RANCH HAND ASSOCIATION COLLECTION

At

THE VIETNAM ARCHIVE

Description:

airmen

The Ranch Hand Association Collection encompasses the experiences of soldiers who took part in Operation Ranch Hand during the Vietnam War. The collection roughly covers 1960 to the present. This collection will continue to grow as the members of the Ranch Hand Association add to it.

This collection includes materials from Paul Cecil related to a dissertation and book he wrote on Operation Ranch Hand. This collection also contains important information on the effects of Herbicides on the participants of Operation Ranch Hand.

This collection had a great deal of organization when it arrived and therefore the original order was kept as close to the original order as possible.

Scope and Content:

The Collection covers a broad range of topics related to Operation Ranch Hand, the Ranch Hand Association, and issues about Herbicides. These topics include support for and against the use of herbicides, studies conducted on the use of Herbicides, Lawsuits against Herbicide use, VA treatment of Vietnam Vets, Vietnam Vets objections with the Government, Use of Herbicides, Chemical and Germ Warfare.

The types of materials vary in the collection. There are a large number of news clippings, magazine articles, journals, and studies covering the various topics above.

This Collection also contains a valuable collection of oral histories about the experiences of the participants in Operation Ranch Hand. This collection also contains numerous slides and pictures of Operation Ranch Hand and reunions that have taken place since the end of Operation Ranch Hand.

Also, this collection has a number of video, analog, and cassette tapes. There are microfiche copies of the Air Force Health study involving members of Operation Ranch Hand.
