yes! Hey, I'm the one of the last ones who would defend Johnboy, so dont get me wrong, but it's all in the way you split the hairs. Regards, MikeB
