Benjamin Spock is an intellectual of great reputation in the United States. In 1965, he began taking part in the anti-war movement and since then the more he realized the truth about the dirty aggressive war conducted by the U.S. administration in Vietnam, the more he was active in the anti-war movement. He took part in the leading committees of various big anti-war organizations in the U.S. On April 15, 1967, he and Minister Martin Luther King led the anti-war march from San Francisco to Atlanta. He has signed many petitions, communiques and appeals against the U.S. aggressive war in Vietnam, and gone to many states in the U.S.A. to address meetings against the draft. In spite of ruthless repression by the U.S. administration, Benjamin Spock is not deterred in his actions for peace and justice in the United States.
