Mr. Kollar,

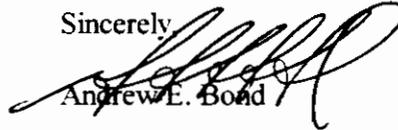

Let me first apologize for not getting back to you more quickly. I truly thought I could locate my old records/files faster than my recent spring cleaning.

I have been able locate a few documents that may be helpful to you in your pursuit of the re-construction of the history of the 58th IPSD. Yesterday I finally located my "missing" notebook that contained copies of the unit's activation order, deployment orders, my original assignment order to the 58th, and my assumption of command order. I was also able to locate a copy of a certified Roster of RVN Training containing the names of IPSD soldiers from the 49th, 50th, 26th, 57th, and 58th. I hope these help you in your endeavor. Please keep these copies with my best wishes.

During my search for the above records I was also able to locate some old photos that may be helpful in identifying soldiers of the 58th. Please feel free to retain these as well.

Best of luck in your pursuit of a unique part of our country's history.

Sincerely,
