The annual meeting of the Association has been held in Dallas and San Antonio for the past few years because of the convenience of Dallas to most members and the special attractiveness of San Antonio. The meetings are characterized by serious attention to the widest possible range of societal and social science issues, interdisciplinary approaches to understanding, explaining and changing social life, and Southwestern friendliness. After the '78 meeting in Houston, the sequence will be Fort Worth in '79 followed by New Orleans, Dallas and San Antonio. Beginning in '79, every year the convention will be held the last Wednesday through the last Saturday in March.

Social Science Quarterly, now in its 58th year, is a highly successful multi-discipline journal serving scholars in economics, history, geography, political science, international relations, women's studies, sociology and related fields. Under the vigorous, astute leadership of Charles M. Bonjean, SSQ is addressing current, pressing problems facing society and social scientists examining society. SSQ publishes critical and sometimes controversial work by a broad range of social scientists, encouraging fresh viewpoints and meaningful discussion of important issues. Moreover, the journal is flexible and creative in providing new formats and innovative ways of presenting its materials.

Mr. Paul F. Cecil
Department of History
Southwest Texas State University
San Marcos, Texas 78666

Dear Paul:

Enclosed again is your session for the Southwestern Social Science Association meeting at Houston. Please note that you should send your paper (which should be ten to twelve pages in length--twenty to twenty-four minutes) to the session commentator by March 16. You should also send a short vita to the session chairman so that he can introduce you properly. I would appreciate your strict compliance with these instructions.

I would also hope that you would register at the Convention because the history section will receive $2.00 per person. If at all possible, try to hear other Phi Alpha Theta sessions. Besides helping provide an audience, you can judge for yourself the caliber and type of research being done by other graduates.

I look forward to seeing you on April 13-15.

Sincerely,

Dear Professor Powers:

Enclosed is a copy of the paper I propose to present at the Southwestern Social Science Association meeting in Houston. I apologize for waiting until the last minute to send it to you, but unfortunately I am one of those who can not seem to finish anything. I always find a new way of phrasing a point or discover something new that I wish to add to a paper. Thus, in a way, it is probably best that I have to send you a copy or I would be revising the paper right up to the moment of presentation.

Because of the diversity of the papers to be presented in our session, I am not quite sure how you intend to make your comments. In the hope that it will help you, I amplified the footnotes to my paper a little more than was necessary. If you have any questions concerning any part of the paper, please contact me at Southwest and I will try to clarify it for you. As a "virgin" to this type of presentation, I am not sure of what is proper or accepted in the exchange of information, so please forgive me if what I provided is too little or too much.

I look forward to meeting you on 13 April and to hearing your comments on this paper.

Sincerely,

Paul F. Cecil
